Ford's amnesty proposal 'is dead,' says Goldwater

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Saturday that President Ford's proposal for conditional amnesty for draft evaders and deserters "is dead."

"I've talked to leaders in the Congress, Republican leaders, and asked specifically about it and they said as of now, it is dead," Goldwater told reporters at his southern Arizona campaign headquarters.

"I heard that as late as this morning from Washington, so if he (Ford has something in mind, I'm sure this time he'll ask people about it," Goldwater said. "I don't care what he does about amnesty, I'm utterly opposed to it."

He said he felt that, if amnesty were granted, it would hurt Republicans seeking re-election in November, but added, "It's not going to be against me because I'm 550,000 per cent against it.

"I don't want to give any amnesty except to those men who are willing to come home and stand trial and take the consequences."

Friction in the White House

WASHINGTON UPI) — President Ford's former press secretary, Jerald F. terHorst, said Saturday that Ford is spending "an inordinate amount of time" keeping peace between his own aides and those left over from the Nixon staff.

TerHorst told UPI his comments, made in a syndicated column, were more a lament than a criticism.

Much of the friction, terHorst said, results from the extraordinarily rapid change in chief executives —"exactly 28 minutes for a transfer of presidential power which under normal cirumstances stretches leisurely from an election day in early November to Inauguration Day the following Jan. 20."

He said Ford aides walked into the White House "without titles indicating their duties and without desks at which to sit," while most of the Nixon staff remained on the job at Ford's request and "were still in power."

TerHorst, who resigned last Sunday in protest of Ford's pardon for former President Nixon, said White House Chief of Staff Alexander Haig became "the acting president" during Nixon's last year in office and kept control of the administrative machinery after Ford took office.

In the first of a tri-weekly series of syndicated columns — and his first public criticism of Ford on grounds other than the pardon —terHorst said tension developed between old and new White House staff members over policy changes and especially over Watergate questions.

He also said "some Ford men suspect Haig of unduly influencing Ford to issue his pardon of Richard Nixon on the grounds that the former president's physical and emotional well-being was at stake."

"Even putting aside the national furor over the Nixon pardon, Ford is spending an inordinate amount of time soothing his loyalists and placating the sensitive feelings of Haig," terHorst wrote.

He said this was time Ford "might better devote to the task of devising a policy to bring inflation under control, shaping his administration's domestic and foreign policies, and installing his own men in the key posts of government."

TerHorst, who was Washington bureau chief for the Detroit News before he joined Ford's staff, returned to the News as a columnist after his resignation. His first column described problems involved in the transfer of power in the White House.

The presidential transition was bound to bring friction between the holdovers and the new aides, terHorst said, compounded by "the fact that Ford was an entirely different kind of man than Nixon."

Hijacker explodes hand grenade on plane; 68 die

SAIGON (UPI) — A hijacker dressed in the uniform of a South Vietnamese major exploded two hand grenades today aboard a South Vietnamese Boeing 727 commercial airliner, killing all 68 persons aboard, airline sources said.

The sources said all 62 passengers and six crew members died when the explosion blew up the Air Vietnam aircraft as it was coming in for a landing at Phan Rang, a district capital and airbase 165 miles northeast of Saigon.

The plane, on a regularly scheduled commercial flight by the government airline, was en route to Saigon from Da Nang, 370 miles northeast of the capital.

Airline sources said the pilot radioed minutes before the explosion that a man dressed in the uniform of a paratroop major had forced his way into the cabin and demanded that "we deviate from" the scheduled nonstop route between Da Nang and Saigon.

The pilot asked for landing instructions, the sources said, but his message was unclear and it was not immediately known what destination the hijacker wanted.

The sources said the pilot apparently told the hijacker the plane did not have enough fuel to fly to his requested destination and that the aircraft would have to land at Phan Rang for refueling.

Described by doctor as 'ravaged man'

'I'll never come out of hospital alive'-Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon told former White House physician Walter Tkach that he would not enter the hospital for treatment of phlebitis because "If I go into the hospital I'll never come out alive," NBC news reported Saturday.

Interviewed by the network on his return from examining Nixon in San Clemente, Calif., Friday, Tkach described the former President as "fatigued and tense... a ravaged man who has lost some of his will to fight."

Tkach said the tension could lead to formation of a new blood clot that could lodge in the former President's heart.

Nixon is under medication, Tkach said, but is not using anti-coagulants because they require hospital supervision. He said he decided against trying to persuade Nixon to enter a hospital after the former President told him: "If I go into the hospital, I'll never come out alive."

In San Clemente, friends reported that Nixon was in good mental condition and working at his office despite pain and swelling in his leg caused by the vein inflammation.

Dr. Walter Tkach, who was Nixon's personal physician during his presidency, flew here Friday to examine the former President.

Dr. Tkach said there was a new "veinous clot" in Nixon's upper left leg that was causing some pain. Tkach added that the clot from the earlier phlebitis still troubled Nixon.

He said he recommended that Nixon be hospitalized, but that the former President refused.

Instead, Tkach said, Nixon will continue to receive medication and weekly medical examinations. Tkach said he and Dr. John Lundgren, a Long Beach physician who examined Nixon Tuesday in Palm Springs, will make weekly evaluations on the former president's condition.

Lundgren was still at Nixon's estate, but Tkach returned to Washington late Friday.

Eloise Popeil, boyfriend found guilty in murder-for-hire plot

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Eloise Popeil, who characterized her estranged millionaire husband as a "paranoid schizophrenic" who spied on her daily for 10 years, was convicted with her boyfriend Saturday of soliciting his murder.

A jury of seven men and five women returned the guilty verdict against Mrs. Popeil, 49, a Newport Beach, Calif., socialite, and her boyfriend, Daniel Ayers, 37, a Santa Ana, Calif., metal worker, after 38 hours of deliberating over eight days.

The couple, who claimed the charges against them were a frame-up devised by a jealous Samuel Popeil, heard the verdict without emotion or comment. They were handcuffed and led from the courtroom.

Mrs. Popeil and Ayers allegedly sought to have Popeil killed so that the socialite could inherit part of his multimillion fortune before divorce proceedings were completed.

The two were found guilty of offering $25,000 each to two men to kill the 61-year-old Chicago kitchenwares manufacturer. Instead, the men went to Popeil with the information and became key prosecution witnesses.

After the first verdicts were announced, the panel resumed deliberations on a second count of solicitation of murder against Mrs. Popeil. Two hours later, it announced it had found her guilty of trying to get each of the two men to murder her husband.

The couple was acquitted of conspiracy to commit murder. Since the killing was to have taken place in Popeil's Chicago apartment, California's conspiracy statute was not violated.

Mrs. Popeil and Ayers were charged with trying to hire Robert Peeler, 35, of Long Beach, Calif., and Donald C. Reed, 49, of Cerritos, Calif., as the killers.

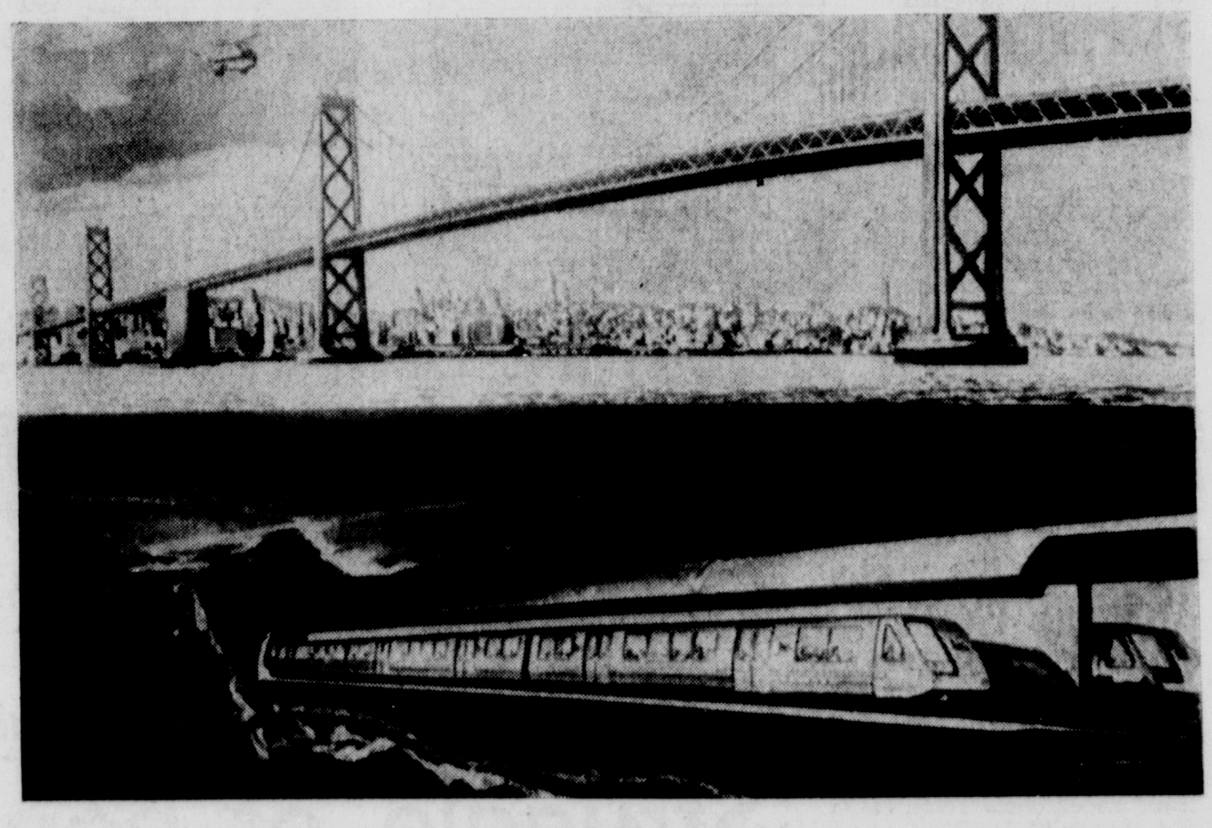
Motorcyclist hurt in crash with train

A Pomona man escaped serious injury Saturday when he fell off his motorcycle and was struck by a train.

Police said David Lee Stratton was traveling westbound on 9th St. in Pomona about 5 p.m. and braked his cycle to avoid the Southern Pacific train at the Chino spur. He managed to stop the bike, but the sudden braking caused him to catapult over the cycle into the train's path.



THE LAST LEG

The Oakland-San Francisco underwater link of the Bay Area Rapid Transit System was inaugurated Saturday. Artist's conception illustrates the sleek new transit cars traveling through the tube.

Dignitaries' train breaks down

Final link in BART completed

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The much-heralded Bay Area Rapid Transit signaled its completion Saturday with ceremonies—and a breakdown.

A federal official announced "a national love affair" with BART, which San Franciscans call it, as the final 3.6 mile tube under San Francisco Bay was opened.

Then the first train, 10 cars for dignitaries, broke down. "It had a flat tire," said a BART spokesman cheerily.

An electronic trouble light had indicated that a wheel on one car was worn on one side, causing it to go clankety, clank, he said.

BART officials said the wheel damage was caused by a parking brake which failed to release. Additional use of the car would have further damaged the wheel and the track, they said.

The train was taken out of service during a ribbon cutting ceremony at one of the stations. The dignitaries were crammed into the second of two trains provided, causing New York Mayor Abraham Beame and San Francisco Mayor Jose Alioto to ride through the transbay tunnel to San Francisco standing up.

Alioto, his usual ebullient self, smiled, "Soon we'll get the bugs out of the system, and today's event will be put into its proper historical perspective."

BART, produced four years behind schedule after almost endless troubles, is the first new urban transit system in the U.S. since Philadelphia's in 1907.

The 71-mile, $1.6 billion system, largest local public works project in U.S. history, was approved by the voters in 1962 as an answer to auto worship that backfired into crises of congestion, energy and smog.

In ceremonies enlivened by a banjo band and full of proud speeches, John E. Hirten, deputy administrator of the U.S. Department of Transportatioon, praised BART as an efficient, fast, depolluting system.

"This marks the beginning of a national love affair with BART," he told a crowd of 3,000.

BART's rattle-free trains with carpeted floors and bucket seats move along subways and sleek elevated trestles at speeds of up to 80 miles an hour. The system is fully automated, including the sales of tickets.

But BART's development was plagued by gremlins of inflation, construction delays, political controversy, strikes and technological bugaboos. Two weeks after the opening of the first section in 1972 one train went off the tracks into a sandpile.

The opening of the transbay tube—the key link between San Francisco and Oakland in a rail system forming a huge X—was delayed because the computer could not reliably detect locations of dead trains on the tracks.

A backup system has been developed to assure safety when the high speed trains eventually mingle at the main intersection at two-minute intervals.

BART, which was open to the public for the Saturday occasion, normally operates only five days a week because of a shortage of cars, certain to cause of lot of standing by passengers in the next few months. However, by next April BART plans to operate 20 hours a day, seven days a week.

Motorist hit by freeway sniper bullet

A 20-year-old Pomona man may have felt like some of the victims of a sniper near Indio two weeks ago, when he was shot in the hand Saturday while riding in a car on the San Bernardino Freeway.

Kenneth Penn of 1085 W. 11th St. told police he was riding in a car driven by his girlfriend on the freeway at Towne Avenue in Pomona when another auto pulled alongside him about 2 a.m.

The driver of the car allegedly rolled down his window, asked Penn, "What did you say?" drew a .38 caliber revolver and fired. The bullet bounced off the door on the passenger side of the car and hit Penn.

Earlier, Penn told officers, the suspect's car, a white and blue Cadillac, had followed his car closely, flashing high beam lights on and off.

Penn was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital where the bullet was removed from his hand. He was released in good condition.

The suspect, described as a man about 45 to 50 years old with a thin mustache and heavy build, was last seen driving westbound on the freeway.

A sniper killed three persons and wounded six others in a sniping spree on the same Interstate 10 in the Indio-Blythe area.

Nixon believes he's innocent, says Haig

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Nixon still believes he is "innocent of committing an impeachable offense" and felt that way even when he resigned the presidency, Gen. Alexander M. Haig said Saturday.

In an interview with UPI, Haig said all possibilities, including pardon, were discussed but in the end Nixon had two choices: "—to continue the fight for survival in office, recognizing the outcome was probably inevitable," or unconditional resignation "and that is what he chose."

Haig, who has been White House chief of staff for the past 18 months, will be leaving his post next week. In a few days his appointment as Commander of U.S. Forces in Europe and Supreme Allied Commander for NATO will be announced. The NATO nations have unanimously approaved his appointment, according to administration officials.

Haig confirmed published reports that his predecessor, H.R. Haldeman, who was forced to resign when the Watergate coverup began to unravel, tried to get Nixon to pardon him and other Watergate defendants.

Haig said that Haldeman called the White House on Aug. 7, the day before Nixon's resignation announcement, and asked to speak personally with Nixon, but the former President told him to take the call. Haig asked former White House lawyer James D. St. Clair to listen in on the telephone call, and later St. Clair asked Haldeman's attorneys to submit proposals for pardons of Watergate figures.

The Haldeman attorneys did so on Aug. 8, in the hours befcre Nixon went on the air to announce his resignation. One of the proposals would have linked amnesty for Vietnam draft evaders with a pardon for Watergate figures.

"Nixon thought the pardons would be the wrong thing to do, given his own situation," said Haig.

He also said that he "had heard" a report that another former Nixon top aide, John D. Ehrlichman, called Julie Eisenhower to appeal for her intervention to help him get a pardon.

Haig said Nixon had "compassion for everyone involved," but did not believe that he should grant the pardons.

Haig said he felt the country should now return to the task of solving its domestic problems, and added: "If the public attention is to be diverted to events of the past, however justified, then we are not taking advantage of this act of President Nixon to relinquish office."

Haig said he does not agree with those who maintain that historians will forever be confused because Watergater related charges against Nixon were not taken through the judicial process. He said that there was a voluminous record built by the Senate Watergate Committee and "in a brutal fashion" by the House Judiciary Committee."

"I think he feels and felt that mistakes were made but he doesn't believe he committed an impeachable offense. He still feels he is innocent of any impeachable offenses," Haig said.

As for himself, Haig said: "I have no regrets. I have no sense of apology." He called it "unfair" to say that he was the acting president during those final months. President Ford's former press secretary J.F. terHorst said in a newspaper column written for Sunday's papers that Haig was, indeed, the acting President for most of Nixon's final year in office.

The four-star general, who was promoted over more than 240 higher ranking officers by Nixon, said there was no question that he should take the post of chief of staff when Nixon asked him to, although he personally agonized over it.

"I don't believe professional public servants have the luxury of playing it safe when called on in times of crisis," he said.

Haig continues to deny that there has been any "friction" between Nixon holdovers and the men Ford has brought in to reshape the White House.

There were, however, strong indications that some of Ford's closest associates are trying to hasten the day of Haig's departure.

Haig said he knew he was the "last symbol" of Nixon power in the White House and that he is "a lightning rod" for criticism.

As for Ford's more freewheeling style, Haig said, "I couldn't be happier with it. I'm optimistic about the country —I think the country is fortunate to have Ford in office."

City council will consider boost in water rates

The Upland City Council will consider Monday a resclution to increase the water rates for the city.

For an average single-family home, the water bill, under the proposed resolution, will increase $1.75 per month. The average rate for a single-family home presently is $6.25 per month. The new average monthly rate will be about $8.00 per month.

The rate increase resolution, which is being offered by Acting City Manager Lee Travers, is designed to raise money to fund the bond service.

The new rates will take effect on Nov. 1, 1974.

In other business to be considered Monday evening, the Upland council will hear another request from the West End Drug Abuse Council (WEDAC) for funds for the 1974-75 budget year. Representatives of WEDAC have appeared before the council asking for support on two previous occasions. The group has requested $23,000 from the city to support its federally subsidized program.

Blacks, Boston officials seek way to end violence

BOSTON (U) — Black leaders and city officials met separately Saturday to decide what steps they might take to make a reality of court ordered school integration in Boston— frustrated for two days by rockthrowing and boycotts involving at first white students and then blacks as well.

The chairman of the local branch of the NAACP said a decision on requesting federal marshals to protect black children from jeering, stonethrowing whites would depend on whether the city could guarantee adequate protection by city police.

The city was calm Saturday after two days of tension and scattered violence.

At least 23 persons were arrested and another 21 injured Thursday and Friday as the nations oldest public school system began the federally ordered busing plan. Classes were scheduled to resume Monday.

As black leaders discussed the possibility of asking for federal marshals to quell the violence, Thomas I. Atkins, head of the Boston chapter of the NAACP indicated he would take up the question at a news conference scheduled for today.

More than 54,000 students attended classes citywide Friday, although in South Boston, focus of most of the trouble, officials said that only four per cent showed up. South Boston High was previously all white.

South Boston is a predominantly white Irish Catholic area, with a population of about 38,000. The demonstrators generaly have numbered between 300 and 500.

Whites stoned busloads of blacks in three incidents in the Hyde Park and Roslindale sections of the city. Six youngsters sustained minor injuries.

Officials said blacks threw rocks at a bus in which 30 white students were riding home from the Martin Luther King Middle School in Dorchester.

The City Hall information center said the black bus driver spotted a group of blacks with rocks and had the children lie down on the floor. The bus was damaged when the driver ran the intersection. The center said the youngsters were shaken but unhurt.

Pat suffers deeper than Nixon: David

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pat Nixon suffered the experience of her husband's resignation as president even more deeply than he did, according to son-in-law David Eisenhower.

Mrs. Nixon has remained unusually silent in the last few months during Nixon's anguished departure from office and their return to San Clemente, Calif.

"I think she feels the tragedy in even greater depth than he has," Eisenhower explained in an interview Thursday.

But, he added, "she always wanted peace" and seems to have found it back in her home in San Clemente.

Decision by oil nations will keep gas prices rising

VIENNA (UPI) — Agreement by the world's major oil exporting nations to hike prices was seen Saturday as assuring almost constantly escalating gasoline and home heating oil prices by tying future increases to the rate of inflation.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, whose 12 members produce 85 per cent of world oil imports, decided Friday to charge 33 cents more for a barrel of crude oil from Oct. 1.

Only Saudi Arabia announced it would not go along with the price hike, which OPEC said should come out of oil company profits and not be passed on to consumers.

The authoritative oil journal, Middle East Economic Survey, reported that the price boost may lead to Saudi Arabia reconsidering its attitude toward CPEC.

The survey quoted a prominent Saudi source as saying that while it agreed an increase in average government take was justified, Saudi Arabia felt strongly that the increase "should be coupled with a reduction in posted prices which would help the consuming countries."

The 3.5 per cent increase —to $9.74 a barrel —is equivalent to the predicted rate of world inflation during the last three months of the year.

An OPEC communique issued after two days of oil price talks said that starting next year the inflation rate would automatically be taken into account when fixing new crude oil prices.

Tenant, visitor injured in fire

Two persons were injured, one seriously, when fire gutted an apartment at 392 E. Alvarado St., Pomona, Saturday, causing damages estimated at $14,000.

Gary Guidinger, 26, an occupant of the apartment, and William Dunn, 19, of Temple City, who was visiting Guidinger, were taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital after the fire.

Dunn, who was pulled from the apartment by an unknown man, suffered severe smoke inhalation and was later transferred to Kaiser Hospital in Fontana. He was listed in satisfactory condition.

Guidinger was treated for facial cuts and released.

Three other occupants of the apartment, part of a four-unit complex, were not home at the time of the blaze, about 2:30 a.m.

Cause of the fire is unknown, and remains under investigation, officials said.

Cluster of five embryo stars found by Caltech astronomers

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A new cluster of stars in the great nebula of Orion has been discovered by astronomers using infrared technology, the California Institute of Technology announced.

The Cal Tech and Hale Observatory scientists said the stars are very young, probably less than 100,000 years and relatively close to earth, only 1,600 light years away.

The stars are invisible and cannot be studied by optical astronomers, but can be detected only by their infrared heat radiation, Caltech scientists said.

The embryo stars—five of them—were discovered accidentally by Jan Gatley and Dr. Michel Penston with sensitive infrared detectors attached to the Mt. Wilson Observatory's 100-inch telescope.

The two astronomers were measuring heat from visible stars in the region of the Orion Nebula, a glowing cloud complex in our own Milky Way Galaxy, that spans 26 light years.

After measuring the heat from the stars, the telescope was turned slightly to measure heat from the sky background. The difference between the two gives the true heat radiation of the star.

In this instance, the scientists said, they were surprised to find the sky temperature much hotter than that of the visible star. An infrared scan of the region revealed the five budding stars.

Ford to address U.N. General Assembly

Struggle of poorer countries

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The General Assembly's 29th regular session opening Tuesday probably will be dominated by the struggle of the world's poorer countries to get more aid from the rich ones, diplomatic sources said Saturday.

President Ford was scheduled to make his first major speech on U.S. foreign policy here Wednesday, taking the rostrum in the crowded Assembly hall about noon EDT.

Delegates from 138 countries will get down to consideration of a 112-item agenda —the heaviest ever on their desks at the start of a session —the following Monday.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will deliver another U.S. policy speech on the opening day of the annual general debate. Kissinger, in his second year as secretary of state, planned to spend most of two weeks in New York, conferring with foreign chiefs of other countries. He was not, however, expected to repeat the gala dinner he gave at the Metropolitan Museum last year to greet his fellow diplomats.

Immediately after electing its president for the year — scheduled to be Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika —the assembly will vote to admit Bangladesh, Grenada and newly independent Guinea-Bissau, formerly Portuguese Guinea, rasing the U.N. membership to 138 countries.

The Assembly ended last year's session without adjournment, technically remaining in session so that it could meet immediately in event of a new Middle East eruption. Reconvening proved unnecessary so the world body will meet briefly Monday afternoon to wind up its 1973 session, transferring the Middle East question to this year's agenda.

Although most of the perennial issues — disarmament, colonialism, Korea, Cambodia, terrorism, aggression and environment —appear on the agenda, the overwhelming voting strength of the "nonaligned" countries was expected to force major attention on the rich-and-poor disparities.

Last spring's special Assembly session approved guidelines "to eliminate the widening gap between the developed and the developing countries." Arising from the 400 per cent price increase by the oil producing countries, they included a number of principles endorsed by the richer, developed nations.

Among these were the right to nationalization of natural resources without compensation, linkage of commodity prices with the price level of industrial products cartelization of producer groups and assistance to liberation movements.

It created a special fund to provide direct aid to the needy countries, but efforts by secretary General Kurt Waldheim — who summoned a meeting for Sept. 27 to discuss the situation —brought little response from the wealthier countries.

Dozen are missing in flash flood

NELSON LANDING, Nev. (UPI) — A desert flash flood roared through El Dorado Canyon shortly before sunset Saturday and officials said more than a dozen persons were missing.

Nelson Landing is located on Lake Mohave, a resort lake formed by water backed up by Davis Dam on the Colorado River. The boat landing is located about 35 miles south of Las Vegas.

"All we know right now is that there has been a major washout at El Dorado Canyon and some persons are missing, somewhere between 10 and 15 persons," said a National Parks Service spokesman.

The flash flood hit shortly after 4 p.m. (PDT) and ripped through the canyon which narrows down to a width of about 150 feet lined by high canyon walls.

A restaurant store, about 10 cabins and a small trailer village is located at the boat landing where El Dorado Canyon meets Lake Mohave.

Las Vegas police said initial reports from witnesses in the area said a 65-foot wall of water roared through the Nelson Landing facility. Some structures were washed into the lake.

Man sought for theft of wallet

Ontario police are seeking a man with a bushy haircut who stole a wallet containing cash from a gasoline station attendant Friday night.

The theft occurred at the Sunland Service Station at 703 S. Euclid Ave. at 8:35 p.m. Friday when an unidentified man snatched a wallet from James Bass, 65, the station attendant.

The thief fled and disappeared, but police have been given a detailed description of him by a witness to the crime.

Man leads kin to safety; he, dog die in fire

Sam J. Abernathy, 35, Alta Loma, died Saturday in a fire at his home after he led his family to safety and returned to rescue the family dog.

Abernathy's wife and three daughters escaped unhurt from the blaze. The home is located at 8479 La Grande St.

Fire officials confirmed that the blaze originated in a stuffed chair located in the living room but were unable to determine the exact cause of the fire. Officials believe, however, that the fire started from a cigarette left burning near a chair. Abernathy and his wife had been in the living room watching television until 2:30 a.m. The fire was discovered at 5:45 by an unidentified person. Arson was ruled out.

Abernathy was found under the bed in the master bedroom with the dog by his side.

No estimate was available as to the amount of damage done to the house or its contents, but fire officials said the house was gutted.

School board to make decision on fence request

The Claremont Unified School District board Monday night will consider the matter of installing cyclone fencing on the new cinder block wall which stretches from Oxford Avenue to Indian Hill Boulevard and separates the Claremont High School campus from Cahuilla Park, the city part to the north.

The district has received a second request from the Claremont City Council that the fencing be added to the metal railing already installed "for safety reasons." The meeting will be held at 8:30 p.m. in room 106 at Claremont High School.

The district and City Council have been at odds as to what should go atop the 3½-foot wall which replaced the old rubble wall this summer. The council from the beginning favored a cyclone fence.

If the board approves the cyclone fence, district personnel will do the work.

A review of the elementary schools' different reporting systems to parents will come before the board for discussion.

The board will be asked to approve the continuation of the reporting system used by the Condit School. This will be the third year that Condit School has held two parent-teacher-student conferences, the first in October and the second in February.

Principal Lee Bashore said that the school is allowed eight minimum schedule days in October when parent and child meet with teacher to set goals for the year.

Bashore is requesting the board to grant five more minimum days in February, so that conferences may be more complete and meaningful.

A final written report, not a report card, goes home to parents in June.

Approval of a minimum day for Oakmont School will be requested.

The board will discuss proposed policies on requirements for new employes, salary schedule changes for certain classified employes, and changes in the district's smog episode policy, with adoption possible.

This film, "Mexico's Sea of Cortez," shows the water cradled between mainland Mexico and Baja, California, with its adjacent deserted beaches, pine-covered mountains, arid deserts and jungle estuaries.

Fowler photographed the Sea Gypsies who surf the Pacific, got close-up shots of nature's wildlife, and explored the underwater world in the Sea of Cortez.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — A prominent Republican strategist, Dr. Gaylord B. Parkinson, has been arrested on a sex perversion charge, police said Thursday.

Parkinson, 53, former Republican State Central Committee chairman and one-time national campaign director for former President Richard M. Nixon in 1968, was released on $500 bail pending a court appearance Monday.

Parkinson, an El Cajon, Calif., obstetrician who serves on the county Planning Commission, was credited with uniting a divided state Republican party during the 1960s and guiding it to a majority position in the legislature.

Parkinson was among 10 persons arrested Wednesday after a two-day stakeout of a Mission Valley department store men's room. About 30 other men had been arrested in the last month on similar charges in the same area.

Arrested in a separate case at the same location was James Ben Hom, 36, San Diego, chief deputy county assessor. He was charged with a misdemeanor.

10 years later

Russia's Brezhnev era: No one believed it would last, but it did

MOSCOW (UPI) — Ten years ago, there were few automobiles in the streets of Moscow, millions of people were crowded together in communal apartments and clothing was distinguished above all by its drabness.

Today, Moscow has its occasional traffic jam, new housing spills across the landscape and Soviet citizens dress more gaily if not always very fashionably.

These facts perhaps typify what has happened to the Soviet Union over the past decade. There has been gradual change and improvement, but not enough to catch up with the West.

The 10 years mark the first decade of what historians may come to call the Brezhnev era.

It was on Oct. 14, 1964, that the Communist party central committee abruptly cast out of office Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and installed a new regime headed by party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin.

A year later, the leadership became a "troika," with the accession of Nikolai V. Podgorny to the presidency, replacing the aged Anastas I. Mikoyan.

At first they were generally dismissed in the West as colorless mediocrities who probably would fall victim quickly in another power struggle. But they have endured, and the original assessments of their capabilities have had to be revised.

The policies of the troika, now identified primarily with the name of Brezhnev as he has assumed the dominant role, have been less adventurous than those pursued by Khrushchev in foreign affairs, and more geared to cooperation with the West.

At home they have tried, with mixed success, to stifle some of the liberal tendencies that came to the surface in the Khrushchev era. And they have continued to grapple, as Khrushchev did, with the seemingly insoluble problem of how to create an efficient, modern country within the framework of a Marxist economic system.

Perhaps the most striking change of the past 10 years has been the Soviet Union's fullscale development as a military behemoth. Embarrassed by the debacle of the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, the Soviet leadership undertook a crash program that has finally enabled the country to achieve its goal of catching up with the United States in strategic firepower.

The Soviets also have built one of the world's most modern navies, challenging the dominance of the United States in the Mediterranean and elsewhere.

With more than 3.3 million men under arms, from the China border to Eastern Europe, the Soviets also maintain the world's largest standing army.

Soviets can send Sputniks to the moon and build gigantic dams over untamed Siberian rivers, but they cannot produce a decent ball point pen.

All this has not been achieved without cost to the civilian economy.

The long-suffering Soviet consumer has seen his lot improve gradually over the past 10 years—but not nearly as much as it might if military spending did not soak up more than 40 per cent of the national budget.

The Soviet Union remains a land of economic contradictions. It can send Sputniks to the moon and build gi-gantic dams over untamed Siberian rivers, but it cannot produce a decent ballpoint pen, a good pair of shoes or enough meat and vegetables to give its people a varied and healthy diet.

The over-all visual impression of the Soviet Union is the same as it was 10 years ago. Despite vast resources, it remains in many ways a land of staggering poverty. Despite its rise as a mighty industrial power, it has not yet shed the attributes of a peasant society.

Forty-eight per cent of the population earns its living from the land, compared to five per cent in the United States. Outside the cities, Russia is primarily a land of unpainted wooden cottages, many without modern plumbing, of unpaved roads and of peasants still living in pre-industrial simplicity.

The economy was and is a mess. Soviet officials have not been able to overcome the problems stemming from lack of incentives and overcentralized management that are inherent in a Marxist system.

The average Russian sees how far the country has progressed from pre-revolutionary backwardness. The outsider sees how far it still has to go.

The modest targets of the five-year plans sometimes cannot be met.

But this picture can be overdrawn. And it does not accord fully with the perception of the ordinary Russian, who is fiercely chauvinistic. The ordinary Russian tends to see the Soviet Union in terms of how far it has advanced from prerevolutionary backwardness. The outsider may see it more in terms of how far it still has to go.

National income has nearly doubled in the past 10 years and is now equal to about two-thirds that of the United States. Since population has increased only 11 per cent in the same period (it now stands at 252 million), this indicates the average Soviet citizen has, in fact, never had it better.

Foreign trade has more than doubled post-Khrushchev, as has the government budget. New factories, some built with foreign help, are springing up all over the country. Vast oil, gas and mineral deposits have been found in Siberia, enough perhaps to make the Soviet Union the world's wealthiest nation by the 21st Century.

Low birth rate worries officials. Drugs are not a problem, but alcoholism is epidemic.

Family life is unstable. Better than one of every four marriages ends in divorce. The birth rate is worryingly low to Soviet officials, who feel a bigger population is vital to economic development. The population growth rate is less than one per cent a year, with the result that the Soviet Union increasingly is becoming a nation of old people. The able-bodied work force constitutes only 54 per cent of the population.

Drugs are not an important problem, but there is a virtual epidemic of alcoholism, as there was in Khrushchev's day, and authorities have had no success in reducing it.

Soviet cultural life has become more restricted than under Khrushchev, who personally sanctioned the publication of Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn's "One Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich," a tale of Stalinist prison camp life.

Literature has been shackled, with such major writers as Solzhenitsyn and Andrei Sinyavsky in exile. Abstract artists have been driven underground, selling their works only to foreigners, while "Socialist realism" prevails. In the world of ballet, where Russia was once supreme, some leading dancers have fled to the West because they were not allowed to experiment with new styles developed in the U.S.

The dissidents, including Jews seeking to emigrate to Israel, have never been numerous. But because of their wide support in the West, their impact on Soviet policy has been out of proportion to their numbers.

The Soviet response to the dissidents has been either to harass them, put them in insane asylums, jail them, forcibly exile them or allow them to leave the country.

Repression has been far less severe than during the Stalin era, but estimates of the number of prisoners held in the "Gulag Archipelago" o labor camps described by Solzhenitsyn range into the millions. Ordinary Soviet citizens are discouraged from befriending foreigners, are not allowed to travel abroad and are not permitted to receive Western newspapers or magazines except Communist ones.

In foreign policy, Brezhnev has practiced detente without the frequent lapses into adventurism that were characteristic of Khrushchev.

NINA KHRUSHCHEV, 74, leads a group of sympathizers including poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko, right, to the grave of her husband, Nikita, this week on the third anniversary of his death. It was Khrushchev who was toppled from power 10 years ago by the troika of Brezhnev, Podgorny and Kosygin.

Country club prison

Some Watergate offenders to Lompoc

LOMPOC, Calif. (UPI) — Donald Segretti spent his time here sanding and assembling furniture for federal offices.

So did Herbert L. "Bart" Porter Jr., the scheduling director for the re-election campaign of former President Nixon.

Herbert Kalmbach is working as a surveyor on a construction crew which is repairing the sewage treatment system.

And John Dean, when and if he arrives here, can have his choice of working on a farm, in a meat processing plant, on the grounds or even devote his time to improving his mind.

What the four men have in common is that they were caught up in the Watergate scandals and have, or in the case of Dean, probably will, spend time at the federal prison system's "country club jail."

There are no bars, no walls, no locks on the doors. Inmates live in either 32-man barracks or six-man rooms.

The correctional officers (''Please don't call us guards") are unarmed and they wear street clothes as they supervise the prisoners who work at various jobs.

Segretti, 32, served four months and 20 days of his six-months sentence for political trickery and Porter spent just under a month for lying to FBI agents about the Watergate scandal.

Kalmbach entered the camp quietly Aug. 2 to begin his 6-18 months sentence for violating campaign practice laws during the 1970 congressional elections and asked to be assigned to a surveying crew.

Kalmbach was returned to the Washington, D.C., area Aug. 30 for further testimony in Watergate-related trials.

Dean, former presidential counsel, has been sentenced to one to four years on one count of conspiracy to obstruct justice and defraud the United States and probably will spend much of his sentence here when he isn't testifying at various Watergate-related trials in Washington, D.C.

The camp here is one of 11 minimum security facilities in the nation, and to be assigned to any of them, prisoners must have no history of violence, no firearm or sex offenses and have less than three years to serve.

Such Watergate personalities as E. Howard Hunt, Egil Krogh and Jeb Magruder went to Allenwood in the rolling hills of central Pennsylvania and four of the original Watergate burglars, Bernard Barker, Frank Sturgis, Eugenio Martinez and Virgilio Gonzales, spent time at a camp at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., which has been dubbed "The Federal Hilton."

"Our evaluation after experimenting for 200 years was that physical punishment wasn't doing the trick . . . the ultimate punishment in our country is to deprive a person of his liberty . . . some were rehabilitated when theFBI knocked on their door."

The Lompoc camp is spread over 39,000 acres of open fields, farm land and stands of pine trees in the Santa Ynez Valley 55 miles north of Santa Barbara.

The camp's three-story, concrete buildings were built in 1947 and were used as enlisted men's barracks when the institution's medium security penitentiary a half mile away was a tight Army prison.

But it wasn't until 1970 that the minimum security portion began housing non-violent federal criminals.

Only a handful of the prisoners are white collar types such as the Watergate figures.

More than half of the inmates are drug offenders and another large percentage are illegal Mexican aliens, usually serving six months for immigration violations. The aliens account for most of the 10 to 12 "walkaways" each month and most of them slip back into Mexico less than 300 miles south of here.

In many ways, the institution looks more like a summer camp than a prison.

The grounds are spacious, the lawns well-manicured with scattered picnic tables and recreational facilities everywhere.

A jogging track circles a weedy football field and nearby is a golf driving range with a handful of improvised, grassless holes. There are handball and basketball courts, a doubles tennis court and a softball diamond. A volleyball court is not far from a gymnasium where inmates compete in basketball leagues with civilian teams from nearby towns. There are no away games.

On weekends, Mexican aliens turn out for spirited soccer contests.

Game rooms in each building have ping pong tables, weights, bumper pool, cards, chess and every type of table game.

The camp supports a one-room library and inmates can complete their high school education through the Lompoc Adult School or attend classes at the Allan Hancock Junior College extension at nearby Vandenberg Air Force Base or at the University of California at Santa Barbara. Studying counts as work assignment.

Inmates attend meetings ranging from black and Mexican cultural associations to Alcoholics Anonymous and on weekends can see feature films.

Visitors are limited to family and established friends on Monday, Thursday and Friday afternoons and all day Saturday and Sunday and wives and girl friends usually bring picnic spreads for their weekend visits.

BOnly a handful of prisoners are white collar types. More bthan half are drug offenders and another large percentage are illegal Mexican aliens.

Prisoners are allowed to cuddle and caress their wives and girl friends "as long as they don't become overly obscene," according to camp administrator Francis C. Ranger.

"But it is acceptable for a man to sit with his wife with his arm around her and kiss her.'

Ranger concedes that some of the picnic spreads may include such contraband libations as coffee royale but marijuana and other drugs are strictly forbidden and any prisoner caught with them is bound for a stiffer security institution and probably another federal charge.

Warden Frank Kenton acknowledges that the camp doesn't conform with the normal view of prison life.

"People come here and look at this place and say, 'My God, This is a prison'" he says.

And the answer is, yes, it is still a prison.

Seven times daily the prisoners must be standing by or sleeping in their bunk just to be counted. And there is always the awareness that they are confined.

"Our evaluation after experimenting for 200 years was that physical punishment wasn't doing the trick," Kenton said. "In fact, quite the opposite. It was worsening the offender.

"People visualize punishment as physical punishment, material deprivation," he said. "But the ultimate punishment that can be visited on a person in our country is to deprive him of his liberty."

There are no bars, no walls, bno locks on the doors To bsome it is known as "the country club prison."

"It doesn't matter how high the walls are of if there are walls at all. One of the most frustrating experiences in our society is knowing you're confined, whether in a cage or imaginary boundaries."

Escape from Lompoc is not difficult but Kenton isn't concerned that any of the Watergate figures will walk away.

"There are some people who are committed to our care who were rehabilitated when the FBI knocked on their door and said they were under arrest," he said.

Idaho penitentiary

Infamous prison to become tourist site

By DONNA WIENCH

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Cold gray walls held old western gunslingers captive in a prison that tourists soon will pay to enter.

When state officials began planning for the construction of a new prison, it looked like the century-old Idaho State Penitentiary would fall prey to bulldozers and progress.

The land, in the capital city's northeast corner could be sold for housing developments, lawmakers said, to supplement the state's permanent building fund.

But Arthur A. Hart, director of the Idaho State Historical Museum —a man with imagination and an eye for history'— had another idea.

"When I first got a look at the old prison, I was so impressed that I knew it had to be preserved."

"When I first got a look at the old prison, I was so impressed that I knew it had to be preserved," said Hart. He launched his campaign to save the facility in 1969.

Hart envisions a leather store in what used to be a prison work shop, a fine restaurant in the old prison library, or perhaps, a square dance hall in the former plumbing factory. He believes the area could be developed in a fashion similar to Seattle's Pioneer Square or Larimer Square in Denver.

The possibilities are endless, Hart says, and so are his ideas. Hart and other state government officials involved in planning the 330-acre site would like to see it preserved as a state historical park. In addition to commercial development, recreational and cultural possibilities are under consideration.

Plans for the prison grounds, once patrolled by Warden Rube Robbins, who was the southern Idaho version of Dodge City's Wyatt Earp, will be developed in the coming year under a $50,000 matching grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Water from the 178 degree natural hot springs, which heated the prison and was used for the prison laundry, could fill an Olympic-sized swimming pool. Picnic facilities could be developed among the prison's spacious grounds, and athletic fields are a possibility.

Penitentiary lands extend much beyond the prison walls. The area's restricted use caused it to remain as a refuge for wildlife. Eagles, sparrows, and the western rock chuck, and less often coyotes, foxes and deer can be seen in the area.

The prison was built by the hands of former tenants with names like Diamondfield Jack Davis, a convicted killer, from rock quarried nearby. Paths inmates made in bringing the stone from surrounding foothills can be developed into nature trails, Hart says.

The prison inmates once conived, fought and died trying to free themselves from, will be open for public tours in September.

Paying visitors can see the gallows, death row, the dungeon and two buildings gutted by fire during a prison "disturbance" standing amid rose gardens and flower patches.

Tours will be taken through "the cooler" and "Siberia," maximum security penalty cells, where prisoners were kept as late as 1969 when then Gov. Don Samuelson ordered them closed.

The cooler was maintained for those committing lesser infractions against prison policy. They were confined individually to small cinder block cells, each with a hole in the ceiling for ventilation and light, and another hole in the floor which served as a toilet.

Siberia was a step down. Cells were less than three feet wide and a little longer than a coffin. A six-inch hole in the ceiling provided ventilation. Prisoners in siberia slept on the cement floor with one blanket and were allowed outside once a week when they were showered.

Suprisingly few obscenities are among the siberian wall graffiti left by the former inmates. Most statements are philosophical or religious in nature with many cries for "help" etched into the walls.

Tours planned for maximum security cells known as "Siberia" and "the cooler." Architecture there is compared to Renaissance Italian.

One prisoner, Butch Jones, who spent at least 66 days in siberia during the summer of 1966, wrote on the wall: "A man is born with both his feet upon a road and he must travel this road to the end. This is the end."

But Hart assures us that the area "won't be just a chamber of horrors."

"If you hadn't been locked in there it was really quite beautiful," Hart said. "The architecture is quite handsome." He compared the stonework to Renaissance Italy.

Hart believes by preserving the area "history would come alive." It would be educational and make people face up to things they wouldn't normally face up to —the criminal justice system in America."

Although Hart is a dreamer, he also is a realist. He knows that funding for the project and he would like to see it developed will have to come from private enterprise.

Investors developing the area will be supervised by the state, which will have final say on what does and does not become part of the complex —and Hart will keep a watchful eye out to see that the historical integrity of the old Idaho State Penitentiary is not abused.

IDAHO PRISON — Door which separated men's and women's quarters will be part of scenic walk through old penitentiary when state alters abandoned complex into tourist attraction.

Garbageman, ditch digger

Moonlighting college head

HAVERFORD, Pa. (UPI) — One hot day this summer in Rockville, Md., a tall, attractive man, dressed in the work clothes he was using as a garbage collector, knocked on the door of a home and asked for some ice water.

"The woman said 'no, and closed the door," Haverford College President Dr. John R. Coleman recalled.

"Another just stripped me naked with her eyes and said there was no way she would let me in her house,' Coleman said during an interview in his modestly furnished office on the Haverford campus on the suburban Philadelphia Main Line.

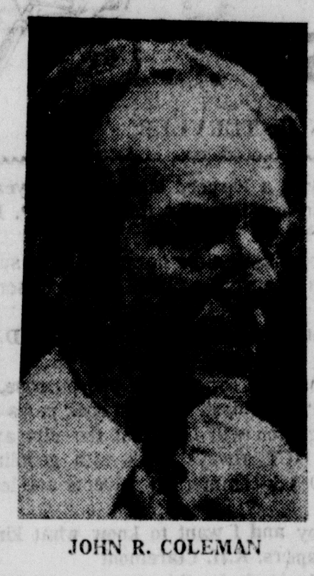
For the past two summers, Coleman, 55, a somewhat shy, but friendly man who is also chairman of the board of directors of the Federal Reserve Bank in Phiadelphia, worked as a ditchdigger, dishwasher, salad and sandwich man in a restaurant and finally as a garbage collector.

"Now, when I eat out I have to look at every club sandch somebody orders to inspect it."

This was the second summer that Coleman worked as a garbage collector, the job he liked best mainly because of the physical exercise and because it was outdoors. It was also the job which had the most obvious impact on Coleman.

"You do exaggerate your importance as a college president," he said. "You're accorded an awful lot of respect whether you are a good college president or a bad one.

"It's exactly the opposite on the garbage job. They don't care whether you're a good garbageman or a bad one. There's a certain amount of abuse and contempt that goes with it."



JOHN R. COLEMAN

Coleman added, "When I came back here I felt refreshed, just very, very refreshed. I came back all charged up even though I had put forth a tremendous amount of physical effort. A whole lot of things were cleared out of my head. I had a new perspective on things."

Coleman drew national attention in 1973 when he started the unusual "moonlighting" recounted in his book, "Blue Collar Journal," now in its fourth printing.

In this book, Coleman tells how he was afraid looking for the jobs, since he had not told anyone what he really did for a living and all he had to offer was that he could start immediately.

"I only knew I had a compulsion to prove myself," Coleman said. "I needed to have somebody, somewhere say, 'Yes, we want you. Any pride I had in the job I do as president or anything I did before didn't mean a thing then. I still had to prove myself in that environment without any of the trappings I have back here."

Coleman, a labor economist who has written several books on that subject, started in Atlanta in the summer of 1973 as a ditchdigger.

His next job was in Boston where he worked two hours as a dishwasher before being fired, an incident that still irritates him since his employer never told him why he was dismissed.

The college president, jobless and despondent about being fired, stayed in Boston and eventually worked as a sandwich and salad man in a restaurant there.

"You do exaggerate your importance as a college president. You're accorded an awful lot of respect whether you are a good college president or a bad one."

"Now, when I eat out I have to look at every club sandwich somebody orders to inspect it," he said.

He spent the remaining two weeks of the 1973 sabbatical as a garbageman in College Park, Md.

"SICK STOMACH OK NOW"

Says Mrs. Ruiz, " Ihad stomach trouble mucho malo. It used to burn like fire and I couldn't eat anything without terrible pains. I was so nervous I could hardly think. Then my brother told me to see Dr. Wing, and after a few weeks I was much better. Soon I was well enough to stop all treatments and it is now 10 years ago and my stomach and nerves are fine."

Bicycling tips . . .

By JOHN W. TERVEER

Q. We are considering buying a 10-speed bike for our 9-year-old son. Do you think he can handle a bike this size? D.P. La Verne

A. Yes. Thy make 10-speeds in all sizes nowadays. I'm sure you will find a bike that will be very suitable for your son's needs.

Q. What is a good solvent to clean my bike parts in? D.T. Claremont

A. There are many solutions you can use for this purpose. I have found that gasoline works the best. You can soak parts in it overnight. In the morning, you will find that the dirt and grease will wipe right off. BUT always work with gasoline outdoors; NEVER indoors. Other commercial solvents are less effective, but safer.

Q. I'm going to be paperboy and I want to know what kind of rack to get to carry my papers. R.H. Claremont

A. There is a rack especially made for this purpose. All bike shops carry this for about $9. Just ask the dealer for a paperboy's rack.

Q. I am in search of my own original design frame. Where would I go to purchase the tubing necessary for a light weight bicycle? M.D.W. Claremont

A. I would suggest that you buy either Reynolds 531 or Columbus tubing. Most bike shops carry these brands but you may have to order it. Make sure you talk it over with the dealer so your frame turns out right.

(John Terveer welcomes questions from readers. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Cycling, c-o Newsroom, Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 2708, Pomona, Ca. 91766.)

Antique wise

An early Coleman

By DOROTHY HAMMOND

Q. I will appreciate anything you can tell me about the brass lamp shown in the enclosed photo. It was made by the Coleman Company. Its brass fount — originally nickel-plated — measures eight inches in diameter, with a capacity of three pints of fuel. All of the other parts shown are new, including the frosted globe. Mrs. C. W. B.

A. W. C Coleman of Wichita, Kansas, patented his first lamp in 1901 It was known as the "Efficient Lamp" which burned gaslone under pressure, producing a brilliant, safe light. By 1920, the firm was producing 50,000 lamps in a variety of styles each month. Your lamp was produced during the late 1920s, and the style number is CQ329.

Q. I would like to know the value of my grandmother's old iron muffin pan. The cups are very flat and shallow. There are three cups on each end, with two in the center section, making a small center. At one end there is a handle for hanging, in addition to an extended foot which makes the pan slant sharply when placed on a flat surface. No one has been able to tell us much about this piece, so we would like to have your thoughts about its usage. Mrs. D. McG.

A. You have a rare type muffin pan used in the fireplace. The extended foot was used for balancing the pan when the front portion rested on an andiron. If in good condition; your muffin pan is worth about $45.

GOLD: Ownership legal Jan. 1 for first time since 1933

NEW YORK (UPI) — History books some day may record a new "gold rush" in the mid 70s in the United States to rival the one in the middle of the last century.

But instead of wrinkled prospectors leading pack mules into the rugged fastnesses of California, this one may consist of men and women in modern dress queueing up before bank windows and precious metals shops to get their supply.

This new gold rush will be legal as of Jan. 1, 1975, under a measure signed by President Ford Aug. 14, less than a week after he took over from former President Nixon. Under it, Americans will be permitted to own and trade yellow metal for the first time since 1933 when President Roosevelt imposed the gold ban. The Gold Reserve Act the following year required them to turn in their gold holdings, including gold coins, except those with numismatic value. To hold even as little as two ounces was unlawful and risked imprisonment. However, enforcement of the law was lax, and of the estimated $490 million in gold coins then in circulation, more than half were retained illegally and sold abroad years later at a profit.

Some precious metals dealers expect a tidal wave of buying once possession of gold is made legal again. But how long it will last is something else again.

"Initially, many Americans lured by the magic of the word alone will head for the gold counters," Otto Roethenmund, executive vice president of the Deak-Perera group says. He didn't expect it to last. "The curiosity, the novelty, soon will wear off."

This also was the feeling of C.L. Andes, president of the Franklin Mint, world's largest gold minter. He said he didn't expect the demand for gold to equal that in France where virtually every citizen has his own piece of gold put away in a vault, in a sock sewn into a mattress, or some other hiding place.

Artistically, gold is the most desirable of metals. It can't be destroyed, doesn't tarnish easily, is quite flexible. An ounce of it can be hammered into a thin sheet covering 100 square feet or strung into a thread 50 miles long.

Practically, the attraction of gold, as well as silver, is not difficult to understand, especially in times when the paper currencies of nations are under pressure, as some are today. Gold and silver are the "noble" metals, the "hard" money whose value has been recognized and accepted for centuries. They are what people recognize as protection against inflation and planned economies, which decrease the value of paper money.

The average U.S. householder with his gold "treasure" would have to deal with the problem of security for it. Presumably, few would be willing to keep an appreciable amount of it socked away in a hiding place at home. Thus, they would want to store it in a bank deposit box or elsewhere—an added expense.

Some feel the demand for gold will revitalize the U.S. gold mining industry. One is California Congressman Harold Johnson, who quotes a U.S. Bureau of Mines estimate that U.S. gold ore reserves total around 400 million ounces.

Some abandoned gold mines in the West were reworked when the price of gold began rising on the free market last year, but many mining experts feel the cost of gold mining these days is almost prohibitive.

Once gold possession in America becomes legal again, the price of the yellow metal should take off.

This seems to be the considered opinion of the experts.

For more than a century after 1800 the monetary value of an ounce of gold was $20.67. The Gold Reserve Act of 1934 combined with an international agreement set the price at $35 an ounce.

With the end of World War II, the United States was virtually choking on gold. Much of it came from wartime Allies in partial payment of war debts.

In January, 1973, the free market price of gold stood at $65 an ounce. Its price rose and fell in subsequent months, then capped a steady rise this year until it reached $180 in April. Currently the price range at Zurich and London, the two main centers, is $155-$160.

Many gold experts feel the price is headed for the $200 level before the end of the year. New York investment counselor Don McSahne foresees a "buying panic" late this year, with the metal possibly reaching $275 next year. James Dines, another investment counselor who has been trying to persuade investors for years to put their money into shares of gold mining companies, thinks the price will hit $400 next year.

The Franklin and Royal Canadian mints already have embarked on advertising campaigns for customers. Franklin says it received thousands of queries following an ad it ran on gold coins.

Brokerage firms also will cast nets for gold buyers. Samuel Weiss & Co., a New York Stock Exchange member firm, has won approval from NYSE officials to sell bullion to investors. Bache & Co. has been selling bullion to industrial users for some time and plans to offer it to clients.

Lawrence H. Heim, a monetary expert, suggests anyone who wants to "physically possess" gold should concentrate on low premium gold coins. Anyone buying small bullion bars should make sure they carry the imprint of such reputable refiners as Engelhard, Handy and Harman, Mocatta Metals and others. And buy only from reputable dealers, who can easily be checked with the Better Business Bureau.

The bullion and coin markets will attract the curious and small buyers seeking protection against inflation, but gold futures markets will lure the big speculators looking for a financial killing.

For someone who has a yen for gold but disdains the legal and commercial paperwork involved in acquiring it, the metal is his for the asking in many areas of California, Nevada and other parts of the West. This is "placer" gold—nuggets and flakes which originate in lode sources and are washed down with dirt and rocks through erosion into local creeks and rivers.

All this 20th Century prospector needs is a pan, a small shovel and a pill bottle to carry the flakes—Total cost: $5.

Little local impact

So far the fact that gold will be legal to own beginning Jan. 1 has hit Pomona Valley residents with little impact.

Banks are not preparing for a huge surge of buyers and speculators.

Investment brokers say it is too early to tell what effect adding gold to commodities will have.

Retailers dealing in gold prospecting equipment note no significant increase in sale of gold panning equipment.

What the impact will be after Jan. 1 is not known.

Almost two generations of residents have grown up under a system in which it was illegal to own gold and remember nothing about the use of gold coin or gold certificates prior to 1933. That will change after Jan. 1.

Gold panning and placer sifting now is limited mainly to hobbyists locally.

Two likely panning spots within easy driving range of the valley are almost any spot along San Gabriel River above Azusa in San Gabriel Canyon and along the stream behind Mt. Baldy near Cabin Flats.

Dry panners have their pick of almost any location on the Mojave and Colorado Basin deserts. An expert on this method operates a mining museum in the semi-ghost town of Randsburg northwest of Victorville on Highway 395. He also sells equipment for recovering gold from dry placer.

Hundreds of mines dot Southland mountains and deserts. But the amateur should not dash blindly to the boonies with pick and shovel.

Laser beam to rescue

IMPERIAL BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The Navy's only combat search and rescue unit has successfully tested a laser system which could revolutionize procedures for finding persons lost at sea or in other remote areas.

"This could literally move night search and rescue operations out of the dark ages," said Lt. (j.g.) Rick Quinn of Helicopter Squadron 7 at Imperial Beach Naval Air Station.

Presently night search missions depend a great deal on luck. Helicopters are equipped with hover lights, which illuminate the area under the aircraft, and a spotlight under the nose.

They must fly slowly, about 55 mph, and low, about 90 feet above the water. Quinn said the lights cause night blindness because of their brightness and vertigo because they eliminate points of reference over the ocean.

Especially critical is a case where the victim is found and a swimmer drops from the helicopter to rescue him.

"A typical night rescue operation of this type can take 30 minutes," Quinn said. "Attempting to hover 25 or 30 feet above the surface can be a real problem when you have no source of reference."

The laser beam was developed at the Naval Weapons Center at China Lake.

A common dye marker used by downed pilots produces a yellowish-green blotch when mixed with sea water. It also fluoresces in sunlight and is easy to sight from aircraft overhead. This is fine for the day but does nothing at night.

Dr. Richard Hughes discovered that a nitrogen laser beam fluoresces the same marker material at night.

This not only makes discovery easier but protects the victim in that the invisible ultraviolet light source will not injure the eyes of the person being rescued.

Using the laser, a helicopter can fly at 500 feet at 100 miles an hour and cover a 30-square-mile area each hour, Quinn said. He estimated the system has a 99.8 per cent probability rate of finding a downed pilot or lost boater.

A crude version of the system was tested at Imperial Beach, but the laser unit weighed 600 pounds and took up too much space.

Hopes were to design a compact unit weighing about 100 pounds which also could withstand jarring.

"We proved that it works," said Dr. Hugh Hunter, head of the research department at China Lake.

The project has been idled, however, as Hughes was sent to Washington, D.C., for a year and no funds for future development were made available.

Hunter said the Coast Guard has shown interest and the Federal Aviation Administration would like to impregnate the dye in lightweight, foldable panels in aircraft for night land or sea rescue, but only the future will tell whether the system will be developed or whether it will remain in limbo.

Hawaiian building cacaphony

HONOLULU (UPI) — Tourists seeking peace and quiet in famed Waikiki have been pounded out of bed, tormented on the beach and jolted in restaurants by the din of concrete driven into the ground.

Instead of the sounds of gentle surf lapping on the sand or tropical birds greeting the day, visitors for months have been awakened by the "whomb-bonk" of piledrivers, huge smoking machines smashing steel hammers into long concrete piles.

Although it may be of little consolation to the tourist who traveled all the way to Hawaii to spend his vacation with frazzled nerves and fingers in his ears, some relief may be in sight for vacationers in the near future.

The piles, scheduled to be driven until October, are the beginnings of a complex of twin 40-story hotels, shops, restaurants and convention facilities to be known as the "Hemmeter Center." Developer Chris Hemmeter is considering flying noise-reducing equipment here from New York to reduce the clammor reverberating through Waikiki.

About 45 times per minute, the steel hammers of the three piledrivers have been slamming into the concrete. The pounding from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. has been an unwelcome and persistent vacation companion since mid-June.

Although construction noise, particularly from piledrivers, is a continual complaint of Waikiki tourists, this time the racket stems from a prime location right across the street from the beach and near many popular shops, restaurants and tourist attractions. Weary visitors in nearby hotels have found that even closing the windows in their air - conditioned carpeted rooms won't block out the bedlam.

There is no state law dealing with industrial noises in Hawaii, and the comprehensive zoning code permits construction and demolition jobs to go on as long as it is daylight out.

But Hemmeter announced he was "more than willing to make the necessary investment to muffle the sound" after it was revealed the racket was approaching the danger levels for an unprotected person exposed to it for long periods of time.

James Morrow, environmental health director of the American Lung Association of Hawaii, measured the noise using calibrated sound meters and found most readings showed 80 decibels and greater, levels where damage can occur to hearing.

He said construction workers next to the machines were exposed to sound levels exceeding federal standards for unprotected workers, but no workers were using hearing protection the day Morrow visited the site.

Although Morrow said tourists were not close enough or exposed to the sound long enough to hurt their hearing, he added, "It's terrible for people coming here on a vacation to get this."

Hemmeter talked with state noise consultant Dr. Iwao Miyake who recommended a system consisting of a device placed over the pile driver and a pad for the hammer area, costing about $2,000 each and available in New York.

"This equipment would reduce the noise about 50 per cent," Miyake said, explaining that pile drivers are necessary in Waikiki because the subsoil consists of a series of coral beds separated from each other.

"If the coral beds collapsed," Miyake said, "the building would go.

Underwater photography do's, don'ts

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

One almost surefire way to spot a tourist is by his camera. Hardly anyone goes anywhere these days without at least one.

And that goes for skindivers, too.

Last year, an estimated 1.5 million Americans donned scuba gear to discover the ever-changing wonders of the underwater world. Countless others went exploring just below the surface with mask and snorkle.

More and more are reported to be taking along cameras. For contrary to popular opinion, underwater photography is not exclusively for the well-heeled professional lensman.

The average skindiver, in fact, can spend as little as about $30 for a Kodak pocket Instamatic camera encased in an equally inexpensive waterproof plastic housing. Watertight housings for various still and movie cameras also are made by several manufacturers at relatively low prices.

Underwater photography has its own set of rules. It's an eerie world where light is always changing, where pictures can be affected by a myriad of conditions—the angle of refracted sunlight, clarity of water, depth and subject distance, bottom color and turbulence.

So here are some basic information and other helpful tips from the experts at Kodak:

— Light plays perplexing tricks beneath the surface. Objects will appear to be closer than they are. Apparent distance is what counts below. A normal lens will function like a telephoto; a wide-angle lens like a normal lens.

—Underwater "feet" are only nine inches long. Thus, to include everything you want in the shot, you must be a little farther away than you'd be topside. Since refraction affects your eyes the same way it does the lens, judging distance should not be a great problem. Underwater photographs are, on the whole, best made at a distance of four to six feet. Beyond 10 feet, shapes are blurred.

—Color intensity drops off in direct proportion to depth and subject distance, with the predominantly blue-green color of water acting as a filter. As the diver swims deeper, colors are absorbed—first red disappears, then orange, then yellow. Below 100 feet, the world turns murky blue.

—Most amateur underwater shots are taken at depths of five to 30 feet. In shallow water you can photograph with available light using a film with an ASA 64 rating.

—The amateur photographer should begin with the simplest underwater camera he can find. The more automatic, particularly in terms of film advance, the less chance for leakage under pressure below, since each adjustment lever means another opening in the housing.

A final word of caution. Approach the underwater world with respect for its possible dangers. Never use scuba gear without checking and instructions, never dive alone. Avoid sharks, barracudas and moray eels. Steer clear of jelly fish and sea urchins. Coral can be sharp and inflict painful cuts and other skin abrasions.

Little levity backfires on chairman

HILO, Hawaii (UPI) — County Council chairman Robert Yamada tried to inject a little levity in a discussion of a proposed dog leash law, but it backfired on him.

Yamada held up a picture of a nude woman on a leash and jokingly proposed that "women should also be kept on leashes."

Women quickly took umbrage,and Yamada was besieged with protests from members of the opposite sex who charged him with being a sexist male chauvinist.

The chairman later tried to soothe the protesters by apologizing publicly

Private colleges thriving despite slump elsewhere

By ROBERT DASELER
P-B Staff Writer

While many colleges in the United States are suffering from declining enrollments — and consequently from reduced income — La Verne College and the five undergraduate Claremont colleges are enjoying full enrollment this year and apparently continue to be popular among high school seniors with respectable grade averages.

For the past two years national magazines have chronicled a decline in enrollment at colleges across the country. While overall enrollment in institutions of higher education has continued to increase, most of the growth has been in two-year community colleges. Private four-year colleges, which experienced a boom period during the 1960s, have in many cases found that they cannot fill their freshman quotas, and several have been threatened with financial failure.

But the private undergraduate schools in the valley — Claremont Men's, Harvey Mudd, Pitzer, Pomona, Scripps and La Verne—do not appear to be adversely affected, although all six report that applications for admission have decreased since 1970, a record-setting year for applications at all six colleges.

Pitzer College, the newest of the Claremont colleges, had 700 applications from high school students seeking freshman status this year and 150 transfer applications. The school will have 235 freshmen entering in September.

Scripps, a four-year liberal arts college for women, has 165 entering freshmen this year, and this is a normal-sized entering class for Scripps. According to Marilyn J. Blum, director of admissions at Scripps, the college received about 500 applications from which to choose its freshman class.

Emory Walker, the director of admissions for both Harvey Mudd and Claremont Men's colleges, says that enrollment at both schools is full and that all available space in dormitories is taken. Harvey Mudd received applications from 500 students this year, while Claremont Men's College received applications from 900.

Harvey Mudd, which specializes in mathematics and science and competes for students with Caltech and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has 160 in its freshman class this year. The freshman class at Claremont Men's has 285 students.

At the largest of the Claremont colleges, Pomona, which has a total enrollment of about 1,300 students, Director of Admissions John Quinlan says that his school has a housing shortage and that it has no difficulty attracting bright students. Like the other colleges, though, Pomona has seen a decline in the number of applications from a peak of about 2,000 in 1970 to 1,550 in 1974. The freshman class at Pomona has 360 students this year.

Perhaps more significant than the number of applications for admission which a school receives is the percentage of students accepted by the college which decides to attend that college. Since most high school seniors apply to more than one college, and many high-ranking students are accepted at more than one college, not all of the students accepted by any college will decide to attend it.

According to Quinlan, about 45 per cent of the students accepted by the admissions board decide to attend Pomona College. Miss Blum says that the acceptance rate at Scripps is fairly steady from year to year at 55 per cent. At Harvey Mudd and Claremont Men's the figure is about 45 per cent in both cases, Emory Walker reports, and at Pitzer the figure is 43 per cent.

In each school the admissions board plans for a freshman class of a specific size, but all of its plans may be thrown off by a sudden shift in the acceptance rate. Harvey Mudd College accepted 340 students this year, hoping for an entering class of 150, but 160 students decided to attend the college. At Claremont Men's 600 students were accepted and the acceptances by accepted students ran as predicted, giving the school 285 entering students.

Coin dealers and collectors from around the country try to determine the authenticity of coins.

Coin men learn how to outwit con men at seminar

Cal Poly session helping collectors, dealers deal with growing problem of inflation era

Fifty men and women from throughout the United States put in 10-hour days Friday and Saturday, and will put in eight hours today at Kellogg West, Cal Poly learning to identify conuterfeit coins.

They are collectors and dealers and are enrolled in the third California Numismatic Educational Seminar. Their instructors are experts in the field.

Public demand for gold and silver coins as a hedge against inflation has created a lucrative market for counterfeiters, explained Maurice M. Gould of Tustin, seminar chairman.

"The counterfeiters are making profits into the hundreds of millions of dollars and their work is becoming very sophisticated," said Gould, author of a syndicated column titled "Coin Roundup."

"Identification is becoming a very serious problem. That's why these men and women are here."

Coin counterfeiters are not unique to the U.S. They may be found in nearly every country of the world, said Gould. Counterfeiters in Lebanon are turning out fake coins that are very sophisticated, he added.

People in the United States are investing millions of dollars in gold and silver coins. The U.S. Treasury Department reported it is illegal not only to fashion counterfeit coins, but also for individuals to hold them.

This Corona Austro-Hungry coin is a fake.

So, to protect themselves against financial loss and to stay within the law, the dealers and collectors in the country literally line up to be taught coin identification, Gould said.

At the Cal Poly seminar, the 50 who enrolled (and many were turned away) spent their time listening to lectures and looking at coins through microscopes while listening to tapes which explained what was being viewed.

On Saturday, they moved into coin grading in determining the condition of an authentic coin. They were taught to properly clean coins.

Today they start at 7:30 a.m. with breakfast and continue to 4:30 p.m. with class work.

The instructors are Virgil Hancock, of Bellaire, Tex., a past president of the Organization of International Numismatists (OIN) and the author of a column titled "Fakes N Fakers." Hancock is known throughout the world for his efforts to further the education of collectors and dealers.

Also, John Hunter of Harper Woods, Mich., a life member of the American Numismatic Association (ANA) who works constantly to overcome the hazards of counterfeit coins.

And, Col. Robert Kriz of Merritt Island, Fla., who teaches ANA courses in unmasking counterfeits and altered coins.

Kriz is an alumnus of the Kennedy Space Center where laboratory examination has been made of U.S. coinage.

Serving with Gould on the seminar committee are William O. Wisslead, president of the California State Numismatic Association (CSNA); Charles G. Colver, president of the Convention of International Numismatics (COIN); Walter H. Dittrich, treasurer; Prof. Theodore Weissbuch, numismatic researcher and a Cal Poly instructor; William Holberton, Gordon Z. Greene, Jean Gould and Elizabeth L. Wisslead.

Seminar sponsors are the CSNA, the OIN, NASC and COIN. Fees are $90 for in-residence participants and $65 for nonresidence participants.

City urged to acquire 3 park sites

The La Verne City Council will be asked Monday night to consider acquisition of three potential park sites, including a 60-acre parcel north of Pomona.

The suggestion is coming from the Parks and Recreation Commission, which has been seeking additional open space throughout the city.

The 60 acres are located in the foothills north of Garey Avenue. Ray Kaldenbach, director of parks and recreation, says owners of the land would donate 20 acres to the city if the city bought the other 40 acres for $200,000 plus $40,000 in back taxes.

Because the area is barely accessible and is without water, Kaldenbach says that if the city bought it, the land would be left as open space for the present. Later, he said, it could be developed for camping, hiking and equestrian use.

The commission is suggesting that the council call a joint session with all of the city's commissions to discuss the proposal. Kaldenbach says that although the commission now has about $120,000 in its treasury, that money has been earmarked for other projects.

The commission is viewing with much more enthusiasm a proposal by the Bonita School District to turn over nearly four acres of surplus property next to the Roynon school to the city for development as part of Los Flores Park.

The acquisition would increase the size of the park by one third. Kaldenbach says the city could use the land to develop an adult softball area and a soccer and football field.

A third parcel offered to the city by the state does not have the approval of the commission because it is too small, and would be too costly to improve.

The 1.6-acre lot is located on Base Line Road east of Bunnelle Avenue, and the state wants $18,000 for it. The land was acquired by the state several years ago, after its last owners forfeited it on back taxes.

"We're simply offering possibilities to the council for the acquisition of additional land," Kaldenbach explained. "The school land would cost us nothing, and we'd love to have the 60 acres if we could find the money for it."

But he said the state parcel would only be suited to the development of a mini park and that would be too expensive.

Honorary degree awarded to Lyon

Dr. E. Wilson Lyon of Claremont, president emeritus of Pomona College, was awarded an honorary degree at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y., at recent ceremonies.

Lyon received an honorary doctor of humanities degree.

Crisis volunteers to hear D.A. aide

James Cramer, assistant district attorney for San Bernardino County, will discuss the rights and responsibilities of telephone volunteers when he addresses members of the Suicide and Crisis Intervention Service Wednesday.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. in the Founders Room of Harper Hall at Ninth Street and Dartmouth Avenue in Claremont.

Cramer also will suggest ways in which his office can assist both the caller and the volunteer, especially in such areas as drugs, child abuse, sexual behavior and domestic problems.

He will explain how a volunteer can reassure callers that they will not be prosecuted for the information they give the volunteer.

The SCIS is a free 24-hour confidential telephone service for those who need to discuss their problems with someone. The volunteers are trained by mental health professionals. Persons interested in the work of the prevention center are urged to telephone Dr. Howard Schuman at 985-2504.

Demolition of fire-damaged hotel on Council agenda

The Pomona City Council will hold a hearing Monday night to consider the demolition of the old Pomona Hotel on the Pomona Mall at Thomas Street.

The hotel, with a history dating back to 1875, has been vacant since July of 1973. The structure was heavily damaged by fire last February.

The fire caused about $100,000 damage to the 30-room building and it has been declared structurally unsafe.

The property is owned by Park Investment Co.

Another agenda items for the 8 p.m. meeting include an ordinance establishing a 10-day holding period for items purchased by pawnbrokers and second-hand dealers.

The council will also consider an application for an on-sale beer and wine license by the operators of the Pasta Pushers Restaurant at 1490 Village Lane.

First reading of an ordinance setting out conditions necessary for granting variances to the Zoning Ordinance will also be given.

The council will hold a hearing to consider the demolition of a substandard dwelling at 1131 S. Park Ave.

Four recommendations from the Merit System Commission and City Administrator will be presented dealing with the job specifications for cultural arts coordinator, tree foreman, manpower program technician and police cadet.

Opinion

Is Armageddon deterrent enough?

Not love of peace but fear of war—nuclear war—has maintained East and Wet in uneasy coexistence since 1945.

Not the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nor the presence of American troops in Europe but the sure knowledge that any war that began conventionally would end in a mutually destructive nuclear exchange has kept the Soviet Union within the borders it advanced to at the end of World War II.

Yet we talk as if Hiroshima and Nagasaki had never happened, as if there were not hundreds of nuclear-armed intercontinental missiles on both sides, implanted in underground silos or carried on submarines roving the seas, perpetually targeted on the major cities of both sides.

We talk as if the Third World War, should it happen, would be a repetition of the Second—fought with infinitely more sophisticated weapons to be sure, but essentially a war of army against army, of tank advances along invasion routes, of struggles to win supremacy in the air, of mobilization and deployment and logistics and lines of supply.

A staff paper recently published by the Brookings Institution warns that the Soviet Union is geared for a "high-velocity offensive" aimed at overrunning Western Europe before the West can be mobilized.

We are told that the Cyprus crisis has placed the status of American bases in Greece in jeopardy and that the loss of these bases would create a dangerous weak spot in the southern flank of the defensive ring holding back the Soviet.

Strategists alert us to the peril posed by Russia's burgeoning navy and her development of new fighter aircraft. America's security, and hence that of the Free World, we are told, depends upon maintaining a military establishment second to none, both our own and that of our allies, even those that are dictatorships.

The Brookings Institution paper charges that our forces in Europe are set up for a long war against the Soviet Union, which is only a little more difficult to credit than the paper's own argument that any war would be a lightning, but altogether conventional, affair.

It is logical to assume, of course, that should the Soviet Union be so foolish as to launch a non-nuclear invasion of Western Europe or a thrust through a weakened Mediterranean flank, the West would initally attempt to meet it with a non-nuclear reply.

But is it conceivable that the West would accept defeat in a conventional war—would allow victorious Soviet armies to march into Bonn or Paris or Athens, to sink America's Mediterranean fleet, to seize the oil fields of the Mideast—and still withhold nuclear retaliation?

Or, conversely, is it conceivable that the Soviet Union would permit its armies to be thrown back and see those of the West invade Eastern Europe and not bring its awesome nuclear arsenal into use?

Granted that a totally disarmed West, the lack of even token opposing military forces facing the Communist East around the European and Asia perimeters, might tempt Kremlin warhawks to try a military adventure here or there, ala Hitler, in the belief that such a peace-loving opponent could be pushed pretty far before he reached the extremity of resorting to nuclear war.

A credible Western defense, serving as a "trip wire" for a nuclear Red Alert but strong enough to make any conventional invasion costly and doubtful and with enough reserve power to contain a conventional war until men came to their sanity, thus makes sense as far as it goes.

But the only real guarantee of peace in the world—peace meaning the absence of a shooting war between the United States and the U.S.S.R.—is, as it has been for nearly three decades, the certain knowledge in Moscow and Washington that any war between them would be nuclear.

Memories wallow on

It may all be water over the gate to most weary Americans, but historians, and certainly future Americans, are going to be "wallowing" in the subject for generations to come. The way things are going, they will have whole libraries devoted to it.

The first issue of "Bookletter", a new review published by Harper's Magazine Co., lists a partial Watergate bibliography of 46 titles. Those swelling the "W" card catalogue file include:

"Watergate by the Numbers," "Watergate: Chronology of a Crisis," "Watergate and the White House," "Watergate: Crime in the Suites," "Watergate Hearings," "Watergate Portraits," "Watergate, the View from the Left," "Watergate and the Myth of American Democracy" and simply "Watergate."

Interested researchers will also find such intriguing titles as "Fireside Watergate," "Watergate Cookbook," "Watergate Follies" and something called "Watergate Girls."

That's just the W's. Other titles include biographies of Richard Nixon, Sen. Sam Ervin and other Watergate personalities, examinations of the impeachment process and the doctrine of executive privilege, the Agnew scandal and the constitutional and historical implications of Watergate in general.

This is not even to mention all the memoirs that are expected to come nor the thousands upons thousands of pages of government documents, such as the White House tape transcripts and Judiciary Committee hearings.

Hijacking, murder on the high seas

WASHINGTON — Millions of dollars worth of drugs are being smuggled into the United States through vicious "yacht-jackings" that have left murdered crews in their wakes from the Bahamas to Hawaii.

The new breed of heroin and marijuana smugglers commandeer yachts on the high seas, slay the occupants and then use the pleasure craft as contraband cutters. After a few fast runs, the boats are scuttled and new ones hijacked.

The unknown war against these organized drug pirates is the subject of a secret memorandum prepared by House Coast Guard subcommittee chairman John Murphy, D-N.Y., for the full Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

Based on interviews in Florida by Murphy's staff and hundreds of pages of government documents, the report says "since 1971, there has been a sharp increase in the hijacking of yachts and other pleasure craft privately owned by U.S. nationals.

"Literally hundreds of boats and hundreds of owners and crews have disappeared in the Southeastern Atlantic, the Gulf of Mexico, along the Pacific Coast and in Hawaii. The great bulk of the victims were actual or suspected targets of drug smugglers."

So intense is the fight against the traffickers that the United States has obtained permission to spray Jamaican marijuana fields with Vietnam-style defoliants and Coast Guard boats now raise a "Cannabis flag"—a green "pot" leaf on a white field—after a major seizure, according to the Murphy report.

Among the many cases detailed in the report, the seizure by drug pirates of the racing sailboat Kamillii is the most bizarre. Hijackers boarded it at Honolulu and dumped the three crew members 140 miles at sea in a life raft without food or water. Luckily, the castaways were picked up by an Italian freighter.

A Coast Guard C-130 spotted the stolen craft and ordered it back to Honolulu, but the racing yacht made for Tahiti. The Coast Guard cutter Point Corwin, armed with machine guns, intercepted the Kamillii and subdued the heavily armed hijackers.

"During interrogation, the three hijackers confessed they were taking the yacht to Thailand to pick up a load of heroin," the Murphy report recounted.

More tragic is the Caribbean coast of the Imamou, a $60,000 yacht whose skipper took on two unknown crewmen and made for the Panama Canal. The ship never reached its original destination. The Coast Guard heard reports that the ship without its captain, had docked in Pointe-a-Pitre, Guadalupe reportedly for a load of dope.

According to State Department cables in our possession, the two itinerant crewmen were "understood to be wanted in France for homicide and narcotics." Murphy's probers found that when the uncle of the Imamou's owner sent a private eye to Central America to run down the case, he was murdered. The case is still open.

The grim Murphy report is relieved by one slapstick tale.

"A Fish and Wildlife agent was recently patrolling the Everglades at night trying to catch alligator poachers," begins this report. "An approaching light aircraft made a pass at the agent who thought it was his spotter plane. He flashed a signal."

But the pilot of the plane was a smuggler and thought the Fish and Wildlife man's little putt-putt was a hijacked drug boat signaling for the dope drop. So the smuggler-pilot "shoved two 200 pound bundles of marijuana out the door which hit the agent's aluminum boat and sunk it." The agent escaped, but caught no alligator poachers that night.

One of the most celebrated missing-at-sea cases, that of bandleader Cy Zentner, is now being classified as a narcotics "Yacht-jacking." The suave musician's beautiful 54-foot trawler-yacht, the Saba Bank, "disappeared in March of this year out of Nassau, a hot spot in the world of yacht hijacking," says the Murphy report.

"Drug enforcement officials say prior to his departure there were suspicious and known drug types 'hanging around' Zentner's yacht," the report continues. "Because of the unusual circumstances surrounding this disappearance, it is considered a drug hijacking."

Although cases have turned up on the Pacific, the Coast Guard and Drug Enforcement Agency are concentrating their planes and ships at present in the Caribbean, the major trouble area.

Working out of the U.S. Navy Base of Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, the American antidrug forces have been joined in the fight by swift craft from Mexico, Cuba and Jamaica. The high-speed Cuban and Mexican launchers are armed with 37 mm. cannons.

In terse analysis of areas where police and diplomatic efforts are needed to halt the new wave of piracy, the Murphy report says, "stolen, high speed boats bring contraband from buys made in ports in Venezuela.

"These speedy craft make several runs and deliver caches in the Virgin Islands to Martinique, Tobago, Barbados and Trinidad. The drugs in large quantities are then transferred to large hijacked U. S. boats out of the Bahamas. The swift short run boats . . . make one to three deliveries and are then sunk."

The stolen trawlers cost the smugglers nothing and are untraceable. The only cash outlay is for the drugs. The hijackers can lay out $45,000 for drugs which they can resell for over $500,000.

With a profit margin like that, even such "cannabis flag" seizures as were made recently by drug officials off Florida can be written off.

Increasingly, now, human life is also being discounted. The Murphy sleuths found that two young New Jersey girls, two Miami brothers and a "playboy" were all shot to death near Key Largo, Fla., a few weeks ago. The "playboy type known to be involved in narcotics was found shot in the head and chest with a shotgun and wrapped in chains and a canvas shroud 50 yards off Key Largo Shores," said the report.

Although the report says "the case is still open," Murphy's gumshoes have been informed by police that the quintet were probably killed because they had witnesses the landing of illicit drugs from a yacht.

In his report to the Merchant Marine and Fisheries committee, Murphy says, "U. S. boatmen should know they may lose their boats, and their lives (in) hiring unknown pick-up crews." Murphy suggests the committee hold hearings to lay out "the obvious warning signals."

FOOTNOTE: While the Murphy report says Cuban gun launchers are cooperating to end the drug traffic, responsible Cuban sources in Miami have another story. They say Castro Cuban boats with commissars aboard, have been selling drugs and Havana cigars to some U.S.-based Cubans who meet them on the high seas. The purpose: to get needed dollars for Castro.

Just in jest

What with the prices of soft drinks skyrocketing 20 to 30 percent during the past 12 months, it's getting so a lot of our young folks are no longer going to be able to afford to maintain their membership in the "Pepsi Generation." Actually, now that a 6-pack of soft drinks costs more than a 6-pack of beer, a lot of them are beginning to shout "Discrimination!" And when, on top of all that the price of chewing gum jumps to 15 cents a package, it's no wonder our children are becoming more and more convinced that we old folks no longer have what it takes to run the world.

In a country that not only sanctions X-rated motel rooms but also coed dormitories in colleges, it should come as nor surprise that the United States Army is also considering getting into the anti sex discrimination act. When present preliminary plans are finalized, the new slogan for that branch of our armed forces could well be: JOIN THE ARMY AND LIVE IN COED BARRACKS.

RALPH NOVAK

America rises from the ashes

Yes, kids, it was back in the 20th century that the Great Smoking Civil War occurred and almost destroyed humanity.

It all started out pretty quietly, when the people who didn't smoke began to complain about the ones who did. They found out that smoke hurt their lungs so they started asking people to stop smoking in elevators and buses and restaurants. Soon everybody was running around yelling how they would rather fight than switch.

Then the nonsmokers went on the offensive. They began carrying around atomizers filled with garlic juice. Whenever they saw someone smoking in public, they squirted him.

The smokers retaliated, however. They began to smoke more aggressivly and tried as hard as they could to puff enough to fill up every elevator they rode on. And if they could personally blow some smoke in the face of anybody carrying a garlic juice-filled atomizer, they were heaped with honors and free cartons of cigarettes.

The smokees then escalated by carrying fire extinguishers and covering anybody who even dared light a match with foam. That prompted the smokers to begin smoking two or three cigarettes or cigars at a time so they had a better chance of keeping one lit, no matter what. Their motto became "Every Cloud Has a Silver Lining" while the smokees began distributing bumper stickers that read, "Smoking Is the Root of All Evil."

It was hardly any time before two political parties developed around the controversy. The Pink Lung Party vowing to make smoking punishable by life imprisonment, drew up a campaign plank promising to exile all smokers to New Jersey and made "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" their anthem. The You Only Live Once Party, on the other hand, said the solution was to set aside reservations for nonsmokers—preferably in Antarctica—and pledged to make tobacco the national flower.

That led, of course, to secret raids on cigarette factories and counter-threats to infect the nation's air conditioning systems with old butts. It seemed inevitable that a battle of attrition would set in and sap the nation's strength until even the Upper Voltans could come in and take over if they wanted to, and could see their way through the smoke.

But then at the last moment a U.N. mediator happened to offer a lemon drop to leaders from both the smokers and the smokees. The smoker leader suddently found something that tasted good, could occupy his hands and could be consumed with a certain amount of flair once you got into it. The smokee found he had something in common with the other side after all and noted that you could even ride an elevator with someone eating a lemon drop and never know it unless he elbowed you in the ribs while reaching into his pocket.

Thus was a fattening but clear-aired peace restored, to the sound of crinkling cellophane and people politely saying, "Not at all," when others asked, "Do you mind if I have a lemon drop?"

Friday, the 13th, too

September has quite a few things going for it.

Labor Day, the 160th anniversary of the writing of our national anthem, The Star Spangled Banner; Alf Landon's birthday anniversary (remember "As Maine Goes so Goes Vermont"?); this year the Foreman-Ali heavyweight title fight way off in Zaire (where Zaire's a will there's a way); the beginning of World War II in 1939 as well as Japan's surrender in 1945; the 200th anniversary of the convening of the first Continental Congress; the approval 185 years ago of the Bill of Rights, Constitution Week, and so on.

It also brings us the first of this year's two Fridays the 13th.

With the way the world's been going, with all the wackiness in life, the far-out experiments and activisms of today's youth — or at least yesterday's — the unlucky 13th doesn't attract quite the attention it used to.

So if black cats and broken mirrors, and looming ladders don't bother you, have a good day!

Lumberjacks break in boots painlessly

Here's a way the lumberjack gets a perfect fit in his new boots. Before ever working in them, he fills them with water to soak overnight. Next morning, he puts them on wet, wears them all day, letting them dry to the form of his feet. Then he softens up the leather with a little bear grease. And their excellent new shape never changes thereafter.

Children not beaten in Red China; state schools do most upbringing

This is Ann Landers, reporting from The People's Republic of China as a member of the American Medical Association's delegation.

When I asked a group of physicians how they handled the battered child problem, they looked at me quizzically. "What do you mean?" I was asked. I explained that in our country some parents become so angry with their children that they beat them unmercifully and the child must be hospitalized. The doctors were stunned. "We have no such problem here," replied Dr. Woo. "The neighbors wouldn't allow it!"

It became obvious early in our trip that China's major asset is her healthy, bright, highly motivated children. As the twig is bent, so grows the tree, and we saw the skillful manner in which those little twigs were being bent. You can bet the rent their "trees" will grow up straight and strong.

The first school we visited was a nursery for children from three to six years of age. Almost all parents work six days a week, so the children spend only Sundays at home. The cost is about eight American dollars a month for room, board, education, and medical care.

The sleeping quarters were neat as a pin (dormitory style) the classrooms immaculate, the children bright-eyed, well-dressed (no uniforms) and extremely friendly. "Hello Uncles and Aunties," they chanted (in Chinese) as we entered. We were given seats and invited to observe.

"Today, we will sing a song," announced the teacher, an attractive woman who appeared to be about 30. "The song is about a little girl who was sent to the store to buy some eggs. The little girl noticed after she had left the store that the clerk had given her one yaun too much in change. She returned immediately and informed the clerk of his mistake. Chairman Mao tells us it is wrong to take anything that does not belong to us. He says we must always treat others as we would want to be treated." The children sang the song with boundless enthusiasm.

The second lesson was "Pick the Best Solution": "A little boy was on his way to school. He saw three red, juicy apples under a tree. The wind had blown them to the ground. What should he do? Should he keep the apples for himself? Should he take them to school and share them with his friends? Should he leave them there and hope the owner of the tree would find them? Or is there a better solution?"

One little girl about five years old raised her hand and said, "I think the boy should write a note, saying, 'These apples fell from your tree,' and place the note with the apples on the windowsill of the house. He should not sign his name because Chairman Mao says, 'A good deed done in secret has twice the value.'"

"Very fine," the teacher nodded. "Are there any other solutions?"

A small boy raised his hand and spoke up in a voice so loud it startled us. 'I think it would be best," he said, "If that boy took the apples to the police. We have been told that when we find something that doesn't belong to us we should give it to the police because that is where people always go when they lose things."

The teacher agreed that his solution was also good. She then asked the children to stand and repeat the moral of the story: "It is wrong to keep anything that does not belong to us. We must do everything we can, no matter how small, to serve the State. Every honest act helps our country and makes Chairman Mao proud of us."

Would I want my grandchildren to be raised in The People's Republic of mind if they could go to school there China? No, I would not. But I wouldn't for a year or two.

ERMA BOMBECK

Answer to sibling rivalry arrives

A prominent psychologist recently announced that due to the economy, the emphasis on overpopulation, and working mothers, there has been a cutback of children and we are entering the era of the Only Child.

Do you have any idea what the impact of that statement is? It means there has been a breakthrough in Sibling Rivalry. That's right. Someone has finally come up with a cure for it—the one-child family. I don't know why our generation never thought of it.

Imagine. No more having to cut a maraschino cherry into four equal pieces. No more trying to convince your younger son that hand-me-down boots are neither male or female. No more taking a number at mealtime to talk.

With each addition to our family, we tried to explain how wonderful a brother or sister would be, but they never bought it. Few children do. We used to have a neighbor child who treated his smaller sister like chopped spinach. His disgust for her culminated when he dragged her to school one day for Show and Tell, shoved her before his classmates and said, "This is my sister, I told you she was dumb."

All three of my children pretend to be an only child. Their hostility often isn't even subtle. One used to set the table for four and when I'd ask where the other plate was she'd say, "Is HE still here?" (referring to small brother).

"Yes, why?"

"How long is he going to stay?"

"Through dinner or until I can get his plumbing on automatic—whichever comes first."

Somehow, I can't imagine what it would be like to sit down at the dinner table and not have the rivalry, the competition, the clashing of the three of them over what my husband and I refer to as the War of the Catsup.

"Look at him. He's using all the catsup."

"You'll have your turn, so bug off."

"Hah! There won't be a 'turn' after you're finished. Mom! He's wasting it."

"I couldn't help it. It came out all at once."

"Mom! Why do you let him pour catsup in his lap and play in it?"

"He's the baby, haven't you heard?"

"So get another bottle."

"There isn't any more. You are a hog."

"Mom! Make him put some back in the bottle."

"MOM! MOM!"

I wonder how you raise a child with his own bottle of catsup without spoiling him.

WORLD OF ANIMALS

Don't equate alertness with ears

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: In the litter we picked Pancho from, some of the puppies had floppy ears and some had erect ears. Pancho has erect ears. We picked him because he looked more alert. Now we're not sure whether we should have picked one with floppy ears. How do you know which to pick? — P. T.

Dear P. T.: True, the erect-eared puppy would tend to look more alert. Did you make the right choice? Probably so, particularly if you love him and he's a happy, healthy puppy. However, if Pancho's a purebred, then it would depend on his breed, i.e. if a chihuahua, then certainly those alert ears fit. If he were a bassett hound, erect ears would present an incredible appearance, to say the least. With some breeds the ears are erect only when cropped. (Since I personally don't favor this type of surgery, I'd rather see such breeds as Danes and Dobermans with floppy ears.)

DEAR DR. MILLER: I got Clarence Cogswell, a chinchilla, in a trade. To keep him healthy I want to be sure he gets some real sunlight whenever we have some. But with his coat, I don't want to overdo it. — T. W.

Dear T. W.: Clarence Cogswell can do without sunshine very well. Direct sunshine isn't that great for his coat anyway. Besides, C. C. would sun himself only briefly before becoming overheated.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Tommy Twinkle Toes was the only survivor in a litter of five kittens. He's bright, alert and looks good. Except he's the clumsiest kitten I've ever seen. He has trouble walking a straight line. He drinks nothing but milk. His jumping, up or down, is a disaster. He can't jump up any higher than a very low chair, and coming down it's a three-point landing — front legs and his chin. Maybe I've forgotten, but shouldn't a ten-week-old kitten do better than that? I'd say he was behind the door when the brains were passed out. Except he's not dumb, just clumsy, Is this part of his being the only kitten? Will he stay clumsy? — D. D.

Dear D. D.: "Tripple T" was "behind the door when the brains were passed out." Death's door, that is. The cerebellum was apparently damaged during his fight for life (with probably a viral infection.) If Tommy's no worse in the time you've had him, then there's some hope he may acquire additional ambulatory skills with time. It's unlikely, though, he would ever be as agile or coordinated or fleet-footed as the average feline.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Do hemlines follow the economy?

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Economists generally now believe that what we have been having in this country is either recessionary inflation or an inflationary recession.

"How can this be?" cries the confused layman. How can the economy go up and down at the same time.

Some economists say this and some say that, and some say miniskirts are causing economic irregularity.

According to the hemline theory of economic fluctuation, skirt lengths rise in boom times, fall when times are hard.

By that rule, hemlines should now be reflecting the drop in auto industry profits, the stock market plunge, the decline of the Gross National Product and other signs of economic downturn.

Instead, as we know, miniskirts have remained very much in evidence.

The common assumption is that the miniskirt has been kept aloft by abnormally high inflation, which prevents hemlines from following other economic indicators downward.

Here, however, the old-chicken-and-egg conundrum presents itself. Do hemlines follow the economy or vice versa?

At least one prominent economist, Dr. John Maynard Limbscale, is coming around to the latter view.

Limbscale is convinced that Herbert Stein, former White House economic adviser, was wrong to blame inflation on the people's unwillingness to accept tax increases.

He insists the unwillingness of women to wear long dresses is responsible.

"Short skirts are associated in the public mind with prosperity," Limbscale said in a recent interview.

"Thus miniskirts undermine President Ford's efforts to persuade the public to help fight inflation through self-restraint.

"People hear government officials urging them to exercise moderation in wage demands, price increases and personal spending lest runaway inflation lead to a depression.

"But the legs they see on the street reassure them that prosperity is still at hand. So they go on living it up like there's no tomorrow."

But another prominent economist, Adam S. Thighbon, offers a different explanation of the apparent contradiction between high skirts and the economic skid.

It is Thighbon's contention that the hemline's role as an economic indicator has been rendered inoperative by the introduction of pants suits.

"The switching back and forth between short skirts and long pants makes it impossible for a definite trend to set in," Thighbon says.

"As a result, inflation and recession occur simultaneously."

Common-law couple can get record of marriage

Some time ago I read in a newspaper of a place where you could go to obtain a marriage license legally without taking the blood test or the test to determine whether you are immune to German measles.

This place is in San Diego but I don't know exactly where.

The arrangement is for the benefit of any couple who have been living together in good faith as husband and wife for a number of years.

If you know such of any place in San Diego or elsewhere, I would appreciate knowing about it.

My common-law husband and I have been living together for 10 years. We would like very much now to have a marriage certificate.

If we could find a place where we can get a license without the tests it will be better for us. — L. F., Pomona.

You need not leave Pomona to arrange your marriage but the necessary form must be obtained by your minister, not you.

It is called the Confidential Record of Church Marriage. It can be obtained at the county clerk's office.

Filing this record costs $5, which the minister collects.

This procedure is advocated only for a couple who have been living together for some time and particularly where there are children.

Obviously, most couples are better off to obtain health certificates. This safegurads their health and the health of the children who may result from their marriage.

In July we subscribed to Let's Dine Out at $7.50 per year. There is a money back guarantee if you are not satisfied.

When we received the membership card, we discovered it was valid through Jan. 2, 1975, meaning we were paying for less than half a year.

We immediately sent a memo to the firm to cancel our membership, saying we might sign up again early in 1975 to take advantage of the full year.

We have not received a reply. — J. H., La Verne.

Connie Belger, office manager of Let's Dine Out, says she couldn't locate your memo.

If you wish a refund, she stated, you must return your complete unused membership, which includes your plastic membership card, card case holder, restaurant directory, bonus book, admissions book and Las Vegas book.

Or you may exchange your 1974 membership for the 1975 program by returning your complete membership.

I am appealing for help for my mother and father.

My father is dying of a rare disease and is trying to get my mother, brothers and sisters out here from the East.

He had to come out first to get his disability payment transferred here.

My father's weight is down to 90 pounds and is going lower. Because of constant worry he doesn't eat.

We found the family a house but they need furniture: bunk beds for my brothers, beds for my sisters and a bed for my parents; a table and chairs, and living room furniture.

My father had to sell all the family's furniture back home to get money for the fare out here.

My mother is not well. She has arthritis of the spine and it is difficult for her to get around. My husband and I just came out here and are staying with my aunt until we can get on our feet so we are unable to help much.

My father knows he dying and wants to get the family settled before it happens.

We want to try to get the furniture and to get the house set up before they get here Tuesday. Anything your readers can help with would help my father rest a little easier —L. G., Pomona.

Because time is so short, we are giving your phone number, 628-5909.

You told us there are five children—three boys and two girls——coming from the East with your mother.

Private colleges alive, well

While they all have full enrollments, each of the Claremont colleges has seen changes in the statistical evaluations of its entering students. In Caremont and across the country one of the criteria for judging applicants, the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), has recorded a steady though gradual drop in the scores of high school students who intend to go to college.

The SAT consists of two tests, one designed to measure what is called verbal ability, the other to test mathematical ability. On each of these tests the highest possible score is 800, so that the highest possible combined score is 1,600. In 1964 the average combined SAT score for an entering freshman at Pomona College was 1,340. In 1974 the average combined SAT score has dropped to 1,250.

Aptitude test scores running lower than 10 years ago but officials not alarmed

Quinlan is not particularly alarmed.

"We test the value of the SATs on the basis of the performance of our own students," Quinlan says, noting that academic achievement in high school is approximately twice as accurate as an indicator of performance in college. Quinlan points out, also, that the program of recruiting and admitting minority students has tended to lower the average SAT scores for freshman while leaving the median scores relatively stable.

"The changes in quality of an entering class by the crude measurements we've got haven't varied much," maintained Emory Walker with regard to both Harvey Mudd and Claremont Men's. Average SAT scores and averaged grade point average are not calculated for entering classes at these colleges. However, Walker points out, only about 25 per cent of the freshmen at Harvey Mudd earned scores lower than 700 in math on the SAT. About 75 per cent of the freshmen at Harvey Mudd scored above 600 on the verbal SAT. About 85 per cent of the students at Harvey Mudd were in the top tenth of their classes in high school.

At Claremont Men's College, according to Walker, half of the freshman class was in the top one-tenth of their high school classes, and about half of the entering students scored above 600 on the verbal SAT. Scores in mathematics at Claremont Men's College are usually higher than scores on the verbal test. Walker emphasizes, however, that 15 per cent of the freshmen at Claremont Men's have an SAT score in the 400s.

Walker does not want high school students with low SAT scores but respectable grade averages to be discouraged from applying to Claremont's Men's College.

The cost of an education at any of the Claremont colleges has escalated rapidly and awesomely, but at the same time the sources of financial aid to needy students have become increasingly generous. In 1974 any California student with demonstrable need could claim $2,500 in aid from the state, and in Claremont each of the schools has a financial aid department to augment the state scholarship when necessary.

At Claremont Men's College the tuition is $3,000 per year plus $144 in fees and room and board costs. At Harvey Mudd the tuition is $2,900 with $336 in fees. Scripps College charges $3,000 in tuition, $125 for fees. Pomona charges $3,100 total for fees and tuition. The tuition at Pitzer is $3,050 with $190 added for fees.

According to Walker, the high tuition costs are necessary in order to pay faculty salaries. At none of the schools, however, does the money raised by tuition charges meet the financial need of the college. Each of the Claremont colleges has proven to be successful in raising money from private donors.

Tuition costs soar, yet financial aid also edging up

Walker says that he senses an increasing disaffection with higher education among high school students. "Not enough to make college not worthwhile," he adds, "but enough to make the price look higher." He believes that this disaffection partially accounts for the national phenomenon of declining enrollments and applications at four-year liberal arts colleges.

Many students, Walker believes, who would have applied to colleges if they had been high school seniors four years ago are now considering technical or vocational education as an alternative to a liberal arts education.

Quinlan seems to have a similar opinion about the prevailing trends in students' attitudes toward college. Ten years ago, Quinlan observes, a liberal arts education was not an impractical means of preparing to make a living.

"You could always find a job as a teacher if you didn't know where else to go," he says.

But today there is a surplus of teachers and a difference in attitudes toward the liberal arts education. Learning a marketable skill is now more important to a large number of students than studying for the mere pleasure of learning.

Three and a half miles away at La Verne College, the undergraduate academic program is supported both by fund-raising efforts and an innovative extension course system which turns a profit for the school. La Verne College offers off-campus professional training and academic courses at four military bases and other locations outside of La Verne—outside, even, of the United States: one field studies course sponsored by the school is being conducted at a military outpost on the South Pole.

With more than 4,000 people enrolled in field studies courses at diverse locations, La Verne is able to raise enough money to expand its on-campus undergraduate program which, like most undergraduate programs, is a money-losing operation.

The in-coming freshman class this year at La Verne will have 210 students, according to Leland Newcomer, the colleges unorthodox president.

Like the colleges in Claremont, La Verne had a bumper crop of applications for admission in 1970, and, again like the Claremont schools, it experienced a decline in applications after 1970.

But this year La Verne received a record number of applications for freshman positions, 455. It accepted 330 of the 455 applying students, and of that 330, 210 students have indicated that they will attend La Verne College when it opens on Sept. 16, giving the school an acceptance rate of 63 per cent.

Students changing attitudes toward liberal arts . . . most trying to gain a marketable skill

Newcomer admits that La Verne College does not maintain the academic standards of Pomona College and that La Verne accepts many of the students whom Pomona has rejected.

"There's a place in the world for a college which serves a different class of students than Pomona serves," Newcomer asserts.

He adds: "We measure our success in the achievement of students after they've been here, not the height of their grade-point averages when they enter."

Newcomer says that 41 per cent of the entering freshmen have a grade-point average above 3.0 and that the average is 2.97. The average SAT score for freshmen at La Verne College is 950, a total of the average verbal and average math scores. About five per cent of the students admitted to La Verne do not meet the academic requirements of the school, Newcomer points out, noting that he considers it the responsibility of the college to give an opportunity to some students who have done poorly in school previously for one reason or another but have a desire to apply themselves and to work for an education.

La Verne College was founded by the Church of the Brethren, and it was completely owned by the church until 1933. The church maintained control of the school until 1969, but it is now an independent college, and only 5 per cent of its students are Brethren, Newcomer says.

In fact the largest religious denomination on the campus is Catholic, a faith to which 21 per cent of its students subscribe.

The vast majority of La Verne's students are natives of California: 168 of the 210 freshmen this year are Californians. However, Hawaii regularly sends a small but important contingent of students to La Verne.

The tuition and fees at La Verne are considerably lower than in Claremont. Tuition at La Verne is $2,300, $600 lower than the lowest tuition at a Claremont undergraduate school. Room, board and expenses can add another $1,100 to the expenses of a student at La Verne, if the student lives on campus, but two-thirds of the students live elsewhere, according to Newcomer.

Newcomer also says that half of the students at La Verne receive financial aid.

"We want to insure that we don't have a student body of just rich eggheads," he says.

Publication writing class set at college

A 14-week course in Writing for Publication will be offered Wednesday nights by the evening division of Mt. San Antonio College for those who want to improve their writing skills.

The course is free and will be given in Room 41, Building 14, from 7 to 10 p.m. Students may register in the classroom during the first session Wednesday night.

Topics to be covered in the course include writing for newspapers, magazines, radio, television and public relations. The format is that of a workshop whose purpose will be to develop marketable material.

The instructor will be Robert S. Nagey, a staff writer for the Progress-Bulletin.

THE NEWEST ADDITION — The Oldsmobile Omega Salon Sedan has been added to the Omega series for 1975. The Salon model features reclining front contour bucket seats, a headlamp dimmer switch built into the turning lever, a center console and a Salon steering wheel. A rear stabilizer bar gives the Salon sportier handling characteristics. In addition, wheel opening and protective body moldings are standard equipment on the Omega. Other models include a coupe, hatchback coupe and sedan.

Oldsmobile line grows to 35 models

Oldsmobile features 35 models for customers to choose from in picking a new 1975 car.

For the first time the nation's oldest existing car manufacturer—a division of General Motors Corp.—now offers models with wheelbases ranging from the new small size Starfire at 97 inches to the family size Ninety-Eight at 127 inches.

The Starfire is a new car for the division and features two-plus-two interior seating and a sporty exterior design. It is available in only one body style, a sport coupe.

In other models, the compact Omega series has been expanded to six models for 1975 with the addition of the Omega Salon. The Salon is available in the same three body types as the base Omega—the coupe, hatchback coupe and the sedan.

All Omegas have received extensive body and chassis changes for improved appearance, passenger comfort and ride characteristics. Each model is built on a 111-inch wheelbase and is equipped with energy absorbing bumpers, front and rear.

In other 1975 cars the Oldsmobile now offers the mid-size Cutlass. Available in four body styles, two collonade hardtop coupes, a collonade hardtop sedan and station wagon, the Cutlass series now includes the base Cutlass, Cutlass S, the Cutlass Supreme, the Cutlass Salon and Vista Cruiser.

The Delta 88 and Delta Royale stil continue to be offered in a hardtop coupe, hardtop sedan and town sedan body styles with a convertible available in the Delta 88 Royale.

The Ninety-Eight series this year will include a Luxury coupe, Luxury sedan, Regency coupe and the Regency sedan. The standard Ninety-Eight sedan has been discontinued.

The Oldsmobile Toronado has two models this year. A Custom coupe and a Brougham coupe. Both have a new rectilinear opera window in the rear quarter sail panel for added luxury and more privacy for rear seat passengers.

Sun, wind could aid electric supply

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Solar energy is one thing and wind energy another, but when combined they become something entirely different.

It is this combination which could supply a peak period energy supplement for the traiditional fossil fueled plants of the utility companies in a 500 to 600 mile belt through the midwestern U.S., an engineer at Texas Tech. University says.

Dean John R. Bradford of the university's College of Engineering says Lubbock is ideally and centrally situated in this wide belt where both the sun and wind are available in abundant quantities.

"Engineers in six special fields, because of Texas Tech's central location, can work together on the problem-harnessing energy from the sun and the wind and transforming it into a system which could ride on top of the present energy sources," Bradford said. "There is a lot of sunshine in this belt, and there is a good wind velocity for sustained periods of time."

"Air pollution also has devastating effects on solar collectors," Bradford said, "making the metropolitan areas unsuitable for the development of solar systems.

"We think collectors or converters could be spread across this midwestern belt and fed into a grid system that would support present energy systems," Bradford said. "It would not supply the base needs, but it would help during peak loads."

He said in the summer both the winds and sun are steady in West Texas, and throughout most of the Great Plains states. This is also a time when air conditioning requirements put additional stress on energy supplies. It would be this added strain that could be relieved.

"Each kilowatt hour that could be developed would save just that much fossil fuel for the future," he said. "All the nation is dependent upon large supplies of energy for the standard of living we now enjoy. Our oil and gas are much too valuable as feedstock to be used up as fuel."

He said the fossil fuels are the building blocks of the future for America, and the rest of the world. As minerals and wood become scarce, plastics and petrochemicals will be come the substitutes. Fossil fuels supply these alternatives.

"Although the Plains States could generate the greatest amount of power from the sun and wind during the summer months, the collectors would not shut down in the winter," Bradford said.

On the treeless plains the wind is almost constantly blowing and the sunny days outnumber the cloudy ones the year around. The U.S. Weather Service reports that during the past 30 years the Lubbock area, for instance, averaged 264 sunny days a year-days with less than .8 per cent opaque cloud cover. While the average wind, year around, is 13.1 miles per hour, this is likely to slack off to about 5 miles per hour at night and move up to more than 20 miles per hour in the daytime.

Other expertise will be called upon as research develops, Bradford said, but engineers already working on the problem now are from the departments of civil, mechanical, electrical, industrial and chemical engineering.

"We cannot depend upon traditionalism to solve the world's energy crisis," Bradford said. "We must develop new sources of energy, but it is also important to look at the oldest sources known to man and develop new utilization and considerably improved efficiencies of them.

"The sun and the wind are nonpolluting and renewable, and so they could be among the most useful energy sources of all," he said.

America warns India on use of our Uranium

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has warned India it will cut off shipments of uranium unless it is assured the material will be used only for peaceful purposes, State Department officials said Saturday night.

The move stemmed from U.S. concern over India's May explosion of what it called a "peaceful nuclear explosion," using plutonium produced from a Canadian research reactor.

"There was a shipment (of uranium) in mid-June and one is scheduled in October," said a State Department spokeswoman. "Meanwhile there has been an exchange of letters with the Indians and useful discussions. We are hopeful that a satisfactory formula will be completed before long."

Officials said the discussions involved U.S. policy that any enriched uranium sent to India is "intended for use in the Tarapur reactor. If they want to use it for any use other than that intended, the United States would exercise a veto."

The reactor at Tarapur, near Bombay, was built with American assistance in the early 1960s, and the United States agreed to provide fuel for it for 30 years. It has been in operation since 1969, producing electricity for the city of Bombay.

The New York Times reported this week that the United States had already halted delivery of uranium to India "until the Indian Givernment clarifies its policy on nuclear tests." The paper said it based the story on information from Atomic Energy Commission officials.

Ray Lee Ray, chairman of the AEC, denied the report as did the Indian embassy. "The United States has not cut off any uranium shipments to India," said Dr. Ray. "We have a bilateral cooperative agreement with India to provide fuel for the Tarapur reactor. Under that cooperative agreement, the Indian government has guaranteed that none of that material that goes to that nuclear reactor will ever be used for any purpose other than that reactor (which) produces electricity.

James A. Harris, an AEC spokesman, added that the uranium for the Tarapur reactor "is enriched three or four per cent so you could not make a weapon out of it. But this type of uranium in a reactor will produce plutonium that can be used to produce weapons. So we have an agreement with the Indian government so material we provide will be used only for (the) reactor."

Eric Gonsalves, an Indian embassy spokesman, said: "Basically our position is we are not aware the United States has stopped shipments because we got one in June and the next one is due in October.

Steam car is feasible, but no takers yet

By EDWARD A. FULTON
United Press International

J. W. Carter Jr. of Burkburnett, Tex., says he knows the low polluting, energy efficient steam powered automobile ranks with the perpetual motion machine in the minds of most Americans.

"There have been a lot of steam cars that really were flops," he said. "And I guess that gave steam a bad name. That's why we (including his father, J.W. Sr.) haven't talked about our car until now. Now we have got it."

The Carters have worked for four years developing their prototype steam powered car. Both are mechanical engineers with degrees from Texas Tech University in Lubbock, and they say the evidence provided by the first car will lead to a second car that will encompass all of the demands of the Environmental Protection Agency, the energy crisis and the U.S. car buying public.

But there are difficulties, primarily along the line that everybody "has heard that old song before."

The EPA tested the car last May and passed along a preliminary, moderately negative result. The governmental agency, which must approve the car before it can be marketed and also controls grant money which the Carters want to build the second car, is currently writing a lengthy evaluation of it.

Carter Jr. said he felt the political influences in the EPA had a lot to do with the less than joyful reception of model one. The EPA has spent several million dollars on research into steam cars and recently contracted with a firm for $2.9 million for further development.

Stately homes

Capitalize liabilities

LONDON (UPI) — When the present Duke of Wellington opened his stately home to the paying public on this, the 25th anniversary of the stately homes industry, visitors spotted an old sign in one hall that said:

"Those desirous of seeing the interior of the house should ring and express this desire at the door of entrance. It is wished that the practice of stopping on the paved walk to look in at the windows be discontinued."

That's how it was before stately homes went commercial 25 years ago. The business has come a long way since then.

For at least 200 years casual visitors have ogled some of the opulent mansions of Britain's high and mighty. The only money that changed hands was a tip to the housekeeper.

Then, in 1949, came the Marquis of Bath.

Lord Bath had just inherited the magnificent estate centered on Longleat House, a sprawling country palace begun in 1566. He also inherited the burden of keeping it repaired, plus a huge bundle of inheritance taxes.

Marquis of Bath changed it all by opening his home—Longleat House—and charging admission 25 years ago.

Lord Bath decided to capitalize on his main liability. He formally opened Longleat to the public, and charged admission.

He had no idea what he was starting. Now more than 900 castles, abbeys, mansions and historic homes open their gates to cash visitors. The British Tourist Authority estimates that 43 million people will stream to stately homes by the end of this year, 7 million of them from overseas.

It's a big, expensive business. To get into it the eighth Duke of Wellington spent $600,000 to get Stratfield Saye house ready for opening. The Duke of Bedford earned enough from it to pay $13.2 million of his inheritance tax bill before he retired this year and turned Woburn Abbey over to his son.

Bedford was the most famous and flamboyant of stately home owners. The way he boosted Woburn Abbey to the top of the business is a pointer to the way the industry has changed since Lord Bath began it.

"Most owners feel they need 150,000 visitors a year. Woburn gets almost two million, as do several other stately homes.

Crowds on that scale create their own problems—Lord Astor has been forced to install traffic lights on the drawbridge of Hever Castle, once Anne Boleyn's home, to control customers.

Stately home owners have discovered that their grand houses and grander furnishings are not enough to attract the necessary multitudes. Again Lord Bath hit on the answer.

He opened Europe's first lion reserve at Longleat. The Duke of Bedford, before he retired, described what happened when he followed suit at Woburn.

"We were getting round about half a million people," he said. "Suddenly the game park brought in well over an extra million."

By now Britain has so many "safari parks" it's exporting lions to Africa. There are almost as many wild animal or bird collections, automobile museums, adventure playgrounds and other crowd-pulling attractions on the grounds of stately homes as there are tea rooms.

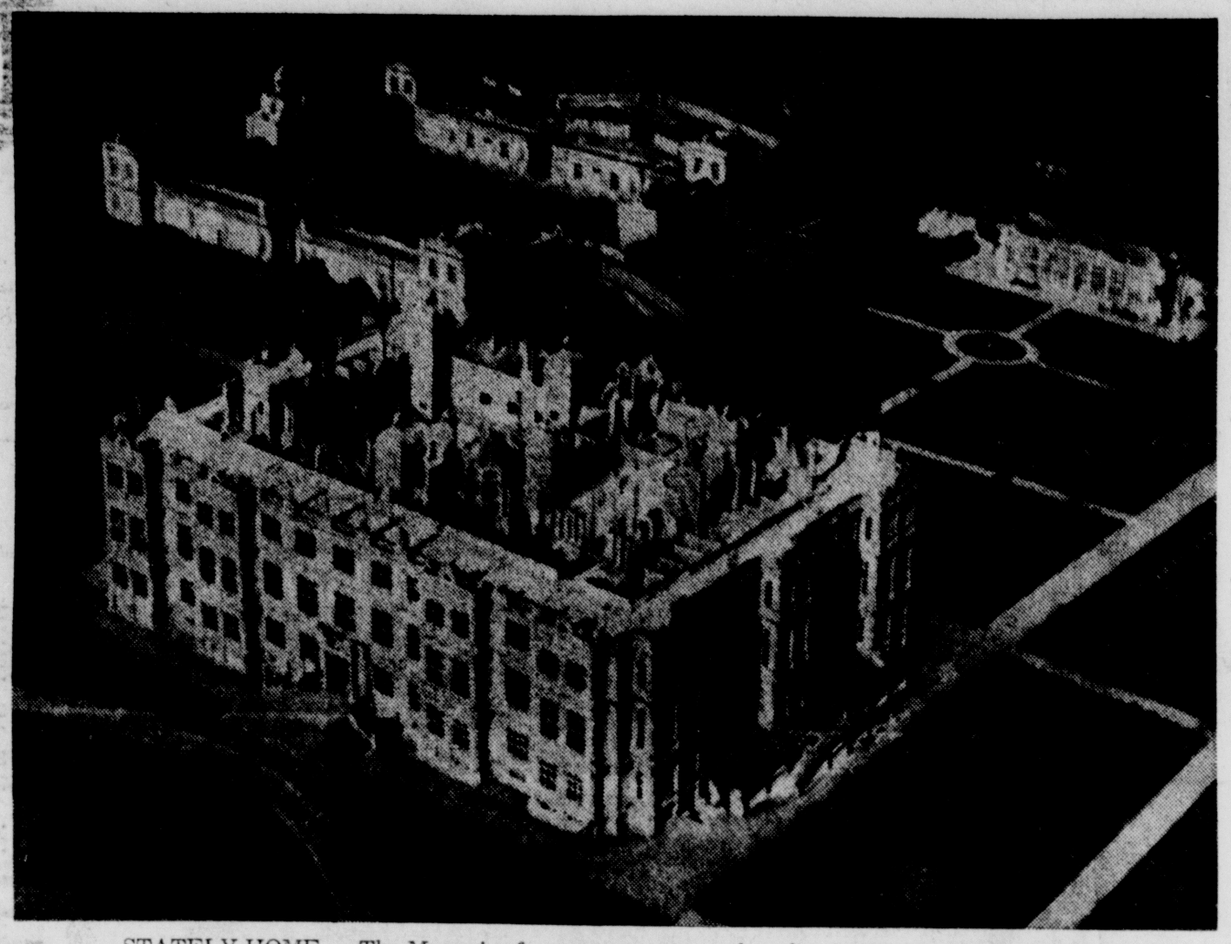
So many lions romp in preserves at stately homes now, surplus animals are shipped to Africa.

"We're selling open space," one of them said. For city-weary throngs, 700 acres of landscaped greenery can mean more than all the Old Masters inside the marble halls.

Last year stately home owners banded together into the Historic Houses Association, a kind of chamber of commerce to promote and keep an eye on such industry spinoffs as souvenirs and guidebooks.

Its members know that with their millions of customers it's the little things, not only the multimillion dollar art collections, that count.

"They never write and say you've got phony Gainsboroughs or lousy Chippendale," Bedford once said. "From the letters they write there are two subjects—the loose (toilets) and the teas."



STATELY HOME — The Marquis of Bath started it all when he opened his home — Longleat House — to the public for a fee in 1949. Now scores of other hard pressed noblemen have opened their ancestral mansions and charge admission. Longleat House was begun in 1566. Gates are open daily.

Alf Landon

Still spritely 1936 GOP candidate at 8

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Perhaps it is the brilliant Kansas sunlight flooding an otherwise dark office that exaggerates too deeply the shadows in Alfred M. Landon's face.

Or perhaps lining the walls are too many aging photographs that provide too sharp a contrast to the man now seated behind the politely cluttered desk.

On the eve of his 87th birthday, the memories mirrored by the one-time presidential candidate's office and crowded in his mind are those of a man still called upon by presidents for sage advice, political wisdom and expertise in foreign affairs.

"The dangers of inflation are not confined to America," he jabs, responding to another of the many newsmen who still seek his opinion.

"It's a world wide problem. "It's compounded by the fuel and energy shortage, and the many American businesses that do business around the world.

"The leaders in business and labor and the politicians are all conscious of the need to work together and consult on policies. President Fo has taken a wise step to c rect the situation. He has s to the nation, as Presid Johnson said: 'Come, let reason together'."

In 1936, Landon was no nated by fellow Republica to run against a power Democrat seeking his seco term as president, Frank D. Roosevelt.

FDR buried the form Kansas governor in a lan lide of votes, and never ag has Landon's name appea on an election ballot.

But from the ashes of t 1936 disaster, Landon arose be the elder statesman of party.

"No, I didn't think I wo ever see in this country w has happened in just the p few years," Landon said the Nixon and Agnew resig tions.

"I never dreamed of it. I don't think Nixon is the mediate point, Ford is point and it's his leaders we have to look to.

"Am I confident he'll able to pull the country gether? I don't know. I hope —and believe —but o time will tell."

Em propiedad de casas

VAC ofrece clases gratis

Un programa en cuatro partes tocante a consejos en propiedad de casas se ofrece gratis a los residentes del valle principiando el martes en la Biblioteca Publica de Pomona.

Las sesiones, patrocinadas por la Asociacion de Ciudades del Valle (VAC) y el Distrito Escolar Unido de Pomona, trataran de compra de casa, mantenimiento, presupuesto y mejoras. Instructores especialistas en cada uno de los temas conduciran las clases.

Las clases se ofreceran a tres diferentes horas los martes y jueves para la conveniencia de los residentes, 9 a.m. a 11 a.m.; 2 p.m. a 4 p.m. y 7 p.m. a 9 p.m. Joseph Korpsak, VAC director ejecutivo, dijo que se haran arreglos para los residentes que necesiten modo de transporte o cuidando a los ninos mientres asisten a las sesiones.

Charles Bader, miembro del concilio de Pomona y presidente de VAC, dice que el programa esta dirigido principalmente a los propietarios de casas que tienen escasa entrada de dinero o a los futuros compradores de casa que no tienen experiencia en la administracion de una casa o en el mantenimiento.

El servicio en aconsejar en estas materias, el agrego, es una medida preventiva designada a reducir la incautacion de bienes hipotecados o el abandono de casas en el valle.

"La meta del programa es doble. Primero, mejorar la vista de las casas y segundo, prevenir adicional incautacion de bienes proporcionando a los propietarios de casas la instruccion necesaria en finanzas y mantenimiento,' Bader indico.

El programa es afin con un sistema de consejos conducido por VAC, la agencia consultora certificada del Departamento de Habitacion y Desarrollo Urbano en el valle.

Sesiones trataran especificamente en como comprar, mantener y vender una casa; presupuesto familiar, credito del consumidor y deudas al administrar; mantenimiento y cuidado de aparatos, muebles fijos y propiedad; proteccion policiaca y contra incendios y jardineria.

Aparte, consejo individual sera proporcionado por VAC al ser requerido. Carol Way, director del programa, dice que sesiones individuales estan preparadas para ayudar a resolver problemas directamente o refiriendolas a la agencia indicada. Donde ayuda economica se necesita, ella apunto, consejeros dirigiran a los individuos, pero VAC no proporciona asistencia economica.

VAC tiene dos consejeros de planta en su personal, Alfreda McNeal y Frank Estrada, quienes actualmente proporcionan informacion acerca del programa a organizaciones de la comunidad. VAC dara informacion mas completa tocante al programa a las orgarizaciones que requieran ayuda.

Las sesiones en grupo tendran instructores de habla hispana o habra una persona de habla hispana disponible. Material actualmente circulando en las comunidades tomando parte en el programa, esta impreso en espanol e ingles.

Las sesiones programadas se celebraran en la biblioteca durante el mes de Septiembre y en los primeros dias de Octubre. En todo caso, Korpsak agrego que sesiones en el futuro se ofreceran en diferentes sitios en el valle, quizas durante todo el ano. Grupos interesados pueden solicitar el tener clases para sus propios miembros en el local en que acostumbran reunirse.

El programa esta fundado por una concesion de HUD la cual se usa en subsidios en la ensenanza y materiales. Todos los instructores son voluntarios.

Para mas informacion, o asistencia en consejos, VAC ha establecido un servicio conveniente durante las 24 horas del dia. Informacion puede obtenerse llamando al telefono 623-4456.

Port wine prices

Speculators hurt market

LONDON—Port wine has become an international object of financial speculation which has changed its place totally in the world of drinks.

The dramatic rise in prices paid for the best French wines of Bordeaux, which shook the market from 1969 onwards, has spread to port where speculators in 1973 bought vintage stocks in the hope of seeing prices rise just as astronomically.

The steady world demand for wine has increased in recent years at 20 per cent every twelve months, leading to demand for more port, and the speculation in vintage port put prices up even further.

Once called "the Englishman's drink," port now is sold all over the world. Croft, one of the leading shippers, sells to more than 40 countries—and France, not England, had the leading share of the 1973 market. Distribution in that year was 31 per cent to France, 20 per cent to Britain, 12 per cent to Portugal itself, 8 per cent to West Germany, and varying amounts to Denmark, Holland, Belgium and Italy.

When Portuguese wine farmers 50 miles up the River Douro took notice of this demand, the price of the 1973 vintage went up 150 per cent. For centuries the farmers had cultivated the grapes on their farms, known as quintas, and sold them at steady prices to the shipper whose names are famous on port bottles. Some of the quintas belonged to shippers, but in most cases they bought direct, blended the wines and sold them under their own labels.

The relationship between shipper and farmer was long standing and generally fair. Port was made famous by the shippers spending money on publicity while the farmers regarded their grapes much as a farmer regards any other crop.

Today, the world has caught up with the farmers. Their children go to better schools and to university, and they tell their fathers that they are being underpaid.

The wild speculation in port wine in 1973 confirmed this. And the rise in vintage port has dragged the price of other ports up as well. Stocks have declined because of world demand in wine generally. In addition, the Portuguese government of 1973 encouraged the sale of port at higher prices.

At first the shippers protested that such measures would kill the demand for port wine. So far this has not happened. Exports in 1973 went up by 44 per cent

AFTERNOON AT THE RACES

Home of tomorrow

Fastidiousness going

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — All you punk housewives, hear this:

By 1984 the nation will have fewer super-fastidious homemakers —the kind whose homes look as though there should be a velvet rope across the entrance to every room exactly opposite of the way your home looks.

There's nothing bad about a person keeping a house in showcase condition. But it's hard on the punk housewives — also adled, in housework circles, "escape artists." Their life's work is escaping housework.

Everytime a punk housewife sees a super homemaker's pad, she gets guilty feelings. The super homemaker's showcase of cleanliness also sometimes bothers the "realist" housewife.

Her cleaning habits are better than the punk's but can't come up to those of the superhomemaker.

A market research study aimed at showing characteristics of the 1984 woman found that the superhomemakers, now 40 per cent of all homemakers, will be found in only 20 per cent of households by 1984.

The "escape artist" homemakers —a la punk —will make up 20 per cent of the homemakers, as they do today. But the realist homemakers — the middle group —will make up 60 per cent of the homemakers, compared to 40 per cent today.

The study by Herbert Zeltner and associates at Kenyon & Eckhardt Advertising Inc. in New York also showed other characteristics of the 1984 woman, some surprising.

In an interview, the senior vice president in charge of marketing research for the ad agency, said the baby bust or birth dearth we now are experiencing —with births down to 3.2 million a year —probably will be ended by 1984. There will be fewer births per household but since there will be more households there will be more births in total.

Estimates range from 3.6 to 4.2 million, according to Jen Rosenthal, the agency's vice president for market development.

The housekeeping patterns were studied under a section titled changing lifestyle.

The basic characteristics of each type of homemaker won't change —just the percentage of homemakers in each category.

Marks of the superhomemaker: a showcase home, compulsive and pursuing cleanliness for its own sake, restricts family to maintain order and expects guest to admire the home. The superhomemaker looks on food as she would a love object.

Autumn social calendar

Clubs begin round of activity

New interest, excitement and great activity is being generated this month by hundreds of women's clubs in the valley who are readying their agendas and planning philanthropic benfits as part of a new social year.

Among the early events on the calendar this month are two activities planned at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds and the third, a wine-tasting party, at the Claremont Tennis Club.

Foothill Guild for the Crippled Children's Society has planned an afternoon at the races at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds as a benefit for the guild.

The event will be held at the clubhouse on the grounds on Sept. 25 and will begin at 12:30 p.m. Admission tickets will include parking, entrance to the grounds and to the clubhouse.

Mrs. John A. Evans, chairman of arrangements, is assisted by Mrs. Kenneth F. Russell, Mrs. Robert F. Miller, Mrs. Harry Swett and Mrs. R. Casey with final plans.

Additional information on the activities planned may be obtained by calling a guild member or the Crippled Children's Center, 621-4727.

Members of the National Charity League Juniors, Foothill Chapter, and their husbands will serve wine and Mexican hors d-oeuvres in a Spanish atmosphere when the group holds its annual wine-tasting party the evening of Sept. 25.

The party, to be held at the Claremont Tennis Club, 2225 Padua Ave., Claremont, is set from 6 until 8 p.m.

Chairman for the event is Mrs. Edward Soehnel, with Mrs. Gary Wild as assistant chairman. Assisting them will be Mmes. Charles Bennison, Thomas Cleland, John McCallum, Howard Theurer, Joel Gillingwators, William Tangeman and William Lee.

The Juniors are presently working to help support the Bethel Day Care Center in Ontario and funds from the event will be used for the project.

"Winner's Circle" is the theme chosen by Pomona Emblem Club for its annual Day at the Fair Friday.

The traditional party, at which state officers of the Emblem Club are honored, will begin at 10 a.m. at the Pomona Elks' Lodge with a social hour and luncheon before the members and their guests go to the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds.

The fourth race will be dedicated to the Pomona Emblem Club, and Mrs. Bob Weddle, local president, and Mrs. John Gardner, state president of Emblem Clubs, will present a silver trophy to the owner of the winning horse in a ceremony at the winner's circle.

Assisting Mrs. Richard Dempsey, chairman, are Mmes. William Parsonage, Robert McCammon, Frank Entler and Merle Wooten.

The Emblem Club, a national organization, raises funds for charitable work in local areas.

PLAN MEXICAN THEME

Claremont Tennis Club will be setting for annual wine-tasting party planned by National Charity League Juniors, Foothill Chapter, set Sept. 28. Working on decorations, from left, are Mrs. Thomas Shoar, Mrs. Lloyd Castleberry, and Mrs. Richard Rubin. The latter two are provisional members.

WINNER'S CIRCLE

Mrs. John Gardner, state president of Emblem clubs, left; Mrs. Bob Weddle, president of the local club, center; and Mrs. Richard Dempsey display silver tray trophy for Emblem Club Day at the Races.

Historian views women in movies

SANTA BARBARA — "Want to take a study break and catch a movie?" says one college student to another. For Joyce Baker of UC Santa Barbara it would be a busman's holiday, indeed. American movies, particularly the women in them — are the subject of her doctoral dissertation.

A historian, she is one of 27 outstanding scholars chosen from 400 applicants for this year's Woodrow Wilson dissertation fellowships in women's studies.

Her topic, she says, has two kinds of contributions to make. It will provide fresh insights into the roles deemed proper for women in society under war-time stress, and will also demonstrate that feature films are repositories of the past and reflections of their times.

"The "times" in this case are the war years 1941-45. Remember "Comrade X," "Casablanca," "Double Indemnity," "The Iron Major," "Madame Curie," "So Proudly We Hail," "Spellbound," "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," "Watch on the Rhine," and "Woman of the Year?"

Eighty-five million people went to the movies weekly then, out of a total U.S. population of about 135 million. Movies were the most popular form of mass entertainment and came in the form of melodrama, comedy, adventure, musicals, historical films or biography, combat dramas and other war-related dramatic films.

"In the late thirties and the war years of the forties, people were not as visually sophisticated as we are today," says Ms. Baker, "so for many people movies performed what David Reisman has called "anticipatory socialization.' That is, movies taught persons acceptable modes of behavior, particularly in novel situations."

She'll be venturing some answers as to how the Hollywood feature films affected the audiences that flooded the theatres to watch them, supplementing her film and book research with interviews, particularly of women who saw those films.

It isn't only such stars as Bette Davis, Claudette Colbert, Joan Crawford and Norma Shearer who made the impact on them.

"I find that I have had to become involved in the technical process — the cameraman, the film editor, the director are important," Ms. Baker notes. "I need to look at how the film is put together to determine who influenced it and what that might mean as a social document."

Is this feminist history? "I began planning this dissertation at a time at UCSB when people were talking a lot about how much work was needed in women's studies," she says.

The feminist approach, however, is well represented in such books as Popcorn Venus (Marjorie Rosen) and From Reverence to Rape (Molly Haskell).

"I'm trying to see women as more than an oppressed class," the UC student states, emphasizing that she is taking a long view, a historical approach, avoiding pre-judgments as much as possible.

"All historical writing involves judgment on the part of the historian, of course," she says, no less on the part of writers on Roman history or the American civil war than on those who write about contemporary subjects like hers.

"The use of film as historical evidence is in its infancy for a number of reasons," she says. "Significantly, the pioneers in U.S. history written from film are also those engaged in revealing an 'underside' of American experience.

"The prototype articles I've found consistently treat minorities or American women," she adds, noting that there may be a scarcity of written sources about these groups and that only certain kinds of articulate women, for example, left written records of their experience.

JUDGE JOAN KLEIN

Local BPW fetes young careerists

A meeting didicated to a young career woman is scheduled by Pomona Business and Professional Women's Club Wednesday when the group meets for dinner at Griswold's at 6:30 p.m.

Speaker will be Judge Joan Dempsey Klein, presiding judge of the Los Angeles Municipal Court. Judge Klein is a candidate for Superior Court. Her topic will be "Women in Government."

On the Los Angeles Municipal Court since February, 1963, Judge Kelin has presided in virtually all divisions. Prior to taking the bench, she served eight years as a trial lawyer, as Deputy Attorney Genral for the State of California. She was admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court.

Judge Klein graduated from UCLA Law School in 1955 and from San Diego State College, where she received a B.A. degree.

Each member of the Pomona club has been requested to bring a young career woman as a guest for the evening. The meeting is open to the public. Reservations are necessary and may be made by calling Mrs. Montez Burley, 593-3793 evenings, or Miss Mary Donnelly, 599-3923, by Monday.

The event will be the League's first of the fall season. A member of the City Planning Commission staff will review the Pomona General Plan update for those attending the luncheon.

Membership in the League, a non-partisan organization, is open to all citizens 18 and over including men.

During the year the organization will sponsor candidates' meetings, visits to local and county governments; studies of Los Angeles County government, national land use policy and the executive branch; and meetings on the November ballot propositions and the Pomona General Plan.

Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Barbara Trieselmann at 598-1488 or Mrs. Sara Nunn at 595-0016.

O'Connor and Brown vows are exchanged

Miss Terry Lynn O'Connor and Jeffry Brown were united in marriage in an afternoon ceremony at the Chapel of the Wildwood in Upland with the Rev. Lee Kirk as officiant.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O'Connor of Claremont was given in marriage by her father. She wore a floor-length gown of cream-colored tulle with a sweetheart neckline and short, puffed sleeves. It was accented with blue and green flowers. A headpiece of matching flowers was worn by the bride who carried white carnations, blue and green carnations and baby's breath in her bouquet.

Miss Kit Dunseth was maid of honor. The flower girl was Carla Rosenfeld, a cousin of the bride.

Gary Reid served as best man. The bride's brothers, Robert and David O'Connor, lighted the candles and escorted the parents of the couple.

The Arbor in Upland was the setting for a reception honoring the couple who will make their home at Cardiff-by-the-Sea.

The bride graduated from Claremont High School and Citrus College and will attend a school for dental assisting this fall. Mr. Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clint Bacon of La Mission, Mexico, is employed in Vista.

Youngsters paying to do manual labor

By DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nancy Schwartz pulled a switch this summer. Instead of looking for a summer job, she paid $400 to spend seven weeks doing hard, physical labor.

Nancy, 16, of Great Neck, N.Y.—a middle and upper middle class community on Long Island—and 16 other teenagers mostly from the New York area, took part in an unusual work camp program in Orland, Maine, sponsored by the American Jewish Society for Service (AJSS).

"It's the kind of experience I wouldn't normally get," Nancy said.

"You know, I've never been haying before, I've never shoveled sheep manure before. This gives me the satisfaction of looking at something I've accomplished with my own hard work and my own two hands." At Orland, living at a Carmelite nunnery and working under the direction of a local rural cooperative, the campers helped local residents build a craft sales and display shop for the cooperative, landscaped the coop grounds, painted and repaired the interior of an education building, and pitched in helping farmers in the countryside.

"These kids are exceptional," said Mrs. Carl Brenner, one of the two camp counselors.

"They're not your run-of-the mill kind of kid, they're idealistic and they want to do something for other people," she said.

The AJSS also operated programs this summer in Auburn, Ala., and Tacoma, Wash., where young people helped rehabilitate homes in poor neighborhoods.

Henry Kohn, a founder and chairman of the AJSS, said the more than 900 youngsters he has seen join the program since 1950 are "a special breed of young people."

"They have a deep social commitment, which increases throughout the summer and stays with them the rest of their lives," he said.

The AJSS work campers have been involved in more than 50 projects in 33 U.S. states and in Israel. Kohn said the program is neither politically nor ideologically oriented, and has served poor whites, blacks, Chicanos, migrant workers and Indians.

For Nancy, one of the highlights of her summer was getting to know local residents, especially youngsters her age.

"Its a very different atmosphere," she said. "They take everything a lot more slowly...but, you know, kids are pretty much the same all over."

Writer's club books speaker

Mrs. Blank, who is associated with Chaffey College and is an instructor in Community Adult Education, will discuss a writer's market class she will be instructing later in the month.

Mrs. Gale Donahue, publicity secretary, will be presented the club's trophy for best in non-fiction at the September meeting.

There will be open contests in fiction, non-fiction and poetry for the September meeting and members are encouraged to bring their work for entry.

Information on the club may be obtained by contacting the Ontario Public Library.

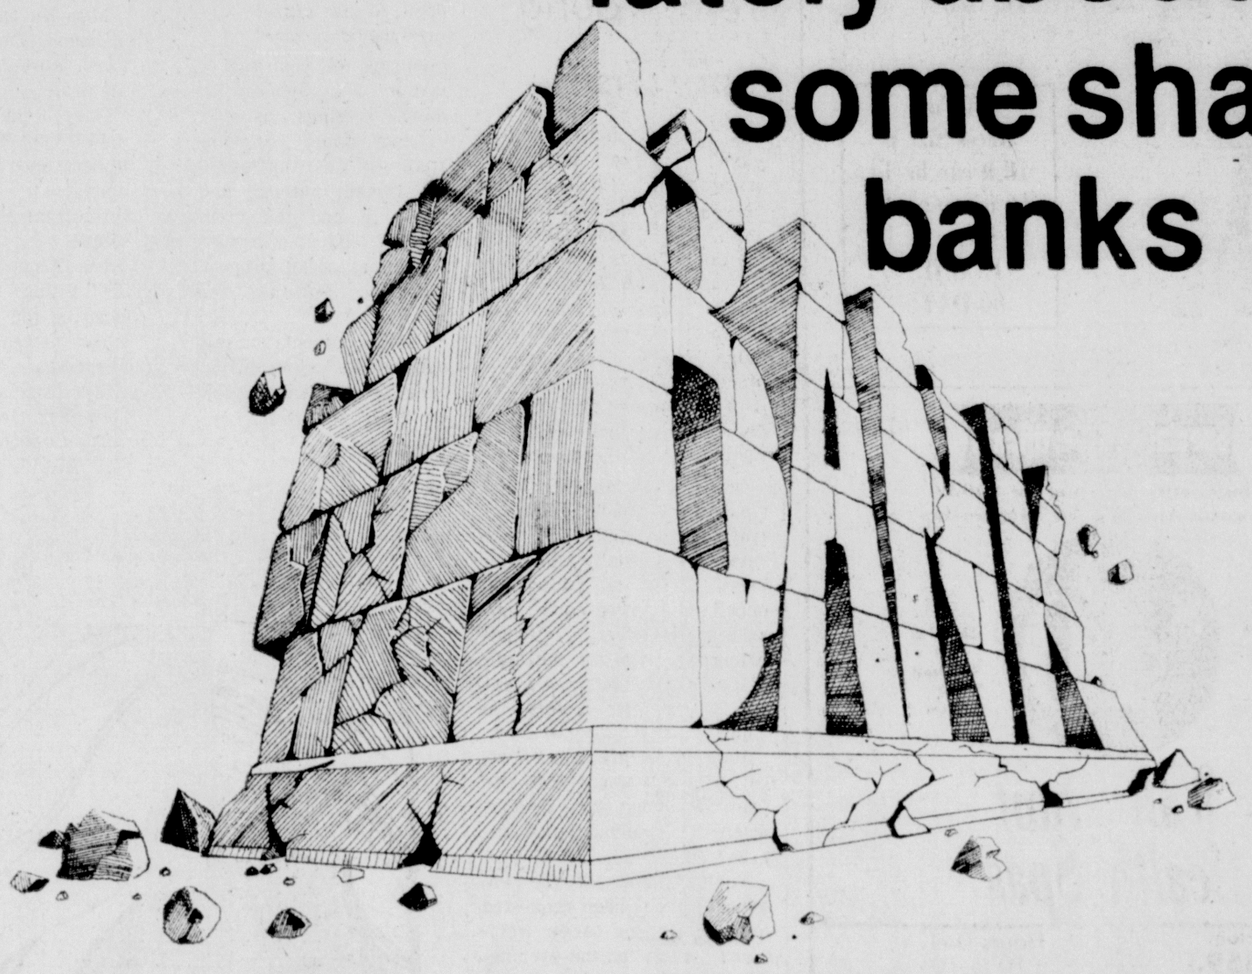
You've probably heard a lot lately about some shaky banks ...



. . . with crumbling financial foundations

New banks are being organized everywhere, but a lot of them seem to be disappearing rather quickly.

No doubt about it, times are rough and you should think about where your money will be safe, not where you'll get the most free services. You need a well established bank, with strong management and sound policies.

We've been providing dependable financial security to San Bernardino and Riverside counties since 1887.
87 years of experience and professional knowhow — that's a background of proven performance that few others can match.

We think sound ideas are better than fancy gimmicks. Our history of consistent growth and reliable service proves this true.

Our customers never lose any sleep over their bank accounts because they know their money is in the best possible place — First National Bank and Trust Company.

Market dips lower, lower, finally hits 12-year low

NEW YORK (UPI) — Relentless inflation drove prices sharply lower on the New York Stock Exchange this week and dragged the Dow Jones industrial average to a 12-year low.

The dow, which steadily lost ground throughout the week, Friday plunged 14.55 to 627.19, its lowest closing since Nov. 19, 1962, when the index finished at 626.21 during the Cuban missile crisis. Friday's selling wave pushed the blue chip indicator under the four-year low of 631.16 set May 26, 1970.

For the week the Dow lost 50.69 points as Wall Street digested an avalanche of gloomy reports and forecasts on the upward thrust of inflation. President Ford's decision to pardon Richard Nixon also acted as a market depressant. The storm that followed the pardon raised the prospect of a sharply divided Congress, which could jeopardize Ford's future programs to fight the price spiral.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index dropped 6.22 to a new low of 65.20. There were 1,707 losers, 145 gainers, among the 1,970 issues crossing the tape.

The week's sales totaled 67.955,408 shares, compared with 59,024,080 shares a week earlier and 61,781,490 shares the year before.

The market opened Monday to a gloomy report that business activity slumped in August. The nation's corporate purchasing agents said new orders last month failed to rise for only the second time since January, 1971, while production declined. The message was all too clear—the recession was spreading.

The optimism which had lifted Wall Street out of the doldrums at the end of the previous week and sparked a two-day advance evaporated. The "gloom and doom" psychology that has plagued the market in recent months took firm hold again following a statement by Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, that the short-term economic outlook was poor.

The financial community took a ho-hum view of President Ford's meeting with 28 labor officials in which he renewed his pledge to combat inflation, the nation's No. 1 economic problem. Even a decision by Congressional leaders to hold a post-election session in an effort to push through anti-inflation legislation failed to rally investors.

Since Aug. 8, the Dow has tumbled 169.37 points, primarily the result of Wall Street's discouragement over the lack of concrete measures to check the price spiral.

By far, most depressing news of the week to the market was a Labor Department report showing wholesale prices soared in August. The near-record leap in the wholsesale price index means retail prices are due for a hike. Retail beef prices already reflect this upward pressure. The Agriculture Department said all grades of beef climbed sharply in late August to their highest level since last February.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said retail food costs could spurt to 16 per cent above 1973 levels before the year is out. The Butz estimate was slightly higher than the 15 per cent projection recently issued by the department. Adding to Wall Street's inflation blues; Treasury Secretary William Simon predicted inflation will hover in the neighborhood of 9 per cent through the end of the year.

Vast changes set for future Wall Street

By DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — An influential Wall Street executive has predicted "vast changes" in the Street of tomorrow and outlined how his firm has positioned itself to be one of the "six or seven financial oligopolies" surving Congressional dictated changes.

The picture Richard H. Jenrette, president of the Donaldson, Lufkin, Jenrette, Inc. financial services holding company, painted for UPI is a bleak one for some 390 New York brokerage houses.

His scenario for the New York securities industry after April, 1975 when all fixed commissions disappear for the first time after 182 years of such pricing practices, calls for over the next five years:

—Elimination through merger, buy-out or shutdown of all but about 110 of the remaining 500 brokerages in New York.

—Brokers with large branch office networks competing vigorously with banks, real estate and insurance companies and vice versa.

—Creation of round-the-clock central marketplaces in such strategic financial centers as New York, London, Tokyo and Beirut because wealth is being accumulated outside the United States, especially in the oil kingdoms of the Middle East.

—The disappearance of exclusive, traditional banking relationships as institutions and corporations search for the special investment skills needed to operate in broadening investment areas.

—Business becoming more capital intensive, forcing the dominant brokerage firms to raise capital as well as invest it.

— Government pressures become more intense and sophisticated.

—And a world economy taking shape despite fits of nationalism, with multinational companies benefiting.

"Wall Street has operated under the New York Stock Exchange's pricing umbrella since 1972 with the Security and Exchange Commission's regulatory approval of fixed commissions since the 1930's," explained Jenrette. "Now, next April, the SEC says all fixed commissions are out; rates must be fully negotiated."

Jenrette noted that some 700 brokerages operated on Wall Street in the heyday of fixed rates. But the SEC has been chipping away at fixed commissions for years, banning them first on sales over $500,000 and then over $300,000. In the process, more than 100 NYSE member firms have disappeared since the end of 1969.

McDonald's

Golden arches rhubarb

NEW YORK (UPI) — McDonald's, the fast-food franchising firm known for the now defunct 19-cent hamburger, decided awhile ago the time was ripe to move into Manhattan. "Big Mac" met an unexpected whopper.

The firm, which has nurtured a community-minded image in other towns and cities across the nation, finds itself the target of highly vocal neighborhood groups who have made it clear the one thing they don't want on their streets is the golden archway that symbolizes McDonald's.

The chain believes such attitudes are unfair.

How representative the protesting groups are of neighborhood residents is uncertain. The firm claims they represent only a minority opinion.

But their shouting has been loud enough to turn the "McDonald's invasion" into a top local controversy.

For its part, the company insists the criticism is "blown out of proportion," that "thousands and thousands" of residents welcome it and it wants very much to be a "good neighbor."

The firm currently has 12 active outlets in Manhattan, with six more under construction. How many more are in the works the chain won't say, citing its "competitive position."

The showdown between McDonald's and its opponents came over a planned outlet on 66th Street on the upper East Side. Before it was over, area residents assembled petitions with some 11,000 names and dropped them off at City Hall to protest municipal approval given the chain.

In the end, McDonald's surrendered, announcing it had reached agreement with the neighborhood groups to drop 66th Street as a potential site. In a similar case, construction at a West Village location was suspended.

Typical of the objections to the hamburger outlet was one from an architect who said residents "deserve a peaceful neighborhood" and already had a sufficient number of restaurants to feed them.

He and others charged that a cheap fast food outlet, equipped with tables and chairs, attracts undesirables. They cited, as an example, Greenwich Village, where two or three such establishments have become virtual armed camps and notorious hangouts for drug users.

Beyond the issue of peace and crime, the McDonald's expansion into New York's most crowded borough has sparked other protests, with opponents citing:

Street congestion — double parking while father runs inside for the family chow.

Paper pollution—an abundance of paper wrappers, bags, plastic utensils and cellophane.

Nutrition—just how nutritional is a "Big Mac" or "Whopper" and, for that matter, how cheap when the amount of meat and condiments is considered?

In addition, various unions reportedly began pondering McDonald's policy of hiring young students at less than the minimum wage with few, if any, applicable fringe benefits, a practice legal under federal legislation.

McDonald's, in turn, has retained a high-priced public relations firm with ties to City Hall to argue that the firm has not ignored the unique qualities of the Manhattan neighborhoods it has moved into and is supported, if not welcomed, by most residents.

Young uniformed employes armed with long-handled brooms and pushing waste carts patrol the front of many McDonald's sites. Guards have been assigned to some premises. And even the large golden arches have become subdued and a more subtle decor chosen.

Furthermore, the firm points out, its employment of young students fills a need for New York, particularly for low-income youngsters in need of jobs. McDonald's recently promoted a demonstration by some 100 Harlem residents welcoming such employment into an uptown neighborhood.

That protest was designed to overshadow another by a much smaller group of two dozen or so who assembled recently each Saturday for three weeks in front of the proposed McDonald's site. "We already have too much crime in this neighborhood," the group's spokeswoman said. "McDonald's is not wanted here."

To counteract such feelings, McDonald's representatives have been meeting almost daily with community groups throughout New York City.

"It seems to be working," said Howard J. Rubenstein, the chain's new public relations man. "McDonald's feels generally that they want to be a good neighbor in the community.

"The firm feels that the opposition is blown far out of proportion to what the situation is. They find that literally thousands and thousands of people have been welcoming them. Once they see how McDonald's functions with a very careful attention to cleanliness, quality of food and community involvement, the community opposition generally has evaporated."

Murderer of priest vows he will do same to judge

NEW YORK (UPI) — The convicted killer of a Catholic priest threatened to do the same to a state Supreme Court justice Tuesday after he was sentenced to the maximum prison term allowed by law —25 years to life.

"I'll do you, too," shouted Allen King, 29, a self-proclaimed Muslim who prefers the name Malik Allah.

King was convicted July 2 of the $400 holdup-murder of the Rev. John P. Conlon, 48, as the priest was counting the collection money on May 13, 1973, in the rectory of his church.

"This man offered no resistance and his life was destroyed," Judge Bernard Dubin told the defendant. "Killings like this are going to make the legislature bring back capital punishment."

King replied sarcastically, "Want a handkerchief? It's so sad."

Cambodians Protesting oil rights with allies

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Hundreds of students marched through the streets of Phnom Penh today, shouting support of their government in an oil dispute with South Vietnam and demanding the expulsion of Saigon's ambassador to Cambodia.

Waving anti-Vietnamese banners and shouting "Phuoc go home," the students marched first to the South Vietnamese Embassy and then to the home of Ambassador Tran Van Phuoc.

The marchers, estimated by police to number about 600, were closely guarded by heavily armed military police and there was no violence or arrests.

The protest centered on the presence of an American-owned oil rig operated by a U.S.-French consortium drilling in Gulf of Thailand waters claimed by South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Saigon warned the Cambodian government last week in a harsh diplomatic note that if the rig were not removed by midnight Thursday, Vietnamese navy boats would force the work to stop.

This morning, however, well after the deadline, the Glomar 4 oil rig was still operating in the disputed area, an executive for its owners said in Singapore.

"According to radio contact I had with the crew at 9:30 a.m. today, the rig had not moved yet. We are preparing to move hopefully by today," said a representative of Global Marine Inc. of Los Angeles, owners of the Glomar 4.

He said he didn't know what had delayed the move.

ARTIST AT WORK — Ning Yeh, talented young Chinese artist from Claremont, deftly handles the brush as he begins another of his horse paintings. Yeh will be showing his work at the fair, through Sept. 29, as part of Artists-In-Action exhibit. He utilizes a soft goat hair brush in his work.

Visitors pack gates at fair

The first Los Angeles County Fair was held in 1922, attracting nearly 50,000 persons. The fair has grown quite a bit since then.

This year, more than one million visitors are expected to click through the turnstiles.

Fair officials recorded 1,212,680 visitors in 1973 after a record 1,268,446 set in 1972.

One reason for the large attendance, according to publicity director Harry Hofmann, is that the fair is "more than just a fair."

"It's an exposition of international scope, attracting visitors and exhibitors from all parts of the country and the world. The fair is a city within a city, and during its 17-day run, one of the largest businesses in the area."

Local officials claim the Pomona exposition is the largest county fair in the world attendance-wise and the fourth largest of all fairs in the nation.

Attesting to its international scope, the fair regularly attracts from 20 to 30 foreign countries which send well over 200 exhibits featuring their cultures and products. In addition, many of the 2,000 photographic entries bear foreign postmarks.

During its 17-day run, the fair maintains all the facilities needed to operate a city of 75,000 population: police force, fire department, branch bank, post office, electric sub-station, telephone exchange with 25 main truck lines and 240 stations, first aid facility, nursery and playground, picnic areas, sanitation department, trailer park, garage and maintenance shop.

The fair's commissary supplies food for both employes and visitors, serving more than 40 tons of hot dogs, 36 tons of hamburger, and 1.2 million corn tortillas, not to mention innumerable snacks and beverages.

The fairgrounds cover 487 acres, landscaped with more than 5,000 trees, thousands of plants and flowers and acres of grass. All exhibit areas and walkways are black-topped. Paved parking areas accommodate 45,000 vehicles. There are over 200 permanent buildings with a combined floor space of more than 1.5 million square feet. The entire facility is valued in excess of $25 million.

Ning Yeh to display horse art

Ning Yeh, the Chinese brush artist from Claremont who specializes in painting horses, will be demonstrating the ancient form of art again this year at the fair.

Due to popular request, Yeh, who showed his work at the fair in 1972, will have a double showing this year.

Born in Hunan, China, in 1947, and raised in Taiwan, Yeh started painting at the age of 7. His father, Maj. Gen. Tsui Pai Yeh, is one of the most famous horse painters in China.

Yeh started out by practicing calligraphy, a Chinese form of writing which involves meditation. This "total emptiness of the brain" that he achieves helps him capture his horses on paper.

Watching this dedicated young artist at work is a unique experience. His throw-ink style of painting horses utilizes brush, ink, and rice paper, plus concentration.

There are two types of brushes that artists use -- hard and soft. Yeh explained why he prefers the soft goat hair brush.

"A hard brush gives strength but lacks the graceful, mild, and watery feeling that can be created with a soft brush. A horse is a well-balanced animal between grace and strength. A soft brush is weak in presenting strength. So we have a special process to get the ability to get strength."

This special process that Yeh refers to is the calligraphy which he practiced diligently as a boy and now as a man. It aids him in controlling the brush and helps him concentrate on his work.

The ink that is used is smoked pai ash ground into powder and then mixed with water and a special kind of glue.

Yeh always stands to do his work. With paper laid out flat in front of him he pauses and then starts to paint. He begins first with the head, using a very gentle stroke to draw the outline in thick, black ink. Watered down ink is used for shading.

After the head comes the neck and the mane, both done in swift strokes. The talented young artist stands back occasionally to survey his work and then returns to the paper with brush.

'Bump in night' items on display

Snakes, lizards and other things that go bump in the night will be featured in today's Reptile Show at the fair.

Some of Southern California's "most intriguing" reptiles will be on display in the one-day show in Building 3-A, according to fair officials. Twenty-four divisions of the event will include snakes, lizards, alligators, tortoises, turtles and amphibians.

Exhibitors will be bona fide owners of the reptiles. No poisonous snakes have been accepted for the event. Persons over 6 and under 18 are those eligible for the exhibit.

Entrants will be showing their reptiles in their own containers.

Winners will receive ribbons and trophies, with judging based on the condition and quality of the entry as well as the container and complementary support material.

Livestock auction set

Steers, lambs and hogs will all be sold to the highest bidder at the Junior Livestock Auction to be held on Sept. 18 at the fair.

The animals have all been raised as projects by college students, members of the Future Farmers of America, 4-H Club members, and interested young persons between the ages of 6 and 18. Before the bidding the animals will compete in the livestock division of the fair. All animals must compete and specified requirements must be met before the animal can compete.

The auction, in Ring 3 in the livestock area, is open to the public. Bidding for the lambs and hogs starts at 1 p.m. and the beef sale commences at 7 p.m.

The fun days will be coordinated by Los Angeles County Department of Senior Citizens Affairs and co-sponsored by Senior Citizens Association of Los Angeles County; City of Los Angeles Recreation and Parks Department and the fair.

Host and hostesses are from the Pomona Senior Citizens Touring Club.

Aquarium show

The Aquarium Show at the fair will feature angels, convicts, hatchets and swords.

Those are just four of the many varieties of tropical fish which can be seen during the Pomona show.

The event will consist of three shows, each highlighting a different variety of tropical fish. A tank show for saltwater, tropical and gold fishes will run through Sept. 29, a bowl show for guppies through Sept. 17 and a bowl for Bettas from Sept. 20 to 25.

JULIA DeVRIES

Dairy princess at county fair

Miss Julia DeVries of Upland, 1974-75 California Dairy Princess, will visit the Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona and the California Dairy Industry Association banquet at the fairgrounds Thursday.

Miss DeVries' visit will be part of her tour of the state as spokesman for the dairy industry when she speaks up for milk.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Case DeVries who operate a 1,000-head herd in Ontario, Miss DeVries gained her title in June at the Hollywood Palladium.

Princess Julia is 5 feet 10, a graduate of Upland High School, and a 1974 home economics graduate of Central College at Pella, Iowa.

At school, she was a member of the Home Ec Club, college sorority, and was active in all school activities. Her hobbies range from cooking and sewing to art projects and music. During her one-year reign, Princess Julia will appear at fairs, parades and special events, will give more than 500 speeches to service clubs and women's groups, and travel about 50,000 miles about the state.

The California Dairy Princess is sponsored in her statewide activities by the California Milk Producers Advisory Board, a dairy farmer organization dedicated to the nonbrand promotion of milk and milk products.

Photo experts from around the United States and a number of foreign countries are competing in the 18th annual Los Angeles CountyFair International Exhibition of Photography through Sept. 29.

Competition was expected to draw more than 2,000 entrants from the United States, Canada, Czechoslovakia, Scotland, Vietnam, Hungary, Austria, France and other countires.

Five categories will be judged during the competition: prints (either color or monochrome), pictorial color slides, nature slides, stereo slides and humorous prints.

Awards will be presented by various photographic societies and the county fair.

Hog callers to vocalize

Hog callers are limbering up their vocal chords for the 21st annual hog calling contest scheduled for Sept. 25 at 5 p.m. at the fair.

According to the rules, hog callers will be judged on four factors. These include the call, animal response, audience reaction and appearance—callers must dress in the spirit of the event.

The caller receiving the most points will be declared the champion hog caller for 1974 and will be awarded a trophy and a ham. Second through fifth place winners will receive ribbons and all contestants will receive a slab of bacon.

There are only two formal rules a participant must observe: no food intended for the hogs or otherwise will be allowed in the ring; and during the actual competition, each contestant will be restricted to a six-foot circle, and chasing the hogs is forbidden.

Four dairies win medals

Four local dairies were awarded gold medals in the annual dairy products competition at the fair.

Dairy products judged in the competition included butter, cheddar cheese, cottage cheese, buttermilk, sour cream and yogurt.

In this year's competition Foothill Dairy in Azusa was awarded a gold medal for buttermilk and a silver medal for small curd cottage cheese.

Covina Dairy Meadows Dairy of Covina also received a gold medal for small curd cottage cheese.

Glendora Dairy won a silver medal for their buttermilk.

In addition, Alta-Dena Dairy in the City of Industry won gold medals for 10 of the products they entered. These included butter, small curd cottage cheese, buttermilk, sour cream, plain yogurt, strawberry yogurt and boysenberry yogurt. They also received a silver medal for their sharp cheddar cheese.

ELNA SPEAKS OUT!
We introduced stretch stitches 22 years ago. How can anyone else talk about "new" stretch stitches? Those "now" stretch stitches may be new to some . . . but not to Elna. Elna created the multiple stitch zigzag in 1952. Triple reinforced stetch stitch in 1960. Overlock stitch in 1963. And recently, Elna has added some more stretch stitches. Elna delivers seven different and practical stretch stitches. Not just decorative patterns with reverse stitching action. Then there is not a question that "Elna" outstretches them all". All this performance is backed by years of experience producing the finest home sewing machines in the world! The name quality and depenability. Come in and test sew on Elna. You'll see for yourself. Hofmann ends career

By JON MORRIS
P-B Staff Writer

Harry Hofmann deserves a better fate than being remembered as a "spry old man."

A co-worker jokingly described him as such recently, but the longtime publicity director of the Los Angeles County Fair was also pictured as "loveable, personable and easy-going."

Hofmann's raspy voice and genial manner will be missed, for sure, when he retires after the 47th fair, on Oct. 15. He has logged 12 years as head of advertising and publicity for the fair association.

Besides having "200 newspaper people on my back" at fair time, Hofmann, 65, prepares all media and outdoor advertising, news releases, print banners, brochures and other promotional materials.

He supervises an office staff of eight, including secretaries and publicity assistants.

During what he terms the off season, Hofmann continues to "plug" the fair with brochures and interim use stories.

One of his major duties, an idea he originated himself, is "Thummer's Daily Report", a house organ issued each morning during the fair. It is geared primarily for fair concessionaires and exhibitors.

Hofmann was honored last May with publication of a story in "Amusement Business", a brochure for fair officials, detailing "Thummer's Daily Report".

Perhaps one reason Hofmann is often described as "colorful" is that he has been a newspaperman, actor, horse owner, special events director, horse show manager and announcer, and publicity director for a number of California fairs during his 46-year career.

A native of the San Jacinto area, Hofmann worked as a staff member of the "Hemet News" "off and on" from 1928 to 1948.

Hofmann was personnel director for Ryan School of Aeronautics in Hemet and owned and raised thoroughbreds on a ranch in San Jacinto before taking his first job as a fair publicity man.

He managed Riverside County's Farmers Fair for five years before purchasing the San Jacinto Valley Register in 1956. "My father left me some money, and I fulfilled a lifelong ambition to own and run a weekly newspaper," he said.

He departed San Jacinto in 1959 to become publicity director for the Orange Show in San Bernardino for two years. During his career he also served in various capacities with the Indio Date Festival, San Diego County Fair, Placer County Fair, and Madera and Imperial City fairs.

In January of 1962, Hofmann arrived in Pomona to be assistant publicity director for the county fair. In early 1963, he took over as publicity director.

"I've had a kaleidoscope of experiences during my years as publicity man here," he says.

"One of the most en... ing was when we hired a p... to fly a banner advertising the fair. The guy was taking a practice run and decided to fly over Dodger Stadium. Well, it happened that Sen. Barry Goldwater was speaking at the time, and he buzzed Goldwater. We were up all night getting everything under control from Washington, D.C. to Pomona."

Hofmann remembers that the phone rang "off the hook" that night. Some callers said it was great, but we also received some hate calls."

During his career, Hofmann also has been associated with Ramona Outdoor Pageant in Hemet, as an actor and member of the board of directors. "I played Luigo and Felipe," he declared. Later, he named his son Phil after Felipe.

Hofmann has three children: a daughter, Judy, and two sons, Donald and Phil. Judy is a teacher in Long Beach. Donald is a doctor in San Francisco and Phil, a teacher in El Cajon.

He has resided in the Palmer Canyon area north of Claremont for a number of years.

The 47th fair is Hofmann's last, but he won't be "retiring", he claims. "I look on it as starting a new life. There will be no retirement homes for me."

Hofmann will teach an adult school class in public relations in Covina, and do free lance wrirting.

He expects to prepare some remedial reading books with his son, Phil, who teaches the course.

Zealanders to perform

One of the world's most acclaimed concert brass bands, the New Zealand National Band, is performing at the fair as part of the free grandstand entertainment through Sept. 22.

Under the direction of Norman Thorn, the colorful band is appearing nightly at 8 and Sundays at 2 and 7:30 p.m.

The prestigious band is one of the few true brass bands. Unlike military bands, there are no reed or woodwind instruments, and yet the New Zealand band sounds like a concert hall orchestra.

All 60 of the musicians are amateurs. Occupations of the members vary from businessmen to students to skilled tradesmen.

Familiar tunes from musical productions of "Show Boat," "South Pacific" and "West Side Story" plus marches, classical music, native Maori melodies and light music will be performed by the group.

Featured with the band are the Aotearoa Maori Group, native dancers who will present traditional dances, chants, games and modern action songs native to the Maori tribe of New Zealand.

Appearing in the same show is the Royal Manadians Mounted Police Musical Ride.

Mounties to ride again in free show

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police Musical Ride will be the featured grandstand attraction for the first portion of the fair.

The group of 32 horsemen and their sleek mounts will be performing nightly through Sept. 22. The shows are free to the public.

The colorful Mounties will perform a series of intricate maneuvers on horseback, in time to assorted melodies. This year the musical accompaniment will be provided by the National Band of New Zealand.

Members of the Musical Ride are trained policemen, on leave from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who have volunteered to serve on the ride for two years and then return to their regular duty.

To prepare for the show each Mountie spends four months in training with his horse to perfect drills and patterns. During this time, he strives to become "one" with his mount.

Performances by the Musical Ride are scheduled for Monday through Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Amateurs taste wines

Ahateur wine connoisseurs will have the chance to match their taste buds with those of the judges by sampling award-winning wines at the fair's wine cellar.

The cellar is located in the agriculture building and is open through Sept. 23.

This year's grand prize award was captured by Triple Cream Sherry, which is produced by Cresta Blanca Winery in San Francisco.

Fifty-five of California's top vintners entered 483 of their choicest wines before a panel of 20 wine tasting connoisseurs during the fair's annual wine judging competition. The contest is the only official wine tasting competition held in the United States.

After two days of sampling, the judges awarded 56 gold medals, 80 silver medals and 61 bronze medals. Honorable mention went to 21 other top wines.

In the special division for wines bottled in California in large volume, 12 entries received first place awards, nine received second place ribbons and five received third place ribbons.

Heading the panel of judges for the eighth year was Nathan L. Chroman of Beverly Hills. The panel was composed of four women and 16 men.

Wines winning gold medals this year include Cream Marsala and Emerald Riesling produced by Assumption Abbey Winery, Guasti; Haut Sauterne and Brambleberry, Bargetto's Santa Cruz Winery, Soquel; Ruby Port, Tokay, Guasti Mint, Apricot, Golden Rose' (Light Muscat), Sweet Vermouth and Guasti Chocolate, Brookside Vineyard Co., Guasti; and A. R. Morrow Brandy 100, Eleven Cellars White Port, Eleven Cellars Cold Duck and Ambassador Dry Vermouth (M), California Wine Association, Delano.

In addition, gold medals were won by Ceremony Brandy (5-years-old), Ceremony Brandy Wine Cellars, Lodi; Vino Fiamma da Pranzo and Vino Bianco da Pranzo, B. Cribari and Sons Winery, San Francisco; Conti-Royale Brandy (10-years-old), Conti-Royale Tawny Port, Conti-Royale Cocktail Sherry, and Conti-Royale Cream Sherry, East-side Winery, Lodi; Petit Syrah, Fortino Winery, Gilroy; American Sweet Vermouth, Italian Type and O-F Raspberry, Gibson Wine Company, Elk Grove; Classic Cabernet Rouge and Classic Petite Sirah, Giumarra Vineyards Corporation, Edison; Zingandel, Hecker Pass Winery, Gilroy; and Barbera, Kenwood Winery, Kenwood.

Extra Dry Champagne, Hanns Kornell Champagne Cellars, St. Helena; Ancient Proverb Port, Great D-r-ry Sherry, Dry Wit Sherry and Superb Extra Dry Champagne, Llords and Elwood Winery, Fremont; Medium Sherry, J. Mathews Napa Valley Winery, Newport Beach; Chardonnay, Mt. Edan Vineyard, Saratoga; Black Muscat, Muscat Frontignan and Angelica, Novitiate Wines, Los Gatos; Gamay Beaujolais and Pinot Noir, J. Pedroncelli Winery, Geyserville; and Plum, Nave' Pierson Winery, Los Angeles.

CONCENTRATION — George Starke, Brea geologist, obviously considers wine tasting a serious business. Starke was one of a panel of judges who tasted wines at the fair this year. Here, he samples Rhine wine.

Youngsters demonstrate artistry

Aspiring young artists and craftsmen from southland schools are showing off their masterpieces in the Public Schools Exhibit at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Theme this year is "Aims of Education," and about 4,000 students from 205 schools have submitted their work. They range in age from preschoolers to college students.

The youngsters work during the school year on ceramics, stitchery, batik; macrame, murals, wood and metal work, oil, watercolor and acrylic painting, mixed media and drawings, sculpture and photography.

Instructors from the individual schools select the best work for the exhibit. Items chosen for display receive awards of merit.

Local colleges and specialized schools, such as the California Association for Neurologically Handicapped Children, prepare their own displays.

Cal Poly, for example, has a computer and laser beam used for voice communication as part of their exhibit.

Visitors to the fair will see live demonstrations by school children. A woodworking area is being prepared where youngsters can show off proficiency in building furniture and other pieces.

In the "arena," a small stage inside the public schools building, visitors can see live entertainment by local children, including magic shows, dance and singing groups.

The exhibit is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Fred Allen record

You were expecting maybe--?

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Howard S. Brenner has been marketing tapes of old radio shows since he was 14 years old and now, at the bright old age of 23, he has issued his first long-play record.

From his catalogue of more than 4,000 tapes, Brenner chose two Fred Allen broadcasts to start his new venture. Although he had not been born when these shows were aired, Brenner could not have made a better selection.

Allen broadcast are of the half-hour segments on Oct. 28, 1945 and the other on April 11, 1948.

Marketed as "Vintage Radio Broadcasts—Fred Allen" "Mar-Bren MBR 741). The recording includes commercials. And the "Allen's Alley" segments get the shows off to a fine start.

If you can remember way back when, you'll enjoy Allen's on the spot interviews with Senator Claghorn, Titus Moody, Mrs. Nussbaum, Ajax Cassidy and McGee and McGee.

The 1945 show delves into women's lib with Allen asking his friends in the Alley, "How do you think women will fit into the postwar business world? Mrs. Nussbaum says she thinks it will be possible for a woman to become President of the United States but laments that "there's one thing a woman can never become—the father of our country."

The shows include songs by the DeMarco Sisters and skits involving Allen with Charlie McCarthy and Basil Rathbone. They were hilarious at that time and still may amuse a 1974 audience.

At this writing, Brenner does not have national distribution and the Fred Allen record may not be available except in certain areas. Brenner plans to issue a 200-page booklet listing all of his tapes later in the year and information may be obtained by writing to Mar-Bren Sound Co., 420 Pelham Road, Rochester, N.Y. 14610.

You can also take a trip into nostalgia with "Les Paul and Mary Ford—The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise" (Capitol ST-11308).

Les and Mary burst upon the scene in 1951 with a new sound that made them the most talked about performers in show business. The sound was an amplified guitar and an echo chamber for Mary's voice.

Paul's guitar does not have the heavy shadings of the instruments used by rock stars today but it planted the seeds.

In addition to the title tune, which was a best seller, the album includes "How High the Moon" and "Bye Bye Blues" as well as "Lover" and "Vaya Con Dios."

Photography show now on at museum

"Changing Times," the ninth annual exhibition of the Professional Photographers West, is on view through Nov. 17 at the California Museum of Science and Industry, Exposition Park, Los Angeles.

The exhibit is made up of 231 color and black and white photographs selected from more than 500 entries.

"Imagination, experimentation and creativity are the keys to this year's exhibit," says Karl Gene, show director and a professional photographer. "The trend seems to be toward the classic style of the old masters and continued interest in natural environment."

An exhibition of painting by women of Japan and the United States will be the subject of a lecture at the Pacificulture-Asia Museum, 46 N. Los Robles Ave., Pasadena, from 2 to 4 this afternoon. Admission is free.

Dr. Jae Carmichael, director of the Pacificulture-Asia Museum, will introduce the collection and describe the expression of eastern and western cultures through their women painters. Mrs. R. E. Reynolds of Pasadena is chairman for the Japan America Society's cultural program series, Mr. and Mrs. Toshio Kondo of Pasadena are host and hostess for the event.

Ballet company to take dance to black community of Oakland

By RICHARD M. HARNETT

OAKLAND (UPI) — A vigorous young ballet company is out to turn that formerly white, elitist art form into a popular activity for the heavily black community of Oakland.

The Oakland Ballet received a boost when it got a permanent home last year in the Orpheum Theater. Michael Lawson, a 28-year-old deputy city attorney of nearby Berkeley, was named president of the board of directors.

Lawson, a black long distance runner in college, believes "arts in general have been neglected in this area, in the sense that they were presented to a select few. I am interested in expanding the performing arts in the inner city."

Last season the Oakland Ballet performed before 100,000 persons, including 11,000 Oakland school children who saw four special performances and were awed.

"Have you ever seen 3,000 kids in a theater in dead silence?" said Lawson.

This year, the ballet plans an increased schedule and more efforts to bring the ballet to children of all races through performances and special programs in schools.

Two black artists from New York's Joffrey Ballet company are performing with the local company.

"We are not attempting to play to any particular racial segment," said Lawson. "But we are interested in bringing more blacks into the performing arts. You have to start when the children are very young."

Lawson has the city recreation department and many other groups contributing to the ballet program. Once youngsters get acquainted with the dance, they will have opportunities to practice and learn if they want.

The attorney said he himself occasionally takes a turn at it, and believes it requires more skill than any sport except gymnastics. "I do long-distance running, and admire the discipline necessary to achieve a fair amount of skill in this or in ballet."

The Oakland Ballet, while seeking status among the nation's foremost companies, is at the same time trying to "develop talent and to bring the ballet to cultural and ethnic groups which never had it traditionally."

The company now has a $300,000 annual budget, with 36 dancers. It is beginning to tour on the West Coast and hopes to achieve "big time" ballet status in a few years.

MSAC appoints new head of art gallery

Michael A. Preble, assistant gallery director for contemporary graphics at the Circle Gallery, Los Angeles, has been appointed art gallery director at Mt. San Antonio College.

Preble's duties will include mounting seven major exhibitions this year in the newly remodeled gallery. His first show will feature MSAC art department faculty members in "3 to Go." Ceramics and paintings by Carol Thompson, John Blough, and Roy McCowan will be on display from the opening reception Sept. 24 to Oct. 18.

In addition to his Circle Gallery position, Preble was also a consultation assistant to the Downey Museum, and was sales organizer and gallery assistant for the Aaron Brothers Art Galleries in Los Angeles.

He completed his undergraduate studies at Cornell University in 1969 with a major in modern art and a minor in anthropology. He will complete his master's program in contemporary art and architecture at UC Santa Barbara this spring. Preble has been researching his topic, "Biomorphism and the Art of William Baziotes," since 1971.

Following the opening show, "3 to Go," Preble will present the paintings and graphics of Inez Johnson in October, and selections of Oriental art in November.

The Spectrum

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

CAPSULE REVIEW — By Bob Nagey — People who have reached their 60s simply can't dance as well as they did 30 years ago. If you can accept that, you will enjoy "Good News," now playing at the plush Shubert Theater in Century City, starring Alice Faye and John Payne.

The 1920s musical comedy is the vehicle which the two chose for a comeback after many years away from acting. Unfortunately the requirements of the high stepping and energetic production numbers are simply two much for the two aging stars.

Next to the rest of the cast, they appear to barely go through their numbers. Thus, watching Miss Faye as Professor Kenyon and Payne as Coach Johnson becomes primarily an exercise in nostalgia.

Not that anything is wrong with that, particularly if one is a fan of Payne and Miss Faye. There are many things to be nostalgic about — the good old times when winning the football game was the most important thing in the life of a college, the solid venerable show tunes, "You're the Cream in My Coffee," "The Best Things in Life Are Free," "Button Up Your Overcoat," "Keep Your Sunny Side Up," and others that captivated the nation.

But it's the youngsters who really carry the show. Theatergoers will enjoy the flawless singing of Marti Polph, the clowning of Barbara Lail and Wayne Bryan, and the way Stubby Kaye and Tommy Breslin ham things up.

And they will long remember the Varsity Rag production number—a dazzling show of effervescence, excitement and energy.

Incidentally, it's a long show. You won't be home until 12:30.

Arthur M. Sackler Collection

Chinese art exhibition set at county museum

An exhibition of 41 Chinese paintings from the Arthur M. Sackler Collection of New York and Princeton, N.J. will be on display in the Far Eastern Galleries of the county Museum of Art from Sept. 24 to Nov. 17.

The Sackler collection includes masterpieces from the 14th to the 20th centuries, with emphasis on the 17th Century. Its unique strength lies in 15 important works of painting and calligraphy by Tao-chi (1641-ca. 1710) a Ming loyalist, half Taoist, half Buddhist, a wild "mountain man" and the leading individualist master of the early Ch'ing period. These 15 objects—seven scrolls and eight albums (comprising 73 individual leaves) all of the highest quality—demonstrate the full stylistic range of Tao-chi's landscape, figure, flower and bamboo painting, and of his calligraphy. An album leaf, "The Echo," of 1677-78, is the earliest dated work by Tao-chi in a western collection, and an album of 12 scenes, "Reminiscences of Nanking," dated 1707, represents his latest dated landscapes. The Sackler group constitutes the largest collection of authenticated works by this major Ch'ing dynasty artist.

In addition to Tao-chi, 23 other Chinese artists are represented in the Sackler collection. On exhibition will be hanging scrolls, handscrolls, albums and fans by leading masters of the Yuan, Ming and Ch'ing periods including: Ma Wan (ca. 1310-1378), Wen Cheng-ming (1470-1559), Ch'iu Ying (ca. 1499-1552), Lan Ying (1585-1664), Hung-jen (1610-1664), Cha Shih-piao (1615-1698), Fan Ch'i (1616-1694) and Kung Hsien (ca. 1618-1689). Thirty-five of the exhibited paintings are on loan from the Art Museum of Princeton University and six from the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.

Problems of authentication abound in Chinese painting, partly because of the practice of repeating and reworking classical styles, always building new styles on the forms of the past. In the exhibition this problem is illustrated in several instances where copies and forgeries are paired with the originals.

An illustrated 392-page catalog, "Studies in Connoisseurship," by Marilyn and Shen Fu, organizers of the exhibition, is available in the museum bookshop for $12.50. The exhibition "Chinese Paintings from the Sackler Collection" has been exceptionally well received at Princeton and the Cleveland Museum of Art and will travel to the Metropolitan Museum in New York after closing in Los Angeles on Nov. 17. It can be seen Tuesday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.and weekends from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is free and free docent tours are offered Thursdays at 12:30 p.m.

CHINESE ART — "Two Children Flying a Kite" by Chinese artist Tao-chi (1641-1710) is one of 41 Chinese paintings from the Arthur M. Sackler Collection which will go on exhibit at the county Museum of Art Sept. 24. Admission is free and guided tours are offered.

Cal State to exhibit artifacts

An exhibition of native American artifacts from the Southwest will open Tuesday in the anthropology museum of Cal State Fullerton.

The collectors, Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Wilson of Mountain Pass, will be present for the opening of the exhibit, which will continue through the fall semester. The museum is in Room 313 of the Humanities-Social Sciences Building.

Wilson, a miner by trade, worked for many years in Arizona and New Mexico where he and his wife, Mildred, pursued their hobby of studying Indian artifacts.

Included in the collection are numerous metates and manos, stone axes, arrowheads, knives and other stone tools; bone awls and scrapers; and pottery. In addition there is a small frog carved from a shell.

Jack L. Zahniser, assistant professor of anthropology, was instrumental in bringing the collection to Cal State. Currently owned by G. L. Brock of Huntington Beach, it will be studied on campus during the coming two years so that the artifacts can be placed in their proper time-space sequence.

BERNADETTE GRAVETTE

Dodgers' lead now 1½ after 4-2 loss

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — —Today is D-day for the Dodgers, and 'Little D' will try to hold off the surging Cincinnati Reds.

The Reds came into town looking to sweep the three-game series and beat the Dodgers in the hectic National League West battle. They are one game away from that sweep after Saturday night's 4-2 victory.

'Little D' Don Sutton (1-9) will try to prevent LA. from falling into a virtual first place tie with Cincy as he tangles with the Reds' Fred Norman (11-11) today at 1:15 p.m. in the showdown weekend finale.

"We gotta win today too," a thoughtful Sparky Anderson observed after Saturday's game. "L.A. right now is still the leader," pointed out the Reds skipper.

The game started badly for the Dodgers and in particular for second baseman Davey Lopes. Lopes booted leadoff man Pete Roses grounder, and then threw the ball passed first baseman Steve Garvey.

Rose wound up at second and Lopes was charged with a double error. Joe Morgan then slapped a double past third to score Rose and Morgan scored as Tony Perez ripped a single to center.

The Dodgers cut the Cincy margin to 2-1 in the bottom of the second. Garvey lead off the frame by lining a double that kicked up chalk on the left field foul line.

Reds hurler Don Gullett proceeded to wild pitch Garvey to third, and Joe Ferguson got him home with a long fly to Rose on the warning track.

Los Angeles knotted the score at 2-all in the last of the third. Steve Yeager started the inning by shooting a single to left.

Geoff Zahn, after two unsuccessful bunt tries, got Yeager to second base anyway with a bouncer to Morgan. Lopes flied out for two away but Bill Buckner cashed in Yeager with a line single to center.

The hit extended Buckner's modest hitting streak to 10 games.

However the joy of the 52,970 fans was shortlived. The Big Red Machine's home run power asserted itself at Zahn's expense.

Perez put the Reds right back on top in the fourth with a mile-high fly which landed in the left field seats for his 27th homer of the year. That gave Cincy a 3-2 lead and they were never headed from that point.

Mike Marshall came out of the bullpen for the 95th time this season to start the fifth inning. It marked one of his earliest appearances of the year.

Marshall controlled the Reds until the eighth, when the home run bug bit the Dodgers again. Little Joe Morgan lit into a Marshall delivery and sent it over the right-center field barrier for an all-important insurance tally.

Gullett, with late inning relief help from Clay Carroll, made the 4-2 advantage stand up. Carroll came on with one away in the eighth and retired all five Dodgers he faced to record a save, his sixth.

"These are the most important three games of the year," Carroll observed in the victorious Cincinnati clubhouse. "But we've got one more to go tomorrow."

Cincy manager Anderson refused to discuss the series but promised he will make a statement after today's game. He did take time to praise Morgan, calling him "The best second baseman in baseball." Anderson also chastised the L.A. writers for alleged misquotes, saying that while it had been a good series for his team it had been a bad one for Anderson due to his published remarks.

Rams take on Ralston's determined Broncs today

DENVER — Denver Bronco coach John Ralston says the Los Angeles Rams, who his team opens the NFL season against here today, are flawless. But Ralston figures the Broncos will win the game anyhow.

Where does Ralston figure the Broncos will be able to find a hole in • KNXT (2), 1 p.m.

the Rams' offense or defense?

"Nowhere," said the third year pro coach.

Then why does he figure the Broncs will win?

"Because we are going to be undefeated and that means we can't lose any games," remarked Ralston. "I was born thinking that way, I've always thought that way and that's the way I'm going to keep on thinking."

While Ralston is bubbling over with optimism, fear might be a more appropriate emotion as his Denver squad faces the awesome 1974 version of the L.A. Rams.

Coach Chuck Knox' squad posted a 5-1 exhibition season slate and seems Super Bowl-bound off of its pre-season form. To compound the problems facing Ralston's Broncs, they go into today's opener minus three starters.

Bronco running back Bobby Anderson is out for the year with a broken ankle. In addition, receiver Haven Moses and offensive tackle Marv Montgomery are also on the injured list. In contrast, the Rams go into the NFL battle healthy and at full strength.

Revenge might be on the minds of the veteran Ram players. Denver won the only previous meeting between the two teams, edging L.A. 16-10 in 1972.

The Rams will go at Denver with with a backfield headed by veteran quarterback John Hadl. Lawrence McCutcheon will start at halfback, with Jim Bertelsen opening up at the fullback position.

Hadl will be throwing to excellent wide receivers Harold Jackson, Jack Snow, Lance Rentzel and Willie McGee and tight ends Bob Klein and Pat Curren.

On defense, the Rams are equally impressive. They gave up only 252.8 yards per game during the pre-season, allowing only 77.3 yards on the ground. The refurbished Ram secondary swiped 14 opposition passes in six pre-league contests.

With the injury to Anderson, Chaffey High product Jon Keyworth will probably get the starting nod at fullback. Keyworth paced all Bronco runners in the pre-season with 332 yards rushing good for a 5.2 yards-per-carry average.

Super runner Floyd Little could give the Rams fits from his halfback spot, while vet Charley Johnson will open at the quarterback position.

Dick Allen airs his retirement after 11 years

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dick Allen, the leading home run slugger of the American League for the Chicago White Sox, Saturday night announced he is retiring from major league baseball after an 11 year career.

Allen, at $225,000 a year for a three year contract the highest paid player in baseball, has hit 32 home runs this year in Chicago's fruitless pursuit of the Oakland A's in the American League's Western Division. He has 88 RBI's.

But he gave all that up with his bombshell announcement just before the Sox were about to take on the California Angels.

First, he talked to owner John Allyn and then to manager Chuck Tanner.

Then, typically, he called a players' meeting in the clubhouse a half hour before game time.

"This is hard for me to say," Allen told his teammates. "I've never been happier anywhere than here.

"You're a good ball team without me and you have a good man leading you. It's tough to walk away from the game I've been playing and loving, been playing, in fact since I was this high."

At this point, Allen's voice broke.

Poly Broncs win wild one, 37-27

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

Quarterback Jim Zorn, who is being promoted for All-American honors by Cal Poly, certainly helped the cause Saturday night when he accounted for 505 total yards in leading the Broncos to a 37-27 win over Southern Utah.

It was Zorn's biggest night as a Bronco and that's saying a lot considering he led the national NCAA Division II statistics last year with 3,000 yards total offense.

Zorn, who completed his first 11 pass attempts, ended up by connecting on 20 of his 33 throws for 395 yards. In addition, he ran for 110 yards on 21 carries including two touchdowns.

"I just felt super confident tonight," Zorn said after the win. "We worked on blocking assignments this week and it was pretty. I could just stand back and throw."

Tailback Rich Paulson also had a big night in leading Poly to the win before approximately 2,000 fans in new Coach Andy Vinci's home debut.

Paulson, who came north with Vinci from the University of San Diego, tied a school record by running for three touchdowns and accounted for 109 yards on 24 carries.

Zorn's favorite targets were Andy Sanchez and Ernie Yarbrough. Sanchez grabbed nine for 152 yards while Yarbrough caught seven for 198.

There were two different games at Kellogg Field Saturday. The defense was missing in the first half when the two teams totaled 50 points but the offenses slowed down in the second half.

Poly, 2-0 entering next week's road game at San Francisco State, had a rough time holding off Southern Utah. The Broncs kept building their lead only to have the Thunderbirds bounce back.

But the Poly defense, which had little to brag about with a 30-21 lead at halftime, held in the second half until the T-Birds scored their final touchdown with 2:17 left in the game.

Poly opened the scoring on its first offensive series. On his first play of the game, Zorn completed a 53-yard pass to Yarbrough to the Southern Utah 25. Six plays later, Paulson scored his first TD on a three-yard run.

But Southern Utah quickly tied it with Brian Pringle scoring from the one. Poly made it 14-7 late in the first period on Zorn's one-yard plunge.

Interceptions lift Arkansas past USC, 22-7

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Halfback Ike Forte ran 27 yards for one touchdown and the Arkansas secondary intercepted four passes Saturday night to lead the unranked Razorbacks to a shocking 22-7 upset of No. 4 Southern California despite Anthony Davis' 106-yard kickoff.

Arkansas scored first when safety Floyd Hogan intercepted a pass from USC quarterback Pat Haden at the two-yard line and returned it 66 yards to the Trojan 32. Three plays later, Forte took a pitch and galloped around left end for the first score of the game.

On the ensuing kickoff, Davis took the kickoff six yards deep in the end zone and barrelled untouched straight up the field for the touchdown.

In the second quarter, Arkansas went ahead 10-7 after Billy Burns recovered a Davis fumble on the USC 28. The drive stalled at the four, and Steve Little kicked a 22-yard field goal with 2:35 left in the half. Little added a 20-yard field goal in the third quarter.

The Hogs took control of the game after Tommy Harris intercepted a Haden pass at the Arkansas 35. On runs by quarterback Mark Miller of 13 and Marsh White of 16, the Hogs drove to the one-foot line where Miller dived over for the score.

Arkansas' other points came in the fourth quarter on a safety when Haden dropped back to pass and stepped out of the end zone.

OWLS ON THE MOVE

Citrus College quarterback Bill Strycula (16) turns to hand off to his running back Ed White (42) during the Owls' battle with Mt. San Antonio College Saturday night.

Mounties score in final 26 seconds

MSAC stages rally to catch Citrus, 14-14

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

Overcoming a jittery first half, Mt. San Antonio launched two touchdown drives in the third and fourth quarters Saturday night to tie Citrus, 14-14, in the season opener for both teams at MSAC's Memorial Stadium in Walnut.

MSAC scored the tying touchdown with 26 seconds to play on a four-yard pass from quarterback Kurt Porter to wide receiver Mike Hill. Mando Herrera kicked the extra point after a five-yard penalty for too much time moved the Mounties out of position to try for the two-point conversion.

Hill, a freshman from CIF 4-A champion Los Altos High, caught a five-yard TD pass from Porter late in the third period as MSAC played catch-up after a sloppy first half which Citrus dominated.

Porter, a freshman from Rosemead, came off the bench in the second quarter to replace Charter Oak's Jim Winklepleck at quarterback. Porter completed 8 of 17 attempts for 96 yards and the two TDs. He was intercepted once.

Citrus scored twice in the first 15 minutes for a 14-0 lead that held up through the first half of play.

Freshman tailback Roy Prather scored the first TD on 41-yard gallop on the third play of the Owls' first series of the night. Kevin Hagerty kicked the extra point.

Sophomore fullback Ed White, who led all rushers for the evening with 117 yards on 22 carries, scored the second TD on a 16-yard run with 1:19 to play in the first quarter. White also caught six passes for 70 yards.

With Prather and White carrying the football, Citrus outgained the Mounties on the ground in the first half, 145-37. Quarterback Bill Strycula added 64 yards through the air, completing five of six attempts. He completed the game with 105 yards, completing 9 of 12.

The second half was a different story.

The Mounties came out running and passing. Freshman tailback Robert "Binky" Benton, another Los Altos product, led the charge as MSAC racked up 99 yards on the ground to Citrus' 66.

Benton, a miniature tank at 5-foot-7, 180, amassed 95 yards on 25 carries for the evening.

The Mounties drove inside the Owl 25-yard line three times without scoring. Citrus was inside MSAC's 20 twice and came away empty handed.

Hagerty tried a 31-yard field goal for Citrus with 11 seconds left in the first half, but the ball hit the cross bar and bounced away harmlessly into the end zone.

'Huskers annihilate Ducks

By United Press International

The nations top-ranked teams ran into some unexpected difficulties before pulling out victories Saturday afternoon, with Nebraska the sole exception as the Cornhuskers annihilated Oregon, 61-7.

Paul "Bear" Bryant returned to College Park, Md., where he began his coaching career in 1945 and his second-ranked Alabama squad had to battle all the way to subdue Maryland, 21-16.

"There is a big difference in winning a game and beating someone," Bryant said. "We won the game, but we sure didn't beat them. They whipped us all over the field."

The Bear was being a little harsh on his troops, as the Crimson Tide also had the better of it statistically. But Richard Todd needed to fake a fourth-quarter punt and run 10 yards for a first down to slow the Terps' second half momentum and preserve the 'Bama victory.

Todd, who was named to start at quarterback in place of injured Gary Rutledge, accounted for the third and decisive Alabama TD with a seven-yard scamper. Calvin Culliver scored a pair of first-half touchdowns for the Tide.

Louis Carter ran over from the one and Steve Mike-Mayer kicked three field goals for the Maryland scoring.

Seventh-ranked Penn State needed Woody Petchel's touchdown dive with 2:19 left in the game to defeat Stanford, 24-20, in a nationally-televised game and extend its home winning streak to 21 games.

Top-ranked Ohio State's Archie Griffin set a school career rushing record by racing for 133 yards and one touchdown to lead the Buckeyes to a 34-19 victory at Minnesota. Griffin, in rushing for more than 100 yards in the 12th straight game, broke Jim Otis' school record of 2,542 career yards.

Michigan also found the going against Iowa, winless last season, tougher than anticipated as the Wolverines downed the Hawkeyes, 24-7.

But sixth-ranked Nebraska devastated the Oregon defense as Heisman Trophy candidate David Humm passed for two touchdowns and scored another.

Disappearing winds delay America's Cup race again

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Fickle winds that switched direction and then disappeared scrubbed the third race Saturday in the America's Cup series between defender Courageous and Australian challenger Southern Cross, with the re-run scheduled for Monday.

The wind, at times, dropped to less than two knots in what turned into a drifting match. The boats were unable to complete the 24.3 mile course in the maximum 5 ½ hours allowed and the race was cancelled at 5:40 p.m. EDT as Courageous rounded the fifth of six marks.

Courageous, leading 2-0 in the best-of-seven series, established a tremendous advantage on the first leg as its crew anticipated a major wind shift from northwest to southwest and moved into a three-minute lead rounding the first mark. She had trailed Southern Cross by eight seconds at the start.

That lead advanced to 14 minutes, 34 seconds by the fourth mark, but the actual difference between the 12-meter yachts was only a few hundred yards.

Sports news in brief

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Roone Arledge, president of ABC Television Sports, confirmed Saturday that former Kansas City Chiefs defensive back Fred "The Hammer" Williamson has been released from his job as commentator for ABC's Monday night football games.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The doubles team of Peggy Michel and Janet Newberry pulled a stunning upset over Evonne Goolagong and Leslie Hunt, 1-6, 7-5, 7-5, to key a four-match U.S. sweep Saturday for a 4-2 lead in the Bonne Bell Cup tennis tournament.

CEDAR GROVE, N.J. (UPI) — Ilie Nastase of Romania played a total of 74 minutes Saturday to win two matches and move into position for the top prize in the Perspectus Classic.

Nastase, the No. 1 seeded player, will face Juan Gisbert of Spain, No. 5, Saturday for the championship which earns the winner $10,000 and 40 Grand Prix points.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Jane Blalock shot a par 71 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead after two rounds of the second annual $40,000 Charity Golf Classic.

Miss Blalock's 36-hole total of 140 was two under par over the Woodlake Country Club course.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh chapter of the NAACP Friday lauded the Pittsburgh Steelers management and said "another racial barrier in our nation" will be broken today when Joe Gilliam, a black, starts at quarterback for the Steelers in their regular-season opener against the Baltimore Colts at Three Rivers Stadium.

Farmer, Cougars stop USD, 15-7

Azusa Pacific College opened its 1974 football season with a 15-7 victory over the University of San Diego Saturday afternoon on the Cougars' field.

APC played grind-it-out football as running back Jim Farmer rushed for 143 yards on 27 carries and scored on a two yard run in the second quarter.

The Cougars, trailing 7-0 at the half on Steve Goodbody's two yard run in the second stanza, scored nine points in the third quarter on Farmer's TD and Jerry Bernard's 29-yard field goal.

Farmer set up Azusa's final touchdown on a 50-yard run with 13 seconds to go in the game. Seconds later, quarterback Rick Dutton iced the game on a two yard run.

Coach Jerry Sconce's Cougars avenged last year's 47-11 setback to USD and at the same time beat the Toreros for the first time in five meetings.

Dick Allen announces completion of career

The Sox players were incredulous at the announcement of the 32-year-old first baseman, who has frequently been in difficulties in baseball but who has always been a powerful force at the bat and the box office since he broke into the majors with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Then his teammates, with hardly a word spoken, lined up to shake his hand.

Tears welled in Allen's eyes.

There was no immediate word for the reasons behind Allen's decision.

He had suited up for the game and had taken batting and infield practice, a rarity for the ballplayer who had made it plain throughout his career that he did not consider it necessary for him to bother with such matters or even to participate in spring practice.

Then he returned to the Sox dugout. A photographer for Chicago Today, the newspaper that ceased publication Friday, commented to him, "Well, I just lost my job."

Allen retorted, "Don't worry, I just lost mine."

MSAC third in CC meet

Mt. San Antonio College placed third Saturday in the Monterey Peninsula Cross Country Invitational with 110 points behind San Jose State (55 points) and Monterey Peninsula (103 pts.).

Ed Magllanes of Mont. Pen. won the event in 19:55 with Jim Ursulo, MSAC's top runner for the day, placing ninth in 20:24. Other Mountie finishers were Art Eddy (20:36), 16th, and Greg Douglas (21:05), 26th.

Richert enters Philly hospital

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Peter Richert will be admitted to Thomas Jefferson Hospital Tuesday for surgery on a blood clot in his left arm, the club said Friday.

Richert will be sidelined for the remainder of the season.

Tanana blanks Chisox as Angels win, 5-0

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox, shocked 30 minutes before game time by the sudden retirement of slugger Dick Allen from baseball, suffered a double setback when they were shut out by southpaw Frank Tanana of the California Angels, 5-0, Saturday night.

Allen, at $225,000 a year the highest paid player in baseball, told a player's meeting a half hour before game time he was retiring from the sport.

With tear-filled eyes, and choked with emotion, Allen bid farewell to his teammates and wished them well.

The Sox and southpaw Wilbur Wood then were shellacked for four runs in the first inning, on four singles, a walk and a sacrifice fly. John Balaz, Ellie Rodriguez and Dave Chalk each singled in a run while Lee Stanton drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

Tanana, who walked two and struck out nine, permitted just six hits in recording his 12th win against 17 losses. Wood, who gave up 11 singles, was tagged with his 18th loss against 20 wins. The veteran southpaw, who walked one and struck out seven, hurled his 21st complete game of the season while making his 41st start.

White Sox owner John Allyn did not express suprise over his slugger's retirement but said the earliest Allen could return is the first week in June next season. Under the voluntary retirement clause in the major leagues, a player must sit out 60 "action" days even if he wants to come out sooner.

Today's a big day in NFL

By United Press International

The 1974 National Football League season, which actually was in doubt a little more than a month ago, opens Sunday with several key questions waiting to be answered.

A strike by the Players Association set back training for five weeks and there was talk of possibly postponing the start of the season rather than going with rookies and free agents. But all that is history now and the questions remain:

—How far behind in their conditioning are the clubs as they enter the first game of the season?

—Will there be any long-lasting animosity between the veterans who struck and those who crossed the picket lines?

—What effect will the new World Football League have on the established NFL?

—Will the rules changes voted in by the owners in April actually open up the game or will they have a negative effect?

—Will the anti-blackout legislation which went into effect last season begin to take its toll this year?

—Can Miami Coach Don Shula achieve his dream of surpassing the late Vince Lombardi and lead the Dolphins to a third Super Bowl?

—Can O.J. Simpson repeat his record-breaking rushing heroics of 1973?

—And can Joe Gilliam become the first black quarterback to make it big in the NFL?

The schedule opens today with five American Conference, six National Conference and one interconfernce game. In AFC play, Baltimore is at Pittsburgh, Cleveland at Cincinnati, Miami at New England, the New York Jets at Kansas City and San Diego at Houston. In the NFC, Dallas is at Atlanta, Detroit at Chicago, Minnesota at Green Bay, San Francisco at New Orleans, Philadelphia at St. Louis and Washington plays the New York Giants at New Haven, Conn. Los Angeles is at Denver in the interconference game while in the Monday night opener, Oakland is at Buffalo.

Most veterans didn't get to training camp until the second week in August and play in the final exhibitions still was ragged. The strike also cost a number of borderline veterans their jobs, with most clubs carrying as many as 15 rookies this season on the new 47-man rosters.

There also is the problem of the lame-duck players, like Larry Csonka and Paul Warfield of Miami and a number of the Dallas Cowboys, who have signed with the WFL for next season and are fulfilling their contract obligations in the NFL this year. Naturally Miami won't let a Csonka or a Warfield go but several other players who didn't fall into the superstar category suddenly found themselves dropped even though they were starters on their clubs.

And the superstars who are committed to the new league may find their every move on the field being questioned.

It's also possible that the WFL will continue to approach players through the NFL season and coaches will have to deal with the problem of late jumpers.

The new rules were designed to alleviate the stereotyped play of NFL clubs in recent years. They were supposed to add offense but in pre-season, the tendency has been more toward conservatism by the coaches.

The rules, in brief, allow for a 15-minute sudden death overtime period in case of tie games. Regarding the kicking game, goal posts have been moved from the goal line to the end line to make field goals more difficult, kickoffs have been moved from the 40 back to the 35-yard line to increase returns, missed field goals will be returned to the line of scrimmage if it is outside the 20, also to cut down on field goals, and only two members of a punting team may go downfield before the ball is kicked.

In the passing game, wide receivers may no longer be roll blocked or cut down after they leave the line of scrimmage and a defender is allowed contact only once with a receiver, eliminating the "bump and run" defensive manuever.

As a safety precaution, wide receivers now may not block below the waist when moving back toward the line of scrimmage, thereby eliminating the dangerous "crackback" block.

One major drawback in preseason, however, has been the tendency to punt out of bounds deep in enemy territory rather than risk the 35-45 yard field goal. Coaches are teaching "coffin-corner" kicking again.

NFL officials also admittedly are worried about ticket sales following the blackout legislation. It came too late last season to affect season ticket sales but as Shula says, "last year's no. shows have become this year's no buys." Many season ticket holders are not renewing, confident they can receive home games on local television.

On the playing field, Shula's dream is three Super Bowls and he already has two. The Dolphins should open on a positive note as they take on a rebuilding New England club at Foxboro, Mass., Sunday.

Simpson, who rewrote the record books in the rushing category last season when he gained an unprecedented 2,003 yards, begins his encore Monday night against one of the toughest defensive units in the league.

Gilliam, the pencil-thin, rifle-armed youngster from Tennessee State, was one of the sensations of pre-season as he led Pittsburgh to a 6-0 mark. He crossed the picket lines, intent on winning a starting job, and deposed glamor-boy Terry Bradshaw and veteran Terry Hanratty.

Garden Grove hands Drake baseball job

Dan Drake, a former standout athlete at Bonita High, Mt. San Antonio Junior College and La Verne College, has been named head baseball coach and assistant football coach at Garden Grove High.

Drake will begin his coaching duties immediately at the Garden Grove school.

A 1969 graduate of Bonita, Drake starred in both football and baseball throughout his high school and college career. He was a pitcher on the 1972 national NAIA champion La Verne baseball squad, compiling a perfect 6-0 mound mark.

Graduating from La Verne in 1973, Drake has spent the past two summers coaching American Legion baseball teams in the area. In addition, he served as assistant football coach at Bonita in 1973 and was an assistant baseball coach for Ben Hines' Leo nine last season.

He was an All-San Antonio League pick as a pitcher in 1969, made all-conference squads in both football and baseball while at MSAC, and was the NAIA District III first team linebacker his senior year at La Verne.

In two years of coaching American Legion programs, Drake compiled a 50-27 won-loss record. His La Verne Post 330 squad won the District 18 crown this past summer.

Baseball players look toward fairway classic

By PHIL ROACHE
P-B Staff Writer

Any number of baseball players, we're told, would gladly turn in their fielding gloves for a golf glove and become professional golfers, if they had the ability. Babe Ruth was envious of Sam Byrd, his substitute in right field for the Yankees, because Sam could belt a golf ball long and straight and play with the pros.

In fact, Sam gave up baseball, turned golf professional and won the Victory Open, a World War II tourney equivalent to the U.S. Open.

Most famous of present-day ball players who turned to golf was Ken Harrelson, the Boston Red Sox slugger who gave up a lucrative baseball career to try the golf circuit.

Latest report is that Ken failed to qualify for his PGA tournament card, but he will keep trying.

Anyway, the professional Athletes Golf Association has announced that the 14th Annual Baseball Classic is set for November 6-10, at the Dunes Hotel and Country Club in Las Vegas.

A field of 144 players is expected to participate in the 54-hole event. Already committed to play are Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds, Ted Sizemore of the St. Louis Cardinals, Jimmy Wynn and Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Philadelphia Phils pitcher George Culver is expected to return to defend the title he won in the past two events. Many big league stars have taken part in past events. Manager Gene Mauch of the Montreal Expos, Del Rice of the California Angels, Willie Davis and Ron Fairly of Montreal, Steve Busby of Kansas City, Randy Hundley of the Minnesota Twins, Duke Sims of the Texas Rangers, Andy Etchebarren of the Baltimore Orioles, and Clyde Wright of the Milwaukee Brewers have all played.

There are special flights for former big leaguers and guests. For playing spots and additional information, contact:

He is the club professional at the Lake Shastina Golf and Country Club, the site of the inaugural event. In addition to being the host club pro, he serves as tournament director.

Looming in the background in this Northern California Siskiyou County wonderland is the majestic 14,162 snow-capped peak, Mt. Shasta.

Sciarra happy to be No. 1

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Nothing personal, Mark Harmon, but John Sciarra is glad to see you're gone.

Sciarra, a talented junior from Alhambra, Calif., is UCLA's No. 1 quarterback this season all by himself.

"It feels great, it really does," said the Bruins' new single game total offense record holder. "It's a super feeling. Now I don't have to worry about anything else but the next team we're playing."

Sciarra, in his third year on the UCLA varsity, is running Dick Vermeil's Veer T, a new offense under a new head coach, after splitting the Bruins' Wishbone quarterbacking duties with Harmon under Pepper Rodgers last season.

In their opener at Tennessee last weekend, the 12th-rated Bruins gained a 17-17 tie after falling behind 10-0 in the first quarter.

Sciarra shattered Dennis Dummit's one-game total offense record with 390 yards, hitting 15 of 21 passes for 212 yards and rushing for 178 yards on 19 carries.

If he keeps up that pace for the Bruins' other 10 games in 1974, he will wind up with 4,290 yards.

"I'm not going to say we're going to the Rose Bowl for sure," he said, "but I will say we have enough talent to take it all. It's just a matter of not making mistakes and living up to our potential."

Sciarra said he wasn't aware of his statistics at Knoxville.

"When you're out on the field," he stressed, "you have no idea what you've done. As a matter of fact, I was upset after the game because I didn't think I played that well.

"Then somebody walked up and told me. It was a surprise, believe me. But nobody is superman in this game. On some of those completions, I had 15 minutes to throw the ball. Our offensive line is one of the best in the country."

Sciarra was asked how tough the transition from a Wishbone quarterback to a Veer quarterback was and he replied:

"Really, it wasn't that difficult. I didn't find it that hard at all. My footwork still needs a lot of improvement. I was a little clumsy at Tennessee. But as the season goes on, it'll come around.

"I'm glad we're going to run this offense. I enjoy throwing the ball and we didn't do it too much in the Wishbone. I think I can show my ability more in the Veer."

UCLA's No. 2 quarterback is Jeff Dankworth, from Reno, Nev. Sciarra has a lot of confidence in him.

"I don't like to think about injuries," he said, "but Jeff would do a real fine job if I did get hurt. I consider it a real honor to play in front of Jeff. We have five quarterbacks in the program at UCLA and they're all fine athletes."

In 'people' business:

Realtors do more than show houses

A house is not a home unless it fits the buyer's personality as well as his pocketbook. And rather than being an agent for the purchase of homes, the Realtor thinks of himself as "a reader of people," a virtual psychologist.

These were among the findings of a recent survey of Realtors in many parts of the nation. The survey was designed to determine what the "working relationship" is between the Realtor and his client.

"People frequently approach home buying the same way they do the purchase of a car," said Stuart A. Davis, president of the real estate board in St. Louis. "The buyers may say they will pay up to $40,000, they want two baths, four bedrooms and so on."

But it can't be done this way because the character of the family determines the most important choices to be made, he added. "We must conduct an intensive interview to learn dozens of things about the family as a whole and about individual members.

"We are in the people business, not the house business," said Davis. "We don't sell houses, just find the right homes for people."

Though the words differed somewhat, a similar distinction was made by each Realtor contacted.

Alfred Dombrowski, past president of the Philadelphia Board of Realtors, agreed the initial interview with the prospective buyer is "extremely important" and deserves to be given as much time as the client is willing to give.

"Location and other factors are important but we have to find out which factors the client feels are the most important," he added.

M. Leslie Hansen, president of the Phoenix Board of Realtors, estimates that it takes him from one to two hours to complete the initial interview. And Hansen uses another technique for learning about his client.

"I insist on having the interview at the customer's home. They're relaxed and I can learn more about them by observing their present home."

Where the first step — the interview — generally takes an hour or more to complete, the next step — a look at listings available — generally takes less time, most Realtors said.

"People don't get a feel for the home until they see it so the listings serve merely as a screening of the likes and dislikes of the buyer, said Davis. "They also get an idea of what can be obtained for the money they want to pay."

Most Realtors contacted reported they choose about three homes for viewing that seem to fit the family. Dorothea L. Clark, of Lexington, Ky., however, prefers showing only one house to a family the first time out of the office.

"I then get their reactions and I soon know the type of house we should be looking at."

Realtors agreed that one of the most difficult problems to handle is convincing the buyer that he can't have the things he wants in a home at the price he is able to pay.

"Buying a home for the first time is an emotional experience. Young couples usually expect to find all the little amenities that their parents' home has," said Harry R. Lewis Jr., secretary-treasurer of the Edwardsville-Collinsville, Ill., board of Realtors. "The trouble is that they are usually locked into a price range."

Through the listings and visits to a few homes, Realtors said, the buyer begins to think more realistically about what he should expect to get in his price range.

Besides price, Realtors generally agreed that location of the house was the most frequently asked question.

Others deal with interest rates, property values, utility bills, number of rooms — particularly bath-rooms — and problems with construction.

These questions help Realtors to learn what is really wanted in a home and how much or how little the client knows about home purchase.

Several Realtors complained that the client does not ask enough questions. "People are generally not knowledgeable about buying homes," said Mrs. Yoshiko I. Kano of Hawaii. "We guide the buyer and tackle the initial interview with the idea that we should tell people everything they need to know about real estate."

And other Realtors, such as Mrs. Freda R. Ferguson of Marshalltown, Iowa, complained that clients often don't take the time to sit down in the office to be interviewed and go over house descriptions.

"Instead, they insist on going immediately to see houses," she said.

But whatever the problem and whatever the question that arises, Realtors agree their primary aim is to serve the clients.

As the St. Louis board president said, "we're in the people business. We've had one family buy six homes through our office — the first one costing $15,000 and the latest costing $120,000. That's testimony to Realtor interest in clients," he added.

"Houses are just the inventory we deal with."

Realty president:

Condominiums do offer lifestyle

In the past decade, the condominium concept of home ownership has made significant progress throughout the nation, said Mildred J. Heckmer, president of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors.

Condominium ownership — authorized by federal legislation in 1961 — allows an individual to own a single until in a multi-unit building or complex of buildings.

"The basic concept is joint ownership where each condominium owner holds an undivided share of common areas and facilities of the building complex such as land, foundation, central heating, plumbing systems, hallways, entranceways, roof and recreational facilities in addition to his single unit."

How do benefits of condominium ownership compare with benefits of owning a home? A condominium owner enjoys maintenance free living in a desirable area at a reasonable price, said Mrs. Heckmer. "He is building equity, fighting inflation costs through sales value appreciation and can deduct tax and interest payments from his taxable income."

A condominium owner's responsibilities are similar to those of a single family home owner, she explained. Condominium units may be mortgaged in the same way as single family homes. And they are assessed for real estate collection as are single family homes since they are considered individual parcels of real estate.

An additional responsibility of the condominium owner is payment of a monthly maintenance fee to cover all costs of maintaining and managing the condominium. Unit owners frequently hire a professional management company to oversee management functions.

"Residential condominiums are most often found in metropolitan or suburban areas. In the city, condominiums may be modern high-rise apartment buildings, three-to-five story new mid-rise buildings or former rental apartment buildings converted to condominiums. Often the street-level floor is owned jointly by the condominium association of unit owners and may be rented to retailers to help offset common maintenance fees," she noted.

Where permitted by state condominium stature, retail space may be sold to retailers as condominiums or may be retained by the condominium developer for income purposes.

In the suburbs condominiums most often are garden apartments — a group of apartment buildings surrounding a common green — or groups of multi-unit structures called cluster housing. In cluster housing, each structure houses two to four condominium units, each with its own private entrance. Suburban condominium developments make maximum use of land and frequently offer exceptional views, said Mrs. Heckmer.

"Condominium ownership offers the best combination for achieving life styles sought by confirmed city dwellers who seek tax shelters, older couples who seek maintenance-free living, suburbanites who rent apartments and would prefer the privacy of a single-family dwelling or single-family home owners who desire the advantages of common recreational facilities. And all would be wise to consult a Realtor, real estate broker, banker or other professional before buying."

Realty group seeks action to regulate home interest rates

Congressional leaders are asked to seek quick passage asked toseek quick passage of bills that would give government banking agencies control over floating rate notes.

Bills that would give the Federal Reserve Board power to regulate rate ceilings on these notes have cleared committees in both Houses of Congress and are awaiting floor action.

They are Senate Bill 3838, sponsored by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and House Resolution 15928, offered by Rep. William Barrett, D-Pa.

"The call for quick action of the bills is prompted by recent reports of heavy outflows of deposits from savings and loan institutions, the nation's primary lender for home mortgage loans," said Jospeh B. Doherty, president of the National Association of Realtors.

"The Federal Home Loan Bank Board said the net outflow of savings funds in July was $582 million, compared to an outflow of $16 million in June and $291 million in July, 1973."

Other financial observers find indications for August even more alarming, he added. "Estimates are that the net outflow during August could top $1 billion and might even be as high as $1.5 billion. August generally is a plus month for savings and loan institutions."

Thomas Bomar, bank board chairman, and other observers have indicated that the outflow is largely attributable to the need high-yielding floating-rate notes. Most of the July outflow occurred late in the month, when the new type of note became available to investors, Bomar said.

In urging prompt Congressional action on the bills, Doherty noted hat Citicorp, the bank holding company for First National City Bank of New York, issued $650 million in these notes. He added, however, that several other companies are planning to issue similar notes.

Among banks planning to issue floating-rate notes in the near future are Crocker National Bank of California, Mellon National of Pittsburgh, Continental Illinois Corp., and Chase Manhattan Corp.

Doherty added that the need for this legislation became evident when the Federal Reserve Board announced that it did not have the authority to regulate Citicorp-type securities.

Doctor says perfect sex life impossible

BRADFORD, England (UPI) — The perfect sex life does not exist, a doctor told a conference on psycho-sexual problems.

But many people rationalize their difficulties, said Dr. Thomas Main.

"The boss's favorite who works late, the long distance truck driver and the night shift worker may all be using their jobs as an excuse for failure in love," he said.

Or pay off other bills. And start building equity immediately. Larwin has developed the "Great Take-Off" program that takes away the burden of high monthly house payments.

This is how it works: For example, on a $32,990 home, you would normally have to make a monthly house payment of $208.59*. However, under our "GTO" program, Larwin sends you a check for $100 every month for 12 full months. So your monthly payment is only $108.59. Of course, there are comparable savings on homes in other price ranges. But in order to qualify for Larwin's "Great Take-Off" program, you must take title to your new home by SEPTEMBER 27, 1974.

So if you're buried under high monthly payments, this can mean a new financial life. Visit a Larwin community today and talk to our sales representatives. Take off $100 a month from your house payment. And take off into a brand new life.

*Typical Financing: Cash sales price $32,990. Down payment $6,690. First Trust Deed $26,300. Paid in 354 equal payments of $208.59 PI&I at 8-1/4% simple annual rate. 8-3/4% ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE. No 2nd Trust Deed.
From $32,990.

Living room wall of home resembles ship

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Numerous distinctive features have been incorporated in the design of the home.

The unusual front wall of the living room resembles the bow of a ship. Appealing walls of stone veneer are located on each side of the sea of glass. Dual sliding glass doors at the bottom are capped by stationary glass panels that are separated by wooden beams. To enhance the exterior by making the house appear wider and closer to the ground, these walls on the front exterior have been extended past the side walls. Heavy, wooden beams extend from under the steep gable roof.

A wooden deck with an angular railing extends across the front of the house.

The stone veneered fireplace matches the veneer on the front wall.

The huge living room appears even larger than its actual dimensions due to the use of a large amount of glass, the two-story cathedral ceiling and the fact that only cabinets separate the living room and kitchen.

The kitchen offers an abundance of storage cabinets. From the kitchen, one enters a short hall which leads to two bedrooms and a bath. Another bedroom and bath are on the second floor.

The same basic exterior is also available in a two bedroom flor plan, at a different price structure, and is illustrated in our book, Distinctive Homes.

Complete working drawings for plan 31125 can be purchased for only $12.67 for the first set and $7.42 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until Jan. 15, 1975. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for available for $1.06. The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes — $1.59; Prize Homes — $1.59; Hallmark Homes — $1.59; Town & Country Homes — $1.59; Homes by Hiawatha — $1.59; Ranch & Modern Homes — $2.39. All six books — a $10.34 value — for only $8.22. Orders for less than three books, please add an extra 20c per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, P.O. Box 404-PO, Northridge, California 91324.

Luxury items found at new Lewis site

Many buyers today start their house-hunting resigned to having to do without such luxuries as shake roofs, wood-burning fireplaces and shag carpeting.

"He jumps to conclusions—and I think much too quickly—that such refinements are casualties of today's high building costs," said Richard A. Lewis, president of Lewis Homes.

He said these can be found at homes in his firm's Classic Series development at Mountain Avenue and 14th Street.

Prices for the one and two story homes—with three and four bedrooms and two full baths—range from $36,950 to $38,550.

The price includes such major kitchen appliances as dishwashers, self-cleaning ovens, ranges and garbage disposals.

Other features include wall-to-wall shag carpeting in the living and dining rooms, hallways, stairways and all bedrooms; cathedral ceilings, two showers and ceiling lights in all bedrooms.

"We've also arranged financing terms to make it easier for the buyers to get into the luxury class," said Lewis. VA loans at 7¾ths per cent interest are being offered. Purchase may also be made with conventional terms and with 4¾ths per cent Cal Vet loans.

Apartment house week scheduled

The week of Oct. 6-12 has been proclaimed "Apartment Living Week" by a joint resolution of the California Senate and Assembly.

Sponsored by Sen. Alan Robbins and Assemblyman Kenneth L. Maddy, the proclamation highlights the California Apartment Association's annual convention and trade show at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills on Oct. 11 and 12, said L. H. Lackman, president of the apartment association.

The resolution reads in part:

"The new prevalent mode of living in our urbanized state calls foir recognition of the high standards of shelter being provided, the advantages to the resident of apartment living, and the continuing need to focus attention on efforts to improve housing for all citizens."

Lackman said some 100 exhibitors will display products and services of interest to the apartment industry. The convention is expected to be attended by some 10,000 apartment owners.

Dogcatcher fired for not cutting off canine ears

MUNISING, Mich. (UPI) — The Alger County dogcatcher, who refused to cut off the ears of the dogs he shot, got the ax Tuesday.

Earl Rowley was fired Tuesday night a few minutes after the seven-member county Board of Commissioners rejected his final expense account — $15 for treatment of an ear infection he said was caused by the noise of gunblasts as he destroyed stray dogs.

Rowley was paid $3 for each dog he shot. When he submitted a bill last month, one dubious commissioner suggested Rowley cut off an ear from each dog he destroyed as proof he actually killed it.

But the dogcatcher refused. "There's no place to put the ears if I cut them off," he said, "and it's a silly idea. I wouldn't do it."

New bill on pest control becomes law

Assemblyman Bill Lancaster, R-49th District, said his bill which reforms pest control reporting procedures was signed fnto law recently by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The Covina legislator said he introduced the bill to protect a buyer from unknowingly purchasing a home containing structural pests such as termites.

"The law previously didn't clearly define the procedures to be followed in the reporting of the presence of these pets," he noted. "This lack of clarity has caused a great deal of confusion among sellers and buyers alike."

The bill clearly defines pest control certification, and when a report is required in a sale it shall be delivered to the buyer as soon as possible and before the close of escrow, he explained.

Cases have been reported of pest reports being delivered at the same time that title to the home has been transferred, when it is too late for the buyer to change his mind.

"In a vast majority of cases, the procedures my bill lays down have been followed. It is important, however, to give them the force of law in order to end confusion and put a stop to abuses."

The bill will take effect on Jan. 1, 1975.

Rose attar still precious product

SOFIA, Bulgaria (UPI) — In an age of seesawing commodity prices one, at least, is holding its own.

Attar of roses, kept on deposit by the Bulgarian government in banks in Zurich, Paris, and New York, has risen steadily in price since World War II.

At times it has rivaled the price of gold and platinum and now fetches more than $3,000 per kilo (2.2 pounds), making it one of Bulgaria's biggest foreign exchange earners.

Used for making perfume, the value of rose attar or distilled rose essence has continued to climb because of the failure of chemists to produce a satisfactory synthetic substitute and the existence of only four producing nations in the world.

The small number of producers—Bulgaria, followed by Turkey, Iran and India—is not for want of trying by other countries.

But the special climactic and soil conditions needed to make the delicate Damascus rose give off the precious attar have defied most attempts to cultivate it commercially. Even in Syria, where the rose originated, it flowers without producing the attar.

In Bulgaria there is only one area where the rose flourishes —the predictably named Valley of the Roses, between the sheltered southern slopes of the Balkan Mountains and the northern foothills of the Sredna Gora.

A Bulgarian commerce official said: "Before the last war it was forbidden for anyone to export the seeds but now that it's been shown that it's almost impossible to produce the attar elsewhere, the ban has been lifted.

"They have tried to produce the attar almost everywhere, especially France, and in artificially regulated conditions, but without success."

Most of the original cuttings in Bulgaria were brought from Persia during the 17th Century to decorate the gardens of the Turkish rulers. Later it found its way into the gardens of the local people eventually to become a commercial crop in the warm sheltered valley which has some rain almost every evening.

But there have been breaks in cultivation. During the last war the Germans ordered the valley to be ploughed and sewn with potatoes to prevent competition for a synthetic type of rose essence they were hoping to produce. Later it took five years to reintroduce the rose bushes.

Despite the scale on which the roses are grown, artificial fertilizers and irrigation cannot be used and the roses must be hand plucked.

What's your reason for not buying a home NOW?

WONDER WHERE TO BEGIN LOOKING?

Worry no more . . . most folks have found that the best place to shop for that new or lived-in home is in the Classified Real Estate columns of the Progress-Bulletin. It's here (and only here) that each day you'll find the very latest offerings of homes 'for sale' . . . advertised by the area's leading real estate firms and builders. Check the want ads today—and every day—to find the home that satisfies all your needs.

YES NOW IS A GOOD TIME

TROUBLED OVER HIGH INTEREST RATES

It is true interest rates have risen, but they do seem to have stabilized in the past several months. And while the rates may seem high, they are not climbing as rapidly as are labor and material costs. An increase or a decrease of ½ percent in interest rates only amounts to 30c per month per $1000 on a 25 year loan. Is it really wise to deny yourself the security, pleasure and pride of home ownership on the vague hope of interest rates going down, thus saving you only $3 or $4 a month? The value of your home will increase at a much faster rate than can be gained by any lowering of interest rates. NOW is a good time to buy!

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — Bothered with the hems creeping up when you walk? Try taping some change (nickles, pennies or whatever is needed for weight) to the inside of the hem. Change for parking meter or telephone is at hand and the "hem money" can be replaced. — MARJE.

•

DEAR POLLY — Paint a line along the edges of your records with bright colored nail polish. When they are taken to a party or loaned to a friend they are quickly and easily identified. — CHERYL.

•

DEAR POLLY — The cut-off bottom of a cardboard box is great to use for holding a pet's food dishes. They are not moved about by the pet and the mess is kept off the floor. — SYLVIA.

•

DEAR POLLY — Disposable plastic cups are great for holding gelatin desserts and puddings. Many lids from other glasses and refrigerator containers fit snugly on them, making them spillproof in the refrigerator or on picnics. — JAN.

•

DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for those (and I am sure there are many) who have trouble with the plastic bags popcorn, rice macaroni etc., come in. I always save and wash the cans those new fangled potato chips come in and use them for storing the above samples. — MRS. W.N.

DEAR POLLY — When making a pie with a double crust I roll out the top crust, cut several holes in it with a thimble, remove and set these circles aside. When the crust is put on the unbaked pie, rounds are put back in the holes. This makes a decorative top crust and the steam comes out around the circles. — MRS. C.L.

•

DEAR POLLY — I have made my own spot remover for washable clothes by putting one-third water, one-third of a good dishwashing detergent and one-third ammonia in a bottle. Just shake and use. This is especially good for grimy shirt collars and cuffs. — MRS. D.L.

•

DEAR POLLY — When wallpapering, place the paper over the light switch, heating vent and other openings. Trace, in pencil, all these areas. Then cut out the marked sections very carefully. This makes for a neat job. — SUZAN.

NATURE COLORS

PELICANS...

THE PELICAN DOESN'T USE ITS BIG, POUCHLIKE BEAK TO STORE FISH IN. IT USES ITS POUCH AS A SCOOP TO CATCH FISH WHEN IT DIVES INTO THE WATER. THE FISH ARE THEN QUICKLY SWALLOWED.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

LISA BOCQUET OF FAYETTEVILLE, AR, ASKS:

"WHY DOES BOILING WATER BUBBLE?"

IF A KETTLE OF WATER IS PLACED ON A HOT STOVE, IT WILL SOON BE BOILING. WHEN WATER IS HOT ENOUGH, IT TURNS INTO A GAS. BUBBLES OF WATER GAS, NOW CALLED STEAM, RISE TO THE TOP OF THE WATER AND ESCAPE INTO THE AIR. THIS BUBBLING IS CALLED "BOILING." THE CLOUD OF "STEAM" WE SEE RISING ABOVE THE KETTLE IS NOT REALLY STEAM. STEAM IS AN INVISIBLE GAS — YOU CANNOT SEE IT. THE CLOUD WE SEE IS WATER THAT THE COOLER AIR HAS CHANGED FROM STEAM BACK INTO TINY WATER DROPLETS.

The Sex Symbol

The dichotomy of a movie sex symbol—the image the public sees and the private hell of her private life—are depicted in "The Sex Symbol," the ABC Tuesday Movie of the Week at 8:30 PM. Connie Stevens stars as Kelly Williams, a struggling Hollywood sex goddess unable to cope with her success, and Shelley Winters, as Agatha Murphy, acid-tongued gossip columnist who follows like a vulture the rise and fall of the actress. Kelly Williams is the composite of all Hollywood sex symbols from Clara Bow to Jean Harlow to Jayne Mansfield to Marilyn Monroe. Douglas S. Cramer produced and David Lowell Rich directed from Alvah Bessie's screenplay based on his best-selling novel, "The Symbol." Also starring are Dan Murray as Grant O'Neal, prominent politician and secret lover of Kelly's, and Jack Carter as her agent.

"Fiddler on the Roof," Norman Jewison's joyous musical affirmation of life that the Reader's Digest hailed as "Movie of the Year," comes to television for a full evening's family entertainment as a Special Motion Picture Presentation as the season premier of the ABC Sunday Night Movie at 8PM. The United Artists film, which will have a single TV showing, is based on the Broadway musical, the longest-running show in Broadway history. The film version stars Topol as Tevye, the milkman in Czarist Russia who must cope with three marriageable daughters, his own poverty and the breakdown of traditional values that he sees destroying the world he has always known. Also starring in the film, which provided American music with such songs as "If I Were a Rich Man," "Sunrise, Sunset" and "Matchmaker," are Norma Crane as Tevye's long-suffering wife; Leonard Frey as an eager tailor with dreams of a better future; Molly Picon as the matchmaker who arranges everybody's future, and Paul Mann as a butcher with an eye for a young wife. Joseph Stein adapted his own stage play for the screen, and the film includes the original songs by Jerry Bock (music) and Sheldon Harnick (lyrics). The stage version, based on stories by Sholom Aleichem, was produced by Harold Prince and directed and choreographed by Jerome Robbins. The original Robbins choreography was adapted for the screen by Tom Abbott.

COVER CLOSE-UP

'HE SAID YES'

After years of saying no to offers of starring in a television series again, Darren McGavin said yes to The Night Stalker. The series airs Fridays at 10PM on ABC. Ironically, his agent thought the original script was so far out that he wasn't even going to send it to Darren. But remembering the edict that Darren wanted to see every script submitted by producers no matter what, the agent sent the script along. Darren saw something he liked in the weird story about a vampire running around Las Vegas and thought television viewers would like it too. He was right, for "The Night Stalker" became the highest-rated movie made for television up to that time on the ABC Movie of the Week.

The success was such that the re-runs also drew huge audiences. This prompted the sequel, "The Night Strangler," as another Movie of the Week presentation with Darren, as dogged reporter Carl Kolchak again, tracking down a Jekyll-Hyde-type madman in Seattle. This also scored heavily in the ratings and consequently the series was born.

The series will be set in a Chicago wire service office (Independent News Service) and noted actor Simon Oakland, who appeared in both movie productions, will portray Kolchak's editor-boss, Tony Vincenzo. The two are in constant battle as Kolchak's offbeat ways continually gets his editor in hot water with the head of the wire service or the chief of police. Oakland was most recently seen as Inspector Spooner in ABC's Toma series.

Ironic too, is the fact that Darren never especially cared for science-fiction movies with little green men wearing gills running around. Although The Night Stalker deals in the weird and bizarre, it will present more believable characters drawn from legends, mythology, actual science and the Gothic. The series, fittingly, has is premiere on Friday the 13th, with Kolchak embroiled in a gang war when he detected something strange about a series of murders and began to investigate on his own.

The character of Carl Kolchak and his rumpled look in his outdated seersucker suit, string tie and small-brimmed straw hat, is a creation of Darren's. The original script called for a guy wearing Bermuda shorts and a Hawaiian shirt. Darren recalled a reporter he once knew in New York about 1955 who had the look he wanted for Carl Kolchak. He feels the character left New York in the mid-fifties and still believes that's the way they dress back there.

Darren believes the two movie presentations were so successful because they dealt with the innate primeval fears which lie within us. "People are attracted to things that arouse anxiety like the dark or the unknown. That's why we won't show monsters because its more frightening if you don't see them," McGavin states. "An upcoming episode will deal with Jack the Ripper. Jack was never actually caught in London, and then a Ripper subsequently showed up in Paris, one in Germany, and even one in Russia, murdering prostitutes. They tried to hang him in Germany but failed." Darren wonders if he isn't some sort of supernatural manifestation that keeps reappearing?

The Night Stalker is McGavin's fifth series in his 25 years as an actor. He was playing on Broadway and doing live TV drama in New York when he came to Hollywood to star in Mike Hammer—the Mickey Spillane private eye—and then starred in Riverboat followed by The Outsider. A series McGavin did that most people fail to remember was Casey, Crime Photographer.

Darren is one of the busiest people in Hollywood as his activities span the spectrum of television and motion picture production. In addition to his starring role in The Night Stalker, he has produced and directed three films under his own banner, Taurean Films, for theatrical release. "Run, Stranger, Run," which stars Patricia Neal, Cloris Leachman, Bobby Darin, Ron Howard (ABC's Happy Days co-star) and Kathie Brown, Darren's wife. Kathie's acting talents are augmented by a keen sense of production and she's Darren's right-hand in their production company. Their other productions are "X Must Die," a political mystery film in Spain, and an actual film of a high school 50-year class reunion in St. Louis. The film records the era and the feelings of the people who attended the reunion then and now. Darren points out that these people are the remaining link with our ancestors of the past century.

Darren began his professional life as a scenic designer and still loves to paint. His house has a room filled with his paintings—stacked on each other.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR GEORGE PEPPARD, star of "Banacek"

Do you like doing love scenes with all those pretty girls on screen? What's your feeling about marriage?—M. Adams, Ogden, Utah

● Who could NOT like doing those love scenes? But doing them in front of a bunch of people rather takes the edge off it. I'd prefer to do those scenes in private! As for marriage, I've been married twice, but it hasn't soured me. I'm a one-woman man, that's for sure, but whether it develops into a marital relationship depends on the woman. When "Miss Right" comes along, without any hesitation, I'll make her Mrs. George Peppard.

FOR JEAN NIDETCH, founder of Weight Watchers

What's the most memorable story you can tell about weight loss?—A. S., Little Rock, Ark.

● I'll never forget a priest at a Weight Watchers convention in Madison Square Garden telling 17,000 people that he was prompted to join Weight Watchers because his weight stopped him from bending to kneel as he prayed. He subsequently lost more than 300 pounds. I shall always remember the emotion in his voice as he explained how, when he could finally kneel again, he felt much closer to God.

FOR ELSA LANCHESTER, costar of the movie "Arnold"

How do today's stars compare with those of your generation?—S. Weiss, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● They're too stuck-up! Most of them have enormous egos and feel superior to any other line of work. Also, they don't want this role or that role because it's below their dignity. That's nonsense! We were taught a performer must perform. Also, they're ill-prepared to do any other sort of work.

FOR PAT COOPER, comedian

My mother-in-law, who came from Italy, thinks she may know your relatives there. What town and province do your people come from?—Elinor Filice, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

● I'm sorry, but I don't really know. I was christened Pasquale Caputo, which is a very common name in Italy and elsewhere—almost like John Smith. But I wish we were related, because I've always wanted to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel—with my family watching and cheering me as I do wonderful tricks like looping-the-loop.

FOR HARVEY KORMAN of "The Carol Burnett Show"

You're such a good comic. Do you ever plan to have a show of your own?—Kate Allen, Bloomington, Ill.

● Sometime in the future, if the right format could be found, I might like to have a show of my own. But the thing I really want to do more of is directing. I tried it a couple of times and I loved it.

FOR PHYLLIS DILLER

Are you seriously thinking of opening a chain of chili restaurants?—Cheri Aird, Sprakers, N.Y.

● You bet I am. I feel it's my duty to open a chain because my chili cures ulcers. It very quickly eats out your entire stomach, which is a quicker and more enjoyable way of kissing your ulcers good-bye than surgery.

FOR IRVING WALLACE, author

Your new novel, "The Fan Club," is about the kidnapping of a Hollywood sex symbol by four average men. Is that based on a true incident?—F. Leeburg, Memphis, Tenn.

● No, I made it up entirely. However, after the book was well on its way I read a story of four men in the Philippines being condemned to death for the abduction and rape of a popular film actress. Funny how life and art sometimes tell the same stories!

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

How can an adult raise his IQ?—Miss J. R. Berning, Cuba City, Wis.

● He can't. An IQ is just an indication of his capacity. No one works up to his (or her) capacity; and it's been estimated that we only use ten percent of our capacity. So by continuing to learn, to be interested in the world around him and to make himself open to new ideas, although he (or she) does not raise his IQ, he raises his functioning ability.

FOR DON SHULA, coach of the Miami Dolphins

People say you shouldn't be critical of Larry Csonka for jumping to the World Football League because you jumped from the Baltimore Colts. Agreed?—Jack Stevenson, Canton, Ohio

● There is absolutely no parallel. My position as coach in Baltimore was deteriorating rapidly, and owner Carroll Rosenbloom was quoted as saying he was going to fire me. When I got the offer from Miami, Rosenbloom was traveling out of the country, so I received permission to leave from his son.

Vincent Albano

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

What would you say is the toughest political job in the nation today—excluding the Presidency?—L. K., Los Angeles, Calif.

● It could well be running the Republican party in Democratic little old New York. What makes the job so difficult now is that, in addition to Watergate, which all Republicans must face this year, New York County Democrats out-register Republicans 4-1. Also, this fellow, Vincent F. Albano, Jr., is leader in a city in which only two Republican mayors have ruled in the past half century, and one of them, John V. Lindsay, wound up as a Democrat. The other, Fiorello LaGuardia, only became mayor because he was a Fusion candidate. That's why many politicos feel Albano's job may be the most difficult in the whole world.

By
Robert A. Heinlein
Author of "Stranger in a Strange Land," "Time Enough for Love," etc.

A Famous Author Looks at Patriotism

"A tribe or a nation can lose a high percentage of its men and still pick up the pieces and go on as long as the women and children are saved."

Robert A. Heinlein is one of the foremost science-fiction writers of our time. His novel "Stranger in a Strange Land" has earned him a large following on college campuses—and off them.

Mr. Heinlein delivered the James Forrestal Memorial Lecture on April 5, 1973, to the Brigade of Midshipmen at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., his alma mater. This is an excerpt from the conclusion of the lecture.

Patriotism—an abstract word used to describe a type of behavior as harshly practical as good brakes and good tires. It means that you place the welfare of your nation ahead of your own even if it costs you your life.

Men who go down to the sea in ships have long had another way of expressing the same moral behavior tagged by the abstract expression "patriotism." Spelled out in simple Anglo-Saxon words, "patriotism" reads "Women and children first!"

And that is the moral result of realizing a self-evident biological fact: Men are expendable; women and children are not. A tribe or a nation can lose a high percentage of its men and still pick up the pieces and go on as long as the women and children are saved. But if you fail to save the women and children, you've had it, you're done, you're through! You join Tyrannosaurus rex, one more breed that bilged its final test.

I must amplify that. I know that women can fight and often have. I have known many a tough old grandmother I would rather have at my side in a tight spot than any number of males who disdain military service. Nevertheless, as a mathematical proposition in the facts of biology, children, and women of childbearing age, are the ultimate treasure that we must save. Every human culture is based on "Women and children first"—and any attempt to do it any other way leads quickly to extinction.

Possibly extinction is the way we are headed. Great nations have died in the past; it can happen to us.

Nor am I certain how good our chances are. To me it seems self-evident that any nation that loses its patriotic fervor is on the skids. Without that indispensable survival factor, the end is only a matter of time. I don't know how deeply the rot has penetrated—but it seems to me that there has been a change for the worse in the last 50 years. Possibly I am misled by the offensive behavior of a noisy but unimportant minority. But it does seem to me that patriotism has lost its grip on a large percentage of our people.

I hope I am wrong, because if my fears are well-grounded, I would not bet two cents on this nation's chance of lasting even to the end of this century.

But there is no way to force patriotism on anyone. Passing a law will not create it, nor can we buy it by appropriating so many billions of dollars.

I said that "patriotism" is a way of saying "Women and children first." And that no one can force a man to feel this way. Instead he must embrace it freely. I want to tell about one such man. He wore no uniform and no one knows his name, nor where he came from; all we know is what he did.

In my hometown 60 years ago, when I was a child, my mother and father used to take me and my brothers and sisters out to Swope Park on Sunday afternoons. It was a wonderful place for kids, with picnic grounds and lakes and a zoo. But a railroad line cut straight through it.

One Sunday afternoon a young married couple were crossing those tracks. She apparently did not watch her step, for she managed to catch her foot in the frog of a switch to a siding and could not pull it free. Her husband stopped to help her.

But try as they might they could not get her foot loose. While they were working at it, a tramp showed up, walking the ties. He joined the husband in trying to pull the young woman's foot loose. No luck.

Out of sight around the curve a train whistled. Perhaps there would have been time to run and flag it down, perhaps not. In any case both men went right ahead trying to pull her free—and the train hit them.

The wife was killed, the husband was mortally injured and died later, the tramp was killed—and testimony showed that neither man made the slightest effort to save himself.

The husband's behavior was heroic, but what we expect of a husband toward his wife: his right and his proud privilege, to die for his woman. But what of the nameless stranger? Up to the very last second he could have jumped clear. He did not. He was still trying to save this woman he had never seen before in his life, right up to the very instant the train killed him. And that's all we'll ever know about him.

This is how a man dies.
This is how a man lives.

If You Can Lick a Stamp—You Can Lick Your Weight Problem!

Now, if you can lick a stamp, you can lick your weight problem! That's a guarantee—and Northwestern Pharmaceuticals takes all the risk.

Because Northwestern will not deposit your check or money order for four weeks after your order is mailed. That'll give you plenty of time to receive it, try it—and see for yourself that it really works for you. If—for any reason—you're not thrilled with the results, all you have to do is return the unused portion within the four weeks. Your uncashed check or money order will be sent to you by return mail!

Here's why Northwestern dares to make this unusual guarantee:

In the first place, it's a proven product. Northwestern's Weight-Loss Plan has been on the market for over 11 years. Hundreds of thousands have tried it—and less than 2% have asked for their money back! And if you have any questions about its safety or potency, Northwestern urges you to check with your doctor.

It's a different product. Northwestern's Weight-Loss Plan is different—and effective—in all these ways:

First—It's your plan . . . your age, your height, your weight, and how much you want to lose . . . these things are all taken into account when you select your Plan! The truth is that if you need to lose 50 pounds, you need a different kind of diet than someone who needs to lose 10. And you get it.

Second — You choose the foods you like best. Most diets fail because they're so limited or tasteless that you start cheating. Then you get discouraged and give up—or go on a real food binge. Northwestern expects you to cheat. Their plan encourages you to treat yourself to satisfying amounts of such foods as pie with cream topping, pastries, ice cream sundaes, cheesecake, waffles with maple syrup, nutty brownies, mashed potatoes and gravy, creamy salad dressings, milkshakes, creamed vegetables, chili con carne, chow mein, beef stroganoff, and fried chicken!

Northwestern's Plan not only "allows" these diet-breaks—they actually include the special, delicious recipes!

Third — Your diet is automatically "adjusted" . . . as your weight goes down. You don't follow a 500-calorie diet or a 1000-calorie diet. In fact, you don't count calories at all! But as you reach your weight goals, you "automatically" eat less—and keep on losing weight.

Fourth — You'll lose . . . without starving! Follow the Plan and you don't ever have to leave the table feeling hungry! You can even eat out or go on a picnic—and no one will guess that you're dieting!"

Fifth — It's inexpensive! You get everything you need to know and everything you need to take for 60 days. Tablets that supplement food and safeguard your health, but play no role in weight loss, are included at no extra cost. And the full price is just $5.50—less than a dime a day!

How much weight you lose and how fast you lose it obviously depends on you, but here are some excerpts from unsolicited, unusual letters. They were mailed to Northwestern with reorders:

Teenager lost 14 pounds
"I am sixteen years old and have been on the diet for two weeks, and have lost fourteen pounds."

'Lost 18 pounds'
"Without the fear of getting off my die or nervous tension, I have lost 18 pounds. Thanks to you, I look human again."

Lost 13 pounds in 3 weeks
"Your diet plan is wonderful. Have lost 13 pounds in 3 weeks."

'Wonderful list of foods'
"I have enjoyed being on your diet, and the results have been more than I expected on a diet of this nature, that includes such a wonderful list of foods. I was getting desperate, for I found I could not leave food alone. Now I'm back in my size 9 again."

'You don't get hungry!'
"I started 30 days ago. At that time I weighed 197 pounds. Today I weigh 186 pounds. I feel much better and everyone tells me how much better I look.
"P.S.: Your formula gives you so much to eat that you don't get hungry."

Mother lost 37 pounds
"My mother took them for 6 months and is down to 138 pounds. She weighed 175. I would like to order."

'Down to size 12'
"It has done wonders for me. I was a size 18 last year and am down to size 12 now."

'Painless way to diet'
"The first week I lost weight and didn't realize it until I weighed myself and took my measurements. Thank you for a wonderful and painless way to diet."

Lost 30 pounds in 2 months
"I lost 30 pounds and 2 dress sizes with a 2-month supply. It was out of sheer desperation that I answered your ad in the Chicago Sun-Times. Believe me, I will be eternally grateful."

'Easiest way to lose'
"It is the easiest way I ever lost weight. I have lost 37 pounds."

'Shots and pills couldn't help'
"I am extremely overweight, and found that shots and pills could not help me because of my nervousness. I tried your plan, starting September 25th and to this date, October 13th, I have lost 12 pounds. The best thing is I am much happier and more active, with no 'nerves'."

'No ill-feelings, nervousness'
"It has been approximately 2 years since I last took your product. At that time I took it for three months and lost 40 pounds. Never for one minute did I experience any ill-feelings, nervousness or weakness. Having had another addition to the family, I once again need your assistance."

'Weight stayed down'
"I lost 30 pounds in only 12 weeks of following the plan and after four more months I have not gained any of it back. I had tried every other diet in the past 20 years and this is the first time my weight stayed down after losing."

And Northwestern is so sure their Plan will work for you that they won't cash your check 'til you're sure. You can lose weight—can't lose money. Why not fill out and mail the Agreement right now?

The Franklin Mint announces ~

Norman Rockwell's Medallic Tribute to Robert Frost

12 original works of art by Norman Rockwell capturing the spirit of Robert Frost's poetry in the enduring beauty of solid sterling silver.

Issued in a single limited edition
Available only until September 30, 1974

NORMAN ROCKWELL has been portraying America and its people in his art for most of this century. And Robert Frost, during his lifetime, recorded his devotion to America – in poetic words – with the same warmth and love.

Now, for the Centennial of Robert Frost's birth, the beloved artist Norman Rockwell will pay special tribute to this great American poet.

Rockwell has created twelve original works of art inspired by the beautiful poetry of Robert Frost, and these are being issued exclusively in the form of solid sterling silver art medals.

This collection of twelve fine art medals—"Norman Rockwell's Medallic Tribute to Robert Frost"—will be both unique and rare.

Unique because the art for each medal was created by Norman Rockwell exclusively for this series.

Rare because these medals will be issued only once—in a strictly limited edition—never to be offered again.

Captures the spirit of Frost's poetry

Each sterling silver art medal will interpret one of the most memorable poems of Robert Frost. The Gift Outright, the poem which Frost recited at the inauguration of President John F. Kennedy. Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening, evoking the quiet beauty of a New England winter. Mending Wall. Dust of Snow. Birches. A Time to Talk . . . twelve inspiring poems, each sensitively portrayed by the best-loved artist of our time.

This unique series of art medals is recognized by the estate of Robert Frost as the only official medallic collection honoring the 100th anniversary of the great poet's birth.

Exquisite art medals

Each medal will be struck in solid sterling silver by The Franklin Mint, the world's largest private mint and foremost producer of fine medallic art.

Each medal will measure 44mm (1¾") in diameter and will be minted with the finest proof-quality finish, individually hallmarked, and will bear the famous Norman Rockwell signature. The special dies used to mint each medal will be hand-finished by master engravers, so that the sculptured design area stands out boldly in frosted relief against a brilliant mirror-like background. Truly, the highest achievement of the minter's art.

A strictly limited edition

The total number of sets minted will be exactly equal to the number of valid orders postmarked by September 30, 1974. After the medals have been struck for each subscriber, the dies will be destroyed to guarantee the rarity of the collection.

Subscribers may build their collections on a convenient monthly basis. The twelve solid sterling silver proof medals will be issued at the rate of one medal per month at a cost of $25. each. This price will be guaranteed to each subscriber for the entire series, no matter how high the price of silver may rise. In view of recent dramatic increases in the market price of silver, this is an extremely significant guarantee.

To protect and display the complete collection, a deluxe collector's case with hardwood display frame will be provided at no additional charge.

An heirloom collection

Any new work by an artist of the stature of Norman Rockwell is certain to be a prized heirloom. This new collection will be especially treasured. Not only for its beauty, rarity and intrinsic value—but because it is a significant commemoration of a great poet and a great human being.

To acquire this heirloom collection, your subscription must be postmarked by September 30, 1974. Please note that there is a strict limit of one Proof Set per person.

Is there a chef in your house? Herewith is a potpourri of delicious recipes designed especially for men. (Editor's note: But that doesn't mean we women might not have to pitch in and pull some of these great dishes across the finish line!)

Dishes Your Man Will Love (And Maybe Love To Fix)

Chinese Sweet 'n' Sour Beef

1 lb. top round steak, ½ to ¾ inch thick*
Natural meat tenderizer, seasoned or unseasoned
5 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 large onion, cut in thin wedges
1 can (8½ ozs.) water chestnuts, drained and sliced
1 green pepper, cut in squares
1 can (13¼ ozs.) pineapple tidbits or chunks, undrained
2 tablespoons ketchup
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
2 tablespoons soy sauce
½ teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
3 tablespoons cold water
2 firm, ripe tomatoes, cut in eighths
Hot cooked rice

1. Trim excess fat from beef. Prepare meat, one side at a time, with meat tenderizer as follows: Thoroughly moisten meat with water. Sprinkle tenderizer as evenly as salt over entire meat surface. To insure penetration of tenderizer and retain meat juices, pierce meat deeply with fork at ½-inch intervals.

2. With sharp knife, cut beef diagonally across grain into thin slices.

3. In wok or large skillet heat 3 tablespoons vegetable oil until hot but not smoking.

4. Quickly brown beef over high heat, stirring rapidly 3-4 minutes. Remove meat and pan drippings to platter.

5. Heat remaining 2 tablespoons oil in same skillet. Add onion, water chestnuts and green pepper. Stir-fry until tender-crisp, about 3 minutes.

6. Add undrained pineapple, ketchup, vinegar, soy sauce and sugar. Heat to boiling.

7. Mix cornstarch smoothly with cold water. Add to sauce in skillet and heat, stirring, until sauce clears and thickens.

8. Return meat and drippings to skillet and add tomatoes; heat through. Serve over hot cooked rice. Makes 5-6 servings

Gary Collins: "I Miss Italian Food in Kenya!"

Pictorial Parade

Gary Collins with his wife, Mary Ann Mobley, who was Miss America in 1959.

By Gary Collins
In conversation with Helen Dorsey

Gary Collins, who appeared in the series "The Sixth Sense," is now starring for NBC-TV in "Born Free." It is being filmed in Kenya, and he talked with Helen Dorsey from there:

We have had some very good African food here in Kenya, but for the most part, we have European cooking. I miss Italian food particularly because I love to cook. I cook all our meals at home: roast pork, steak, lasagna, spaghetti (Mary Ann is very good with spaghetti sauce) or osso buco. And I make a terrific spinach salad almost every night.

OSSO BUCO

8 pieces veal shank, about 3 inches thick
Seasoned flour
4 tablespoons fine-grade olive oil
1 onion, peeled and chopped
1 clove garlic, pressed
1 teaspoon basil
1 teaspoon oregano
Salt
Pepper
1 cup chopped tomatoes (fresh or canned), drained
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 cup chicken stock
1 cup dry white wine
4 small carrots, peeled and diced
6 pearl onions, peeled
4 potatoes, peeled, cut in quarters
1 tablespoon minced fresh parsley
½ teaspoon dried sage
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

1. Dredge veal liberally with seasoned flour. Brown on all sides in olive oil in large skillet or Dutch oven. Remove shanks; set aside.

2. Add onion and garlic to skillet; sauté until onion softens. Return veal to skillet.

3. Add basil, oregano, salt and pepper to taste, tomatoes, lemon juice, chicken stock and wine. Stir lightly. Cover, bring to boil. Simmer 1 hour, or until meat is tender.

4. Add carrots, onions and potatoes; cover, simmer 30 minutes longer, or until vegetables are tender.

5. Add parsley, sage and lemon rind; taste to correct seasonings. Serve at once.

Makes 6 servings

SPINACH SALAD SUPREME

4 slices crisp bacon, drained
1 tablespoon bacon drippings
4 tablespoons fine-grade olive oil
3 tablespoons wine vinegar
1 lb. raw spinach, washed and well drained
2 hard-cooked eggs, peeled and sliced
Small white onion, peeled, cut in rings
Freshly ground black pepper
Salt

1. Crumble bacon; drain again on absorbent paper.

2. In small bowl or glass jar, combine bacon drippings, olive oil and vinegar. Mix well; set aside.

3. Place spinach, eggs, onion and bacon crumbles in salad bowl. Season liberally with salt and pepper to taste. Sprinkle with dressing, tossing well.

Makes 3 servings

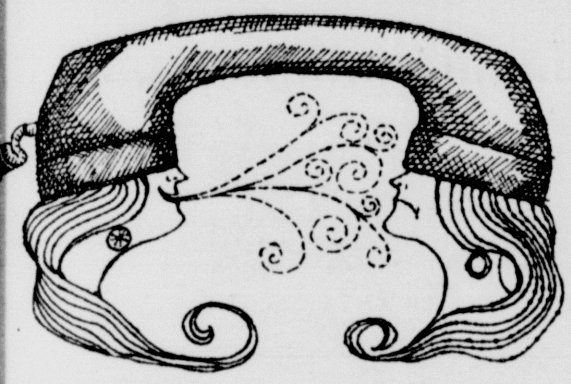
People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

What Do We Know About "Worriers"?



True or False: Anxious people, who go through life feeling apprehensive, are the most enthusiastic spreaders of rumor and gossip. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Just as misery loves company, anxiety-ridden people prefer the company of others who are similarly worried and anxious.

2. A worried, anxious state of mind makes you much more subject to motion sickness, whether traveling by land, sea or air.

3. When you get up in the morning oppressed by a feeling of vague worry and free-floating anxiety, you'll feel better if you wear something that's blue or yellow.

4. Anxious people, who go through life feeling apprehensive, are the most enthusiastic spreaders of rumor and gossip.

5. An anxious, apprehensive state of mind makes you much more subject to accident—either as a pedestrian threading your way through traffic or as the driver of an automobile.

ANSWERS

1. False—as shown by the findings of a psychological study that proved that more often than not people who scored high on anxiety tests preferred the company of calm, unruffled people who were as far from anxious as you can get. Despite the saying to the contrary, the investigation showed that "Misery sometimes loves non-miserable company."

2. True—as evidenced by psychological studies at the University of London that evaluated the findings of leading researches on why some people are susceptible to motion sickness. The conclusion: Available evidence strongly suggests that "motion sickness (in its various and sundry forms) is related to a person's general anxiety level."

3. True—according to the findings of a university study assessing people's instinctive psychological responses to color, which showed that blue had a calming effect on subjects and that "yellow produced increased 'positive' feelings [e.g., happiness]."

4. True. In a Temple University study, students' anxiety was measured by a standard anxiety scale. The students were then divided into two groups: the high scorers and those who evinced low anxiety. Rumor transmission was studied by exposing members of high- and low-anxiety groups to various rumors. Results: "High-anxiety groups confronted with a rumor transmitted that rumor throughout the group with a higher frequency than did similar groups of low-anxiety subjects." Moral: If you don't want a rumor to spread, the last thing you should do is confide it to someone who's anxious and worried.

5. True. University studies show that an anxious, apprehensive state of mind makes a person more vulnerable to accident or injury because it interferes with his mental processes, slowing his reaction time significantly and making it more difficult for him to get out of danger's way.

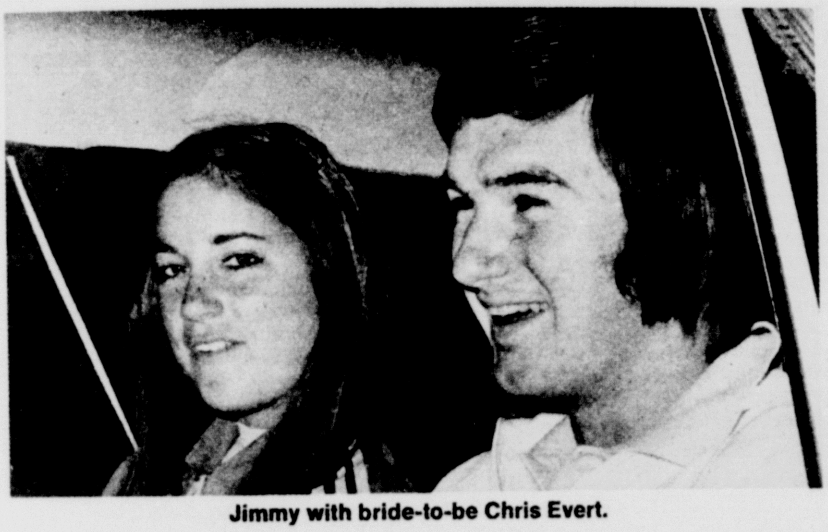
Wimbledon Champ JIMMY CONNORS: Women Trained Him to Beat the Men



Pictorial Parade

Jimmy with bride-to-be Chris Evert.

Jimmy Connors, the 21-year-old southpaw who vaulted to the top of the tennis world with his victory at Wimbledon this year, has had an unusual association with women players. He is the first top tennis pro to have been taught by women —his grandmother and his mother, both former tournament players and teaching pros—and he is engaged to 19-year-old Chris Evert, who won the women's crown at Wimbledon. Jimmy and Chrissie were among the youngest to win this most famous of all net tournaments and represent the only engaged couple to win it. . . . The couple have no truck with the so-called "new morality." They both come from devoted, religiously oriented families and, until their marriage in November, will continue to be chaperoned. Chrissie's mother, Colette, usually accompanies her, and Jimmy is occasionally accompanied by his mother, Gloria Connors. Though both have become wealthy at a young age—each earns well over $100,000 a year in prize money and more via endorsements—they insist they play for the love of the game more than for the financial reward. . . . The two are poles apart in temperament. Chrissie is the polite, well-mannered "Miss Goody Two-Shoes." Jimmy is colorful and temperamental. He alternates between being the clown on court and playing the role of a firebrand who fights with the officials and gets into noisy arguments with opposing players and fans who heckle him. . . . Jimmy was born in St. Louis and then moved across the river with his family to Belleville, Ill. His dad (a non-tennis player) manages the bridge that crosses the Mississippi between Belleville and St. Louis. Jimmy's two female tutors introduced him to tennis when he was three, and by the time he was eight, he was playing—and winning—boys tournaments. "I never had time for any friends," Jimmy recalls. "From the beginning, tennis was my life." . . . When Jimmy began winning from his mother regularly at 17, she decided he was ready for advanced coaching and took him out to California. He was placed under the wing of an old friend of the Connors' family—one-time tennis great Pancho Segura—and developed the blistering drives and pinpoint accuracy necessary to win in the male tournaments. He went to UCLA for a while and won the NCAA tennis championship, but then dropped out to become a full-time net performer. At 5-10 and 155 pounds, he is comparatively small for a professional, but he compensates for this by his tremendous speed and a leaping, lunging style. To maintain his speed and power, he runs two miles every day and does a long rope-jumping session. He became the youngest player ever to win the U.S. professional championship, and won 12 out of 19 tournaments before Wimbledon. When he routed the veteran Ken Rosewall in the finals of the big tourney, Rosewall said of him, "He's just unbelievable. He is without a doubt the finest young player in the world today."

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE who ordinarily suffer from the "miseries" due to damp, cold changeable weather are wearing the remarkable new underwear knitted of THERMOLACTYL fiber by Damart®. Here's the reason! THERMOLACTYL, an amazing new miracle-like fabric, not only brings extra warmth . . . more important, it soothes those aches and pains that are caused by dampness that "goes right through you", by sharp drops in temperature, by winds that knife into your marrow.

ENTIRELY DIFFERENT, underwear made of THERMOLACTYL retains and reflects back your body warmth. What's more, it helps promote circulation in those tiny blood vessels just below the skin. Easy to wash. No perspiration problems either . . . since THERMOLACTYL underwear won't absorb moisture; instead, perspiration evaporates rapidly. You stay warm and dry.

Discover for yourself its wonderful softness—learn how snug and warm you feel even on coldest, B-r-r-r days!

INDEPENDENT TESTS prove that THERMOLACTYL gives much more warmth than bulky layers of so-called "protective" fabrics.

WHY WAIT ANOTHER DAY! Learn why thousands of people who used to have the "miseries" from severe weather praise THERMOLACTYL underwear. It is especially recommended for you folks who dread the aches and pains caused by cold and dampness.

RODNEY IN LONDON
"Home, James!"

Bounding up from the relatively humble but good-paying beginnings of hamburger commercials, Rodney Allen Rippy faced a problem with autograph-seeking fans in England this summer. Like most five-year-olds, he can't write. While he learns the craft of writing, the million-dollar child star is using a rubber stamp with his "signature" on it to satisfy the rushing crowds. Rodney, who enjoyed being called "Mr. Rippy" while in London, convinced the Englishman in our photo that he'd wait a while before trying to drive a Rolls-Royce. Rodney has an upcoming date starring in a new Saturday children's TV series, "The Harlem Globetrotters Popcorn Machine."

Roger Bannister

Today Roger Bannister jogs to work in a business suit and tie, but 20 years ago his attire was different. On a cold, blustery evening then Bannister ran the first "four-minute mile" – in three minutes and 59 seconds, breaking all previous records. As he celebrated the anniversary of the event, Bannister admitted the years have caught up with him somewhat. Now the chairman of the British Sports Council, Bannister says that he can still run the mile—not in four minutes, perhaps, but in "closer to five minutes than six."

New York City's Churchill School offers a new approach to children with learning disabilities. It is named after Winston Churchill, says Director Harry S. Valentine III, "because Sir Winston was a notoriously slow learner." Valentine, an independently wealthy social registerite, had a speech impediment in his youth and still stutters under stress. The school, now going into its second year, combines physiological, psychological and educational training. "We have found that many learning problems stem from neurophysical disorders," says Valentine. The school offers a unique foster-parent plan for children who live outside the city. QUOTE: How to tell what a face-lift would do to you: "Look in the mirror, place your index fingers flat against the temples and pull the skin back toward your ears, to get a slight idea of how lines would be smoothed out by an eye-lift. Put the same fingers on your cheeks and pull away the loose skin around your mouth. Next flatten your palms on both cheeks and pull back the skin a bit on each side of your face to gain an overall impression of what a face-lift might accomplish." From "Doctor, Make Me Beautiful," by James W. Smith, M.D., and Samm Sinclair Baker (Bantam, $1.75). UNQUOTE.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

HOUSE CALLS

If doctors don't make house calls, think
Not of a stopped-up nose but sink.
Imagine if you phoned the plumber
And told him what was on the bummer
And he replied, with firm-set chin,
"You'd better bring your sick sink in,"
Or, lights gone out, the electrician
You asked to make a mercy mission
And he, of whom you'd been admiring
Till now, advised, "Bring in your wiring."
I guess I shouldn't do much grousin':
A house call could be: "Bring your house in."

An ecologist is someone who writes 600-page books asking where all the trees have gone. —Robert Orben

An angler carrying a huge two-foot-long trout met another fisherman whose catch consisted of 12 little bony minnows. "Howdy," said the first man as he laid down his big fish and waited for a comment. The other fisherman stared at it for a moment, then calmly remarked, "Just caught the one, eh?"

After our son had been in first grade a week my husband asked him what he learned in school so far. He said, "We learned arithmetic." "Oh," my husband said, "like 1 plus 1?" "No," replied our son, "we haven't gotten that far yet." —Mrs. James Rouscher
